BARE BONES OF FUN TO COME

The stark framework of a Ferris wheel, with its seats and gaudy lights still to be added, looms in the sky over the Marin County Fairgrounds, being readied for the five-day celebration. By the time the annual fair opens at 10 a.m. tomorrow, all will be aglitter and vibrating at the Foley and Burke carnival and the circus on the midway, all the masses of flowers and garden displays will be painstakingly arranged, and all the art, crafts, films and other exhibits will be ready for the thousands of fairgoers. The grounds will be open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily through Monday. (Photo by Jim Kean)

San Anselmo Given Prime Plot Of Land

Gift of the Oakland Hill area by San Anselmo resident and Sausalito antique dealer and gallery owner C. Frederick Faude was announced at the city council meeting by Mayor Lewis W. Stewart.

Faude, who was not present last night, donated the property valued at approximately $40,000 as an "expression of his pleasure of living in San Anselmo for so many years" said Mayor Stewart.

The property, bounded by Oakland, Alderney and Tomahawk streets and Wood Court, had been rated atop the Open Space Citizens Committee's priority list for land purchases.

The only stipulation to the property said Stewart, calling it "park potential," is minimal improvements and "perpetual use as open space with no developing."

Saying that he sees no major expenditures, Stewart said an appraisal will have to be made on the property along with some improvements suggested by Faude, including a short stairway and rustic entrance if used as a park.

The conditions of the gift, added Councilman Warren R. Perry, will also include donation of the property to a church if the city violates its open space use designation.

City Atty. Hadden W. Roth said that park improvements, such as fountains, will be permitted.

Developer's Secret Deal Is Uncovered

Zakessian Proposal To Sausalito Bared

By PAT ANGLE

Developer Sam Zakessian has offered the Sausalito City Council a secret deal to waive any claims for legal expenses in a city lawsuit against him in exchange for approval of his multimillion dollar waterfront development, the Independent-Journal has learned.

In a confidential memorandum to City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie, City Atty. Leland H. Jordan said the deal would be illegal and "tantamount to selling zoning approvals."

Jordan said attorneys for Zakessian have asked to meet with the council behind closed doors to discuss the proposal further. He said that although he advised against much meetings since "such zoning permits can be granted only after consideration in public meetings," they still seek a closed meeting.

Zakessian's offer stems from a condemnation lawsuit which the city filed to obtain a valuable piece of Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way which he and several other persons own.

The suit was filed in 1972, ostensibly to obtain the right-of-way as a corridor for public transit, specifically for some kind of "people mover" system between the north city limits and downtown.

But Jordan told McKenzie the council asked him to file the condemnation action only to "establish public interest" in preserving the right-of-way for public transit. Against his advice, he said the council has failed to pursue the suit and even instructed him not to proceed with the matter.

If the city now abandons the suit, according to Jordan, it will be liable for the legal expenses of Zakessian and the other property owners. And, since the city has already held up use of the land for so long a time by failing to proceed with the suit, he said the court may decide the city has "taken the property" and force Sausalito to pay the owners the reasonable value of the right-of-way.

Jordan said all the landowners, except Zakessian, have offered to waive any financial claims against the city if it dismisses the condenmnation action "without further delay."

But he said attorneys for Zakessian have been unwilling to agree to such a waiver.

Instead they have proposed to abandon any claims in exchange for approval of the Zakessian project and the Sausalito and Richardson Bay Railroad Company's application to operate a steam railroad along the right-of-way, Jordan said. The railroad company is represented by the same attorneys as Zakessian.

The city council has met in closed session to discuss the proposition, but has not decided whether to accept or reject it, according to the memo.

Jordan has advised against bowing to the demands of Zakessian and railroad company, saying they are, in effect, claiming the city owes them money because of the filing of the condemnation suit.("They are proposing that the city cancel this debt in return for the granting of their application."

Supervisors And Judges On Collision Course Again

Marin County supervisors and county judges may be on a collision course once again — this time over reorganization of the probation department under the new department of health and human services.

Henry J. Broderick, presiding judge of the Marin Superior Court, complained to supervisors in a letter yesterday that Betty L. Presley, director of the new department, is moving to take over the probation department despite agreement she wouldn't.

Supervisors received the letter with only passing comment that "trouble is brewing." It was included with a packet of "nonpolicy items" that are normally accepted without discussion by the board.

Broderick said he was told during a meeting May 14 with two supervisors that the reorganization "did not signify the end of the probation department as a separate entity but rather the beginning of a study to see how, whether, and the extent to which the functions of the probation department could be melded into the new agency without damage to its status as an arm of the court."

He said Miss Presley, who was not invited to the meeting, from which the public also was excluded, "views her assignment as one to determine 'how' the probation department will be melded. . .not 'whether' it should be."

Miss Presley was named director of the new department last May when supervisors agreed to merge the health, welfare and probation departments into one superagency.

While she was originally slated to be named the county's chief probation officer, that was changed by supervisors following the private May 14 meeting with judges who demanded that John W. Brewer keep his title.

However, Broderick said, "Miss Presley has issued directives that usurp the hiring prerogatives of the chief probation officer and interfere with his ability to directly address your board.

"In discussions with Miss Presley she views these directives as a necessary expedient in the assumption of responsibility over the probation department."

Broderick concluded that the judges consider Miss Presley's actions as "violative of the understanding arrived at on May 14" and urged supervisors to be aware of "what may be an approaching impasse. . ."

The court and board have had strained relations in the past on matters dealing with hall of justice security and probation placements.

Tax Rate Is Unchanged In Hub City

The San Anselmo City Council last night set a tax rate of $2.35 per $100 assessed valuation for the 1973-74 fiscal year, a rate unchanged from last year.

The $2,108,641 budget — formally adopted last night — is up $560,930 from last year's $1,547,711 outlay. The budget is estimated on revenue of $2,137,063 including $950,000 in property taxes.

The tax rate, broken down, will include $1.092 for the general fund, 11.2 cents for the planning fund, 19.2 cents for the library fund, 10.9 cents for the parks fund, 04.8 cents for the Robson-Harrington Park fund, 08.9 cents for the recreation fund, 13.4 cents for workmen's compensation and health insurance, 21.4 cents for the storm drains fund and 36 cents for the retirement fund.

Judge Orders Nixon To Produce Watergate Tapes

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A federal judge today ordered President Nixon to produce White House tapes and documents for his private inspection to determine whether they should be given to the Watergate grand jury.

Although the White House had no immediate comment, Nixon's appeal of the decision by Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica was a foregone conclusion. Nixon already has rejected the suggestion that a judge or other third party screen the tapes privately.

Sirica's 23-page opinion rejected as "not persuasive" White House arguments that Nixon could refuse to release the tapes to protect the privacy of the presidency, and that the doctrine of separation of powers prevented the courts from compelling Nixon to release them.

Sirica, who tried the case of the seven original Watergate defendants last January, declared that "the grand jury has a right to every man's evidence," including that held by the President.

"The burden here is on the President to define exactly what it is about his office that court process commanding the production of evidence cannot reach there," Sirica said.

Gate Revenues At Fair Show A Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gate revenues at the state fair for the first four days are up by $54,000, but ironically attendance is down compared to the same period last year, fair officials reported today.

William S. Briner, fair general manager attributed the count drop and money increase to "our tightened policy on free passes as compared to last year."

Mental Health Control Protested

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Private mental health agencies protested a move yesterday by Marin County supervisors to place tighter controls on the spending of county mental health dollars. (Other Marin supervisors stories, page 39.)

The supervisors' unanimous vote to adopt the new rules and regulations came as one agency threatened no longer to accept indigent patients if required to comply with the new system of controls.

Basically, the new system requires local mental health agencies first to receive authorization from the county before treating patients at taxpayers' expense. (The funds are actually state dollars allocated the county each year.)

The system also will allow county health officials for the first time to review treatment and refer a patient from one agency to another if determined to better fit his need.

According to Betty L. Presley, director of health and human services, the new system will be a long-needed management tool for information on patients and their treatment.

Officials from Marin Institute, which offers a rehabilitation program for alcoholics, protested that the requirement for county authorization to treat an indigent patient means his identity will have to be disclosed to county health officials.

Daniel A. Meyerson, executive director of Marin Institute, said his agency would not go along with revealing identities and suggested a code be used instead. His idea was not accepted by supervisors.

While spokesmen from other agencies such as the Marin Child Development Center and Ross Psychiatric Center agreed with Meyerson's concerns, they did not join Marin Institute in ruling out future county patients.

Until yesterday's action, private agencies contracted with the county for a lump sum based on annual estimates of county need. The county had little or no say over how the funds were used.

Last year, for example, about $550,000 of state Short-Doyle money was pumped to nine local agencies. It was up to them to determine patient eligi-

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Yippie Chief In Drug Arrest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Abbie Hoffman, a Chicago Seven defendant and founder of the Youth International Party Yippies, was jailed last night on charges of trying to sell $500,000 worth of cocaine.

Hoffman

Three other persons were arrested with Hoffman. They were held and ordered to appear in court today for arraignment.

Police said an undercover agent posing as a buyer arranged to purchase the illegal drug, a derivative of opium, in a downtown hotel. Police Lt. Robert Mann said Hoffman had a grocery bag with three pounds of cocaine, which Mann said was worth about $500,000 on the street.

The detective who set up the arrests said he had agreed to pay Hoffman $35,000.

Meat Output

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. meat production during July totaled 2.651 billion pounds, down 5 per cent from June but about the same as July a year ago, the Agriculture Department reports.

A department spokesman said yesterday meat shortages "may be easing" soon.

Officials said August figures, to be released a month from now, probably will be down sharply because of slowdowns in cattle marketing and temporary plant closings.

Spray Adhesives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has banned nine more types of spray adhesives commonly used by artists and hobbyists on suspicion they may cause chromosome damage and resulting birth defects.

Richard O. Simpson, chairman of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, also warned consumers to discontinue use of all aerosol spray adhesives pending further research.

Subway Cave-In

Twenty-two other persons suffered smoke inhalation, heat exhaustion, cuts or other injuries. The temperature inside the tunnel was 115 degrees. It was 98 at ground level, hottest day of the year in the city.

The subway runs from Times Square to Shea Stadium and was out of commission from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. The accident site was near the United Nations building on the East River.

Truce Team

SAIGON (UPI) — An Iraniwn advance team arrived in Saigon today to prepare for replacing Canada on the international truce team, but ran into a series of stumbling blocks characteristic of the stalled peacekeeping operations in Indochina.

The five Iranians, led by Staff Col. Soltan Mohammad Etemad, arrived late at Tan Son Nhut airport and had to wait in their plane another half hour while a special lounge was cleared.

The Iranian officers were then whisked away from the airport without stopping in the lounge and before a waiting U.S. Embassy representative had a chance to greet them.

The visitors were taken by mistake to the Iranian ambassador's residence and finally arrived at their hotel two hours late.

New Cabinet

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Salvador Allende, plagued by middle class opposition, military unrest and labor strikes, formed a new crisis cabinet last night and threatened "drastic measures" against the opposition press.

Allende swore in his 20th cabinet in more than two years in office, but the switch indicated little change in dealing with the increasing troubles facing his Marxist government.

Terrorist Bomb

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A terrorist bomb apparently timed to go off during President Lon Nol's news conference at the nearby presidential palace exploded in a busy market place today, killing three persons. It was the first terrorist attack in Phnom Penh in a week and a half.

Lon Nol, in a statement at the new conference, vowed to win the war, but in nearby fighting government troops were driven back by rebel forces on three sides of the capital despite government use of fighter-bombers, artillery and tank-like armored personnel carriers.

Death Toll From Quake Over 400

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Nearly 400 persons were killed, more than 800 were injured and two towns were almost destroyed yesterday in a massive earthquake that spread destruction across 200 miles of Mexico's eastern Sierra Madres.

Waverly Person of the National Earthquake Information Center in Boulder, Colo., said the quake appeared to be the worst in Mexico's modern history in terms of loss of life.

Interior Ministry spokesman Enrique Mendoza said 393 people were killed but that more could be added to the list of dead when rescuers finish digging through the rubble.

The early morning quake, centered in fault lines deep under Mexico's mountainous central spine, registered 7 on the Richter Scale—more powerful than the December 1972, quake in Managua, Nicaragua that killed 5,000 persons. The Managua quake had a Richter intensity of 6.2.

Hardest hit in yesterday's quake was the town of Orizaba, which was caught in the epicenter of the giant temblor. A three-story apartment building in the community of 50,000 persons 150 miles east-southeast of Mexico City collapsed, instantly killing more than 100 tenants asleep inside.

Thousands were left without homes. Red Cross officials said about 800 persons were injured. They estimated 100 persons died in Quecholac in Puebla State; 80 in Ciudad Cerdan; 178 in Orizaba, two in Puebla, and two in Cordoba in Veracruz State. Others died in scattered areas.

Officials said Puebla, Mexico's ourth largest city with a population of 550,000 located 80 miles southeast of Mexico City, also suffered extensive damage.

UPI reporter Timothy Berry reported from Orizaba that the Swiss-style city was half destroyed as scores of buildings toppled over, burying their occupants in rubble. Hundreds were left homeless. Mayor Humberto Guitierrez said the city's 350-bed hospital was badly damaged. Schools were demolished.

A passerby said he ran to the wrecked apartment building to offer help after the quake hit.

"I couldn't stand it," he said. "There were people trapped inside screaming. There was nothing I could do. I had to get away."

Orizaba was left without electricity or running water. Rockslides closed highways into the city. All communications with the outside world, the other side of the Sierra Madre mountains, were cut.

The quake was also felt in Mexico City, where frightened tourists ran into the streets in their night clothes. Dozens of smaller towns were rocked.

It was the third time in a week Echeverria had gone to a disaster area in Mexico.

Last week and on Sunday, he visited the city of Irapuato—200 miles north of Mexico City—where thousands were left homeless by severe floods and the 112-mile-per-hour winds of Hurricane Brenda.

Nixon Confident Of No Recession

SAN CLEMENTE, (UPI) — President Nixon is confident there will be no recession next year and does not contemplate a tax increase, according to a White House spokesman.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said yesterday the chief executive is confident that government-sponsored economic policies and budgetary restraints "will bring inflation down to reasonable levels."

The President is "of course concerned about the inflationary situation," Warren told reporters.

But he pointed out that Nixon's chief economic advisers, including Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, "feel strongly a balanced budget can be achieved this year and that would obviously negate any need for a tax increase this year."

In Washington, Shultz, said the administration realizes that "we have a bulge in inflation ahead of us as we unwind from the very large cost increases which have derived from the intense competition in international markets for commodities like oil and food that are traded there."

"After we get through with this bulge, we will see the pace of inflation moderating," Shultz said. "But we have tried to be as candid as possible with the American people in saying there are problems ahead."

Shultz predicted ultimate success of government policy to increase supplies of "things that are scarce and maintaining reasonable budgetary and monetary policies."

President Eludes Reporters On Outing

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon, who has shown mounting resentment of newsmen, fled reporters through the Southern California countryside yesterday sending Secret Service agents to block news cars.

Earlier this week, the President directed Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler to cancel the agreement whereby reporters from the two major news services, United Press International and the Associated Press, were notified when he leaves his compound at the Western White House.

In return, the newsmen had agreed to stay well behind the presidential car and remain outside when the President visits restaurants. The agreement was based on a mutually-recognized need to have newsmen along when the President is in public, in case he should be harmed.

Since the agreement was suspended, newsmen are on their own.

A carload of Secret Service agents blocked off the news cars and the President sped away, eluding the newsmen.

The White House said later the President drove through the Camp Pendleton Marine Corps base.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Yippie Chief In Drug Arrest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Abbie Hoffman, a Chicago Seven defendant and founder of the Youth International Party Yippies, was jailed last night on charges of trying to sell $500,000 worth of cocaine.

Hoffman

Three other persons were arrested with Hoffman. They were held and ordered to appear in court today for arraignment.

Police said an undercover agent posing as a buyer arranged to purchase the illegal drug, a derivative of opium, in a downtown hotel. Police Lt. Robert Mann said Hoffman had a grocery bag with three pounds of cocaine, which Mann said was worth about $500,000 on the street.

The detective who set up the arrests said he had agreed to pay Hoffman $35,000.

Meat Output

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. meat production during July totaled 2.651 billion pounds, down 5 per cent from June but about the same as July a year ago, the Agriculture Department reports.

A department spokesman said yesterday meat shortages "may be easing" soon.

Officials said August figures, to be released a month from now, probably will be down sharply because of slowdowns in cattle marketing and temporary plant closings.

Spray Adhesives

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government has banned nine more types of spray adhesives commonly used by artists and hobbyists on suspicion they may cause chromosome damage and resulting birth defects.

Richard O. Simpson, chairman of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, also warned consumers to discontinue use of all aerosol spray adhesives pending further research.

Subway Cave-In

Twenty-two other persons suffered smoke inhalation, heat exhaustion, cuts or other injuries. The temperature inside the tunnel was 115 degrees. It was 98 at ground level, hottest day of the year in the city.

The subway runs from Times Square to Shea Stadium and was out of commission from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. The accident site was near the United Nations building on the East River.

Truce Team

SAIGON (UPI) — An Iraniwn advance team arrived in Saigon today to prepare for replacing Canada on the international truce team, but ran into a series of stumbling blocks characteristic of the stalled peacekeeping operations in Indochina.

The five Iranians, led by Staff Col. Soltan Mohammad Etemad, arrived late at Tan Son Nhut airport and had to wait in their plane another half hour while a special lounge was cleared.

The Iranian officers were then whisked away from the airport without stopping in the lounge and before a waiting U.S. Embassy representative had a chance to greet them.

The visitors were taken by mistake to the Iranian ambassador's residence and finally arrived at their hotel two hours late.

New Cabinet

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — President Salvador Allende, plagued by middle class opposition, military unrest and labor strikes, formed a new crisis cabinet last night and threatened "drastic measures" against the opposition press.

Allende swore in his 20th cabinet in more than two years in office, but the switch indicated little change in dealing with the increasing troubles facing his Marxist government.

Terrorist Bomb

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A terrorist bomb apparently timed to go off during President Lon Nol's news conference at the nearby presidential palace exploded in a busy market place today, killing three persons. It was the first terrorist attack in Phnom Penh in a week and a half.

Lon Nol, in a statement at the new conference, vowed to win the war, but in nearby fighting government troops were driven back by rebel forces on three sides of the capital despite government use of fighter-bombers, artillery and tank-like armored personnel carriers.

ALMANAC

BY U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 29, the 241st day of 1973 with 124 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

American poet Oliver Wendell Holmes was born Aug. 29, 1809.

On this day in history:

In 1852, Brigham Young proclaimed the "celestial law of marriage," thus signifying his approval of the practice of polygamy among Mormons.

In 1960, the premier of Jordan and 11 others were killed when a time bomb exploded in his office.

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy appointed Arthur Goldberg to fill the Supreme Court vacancy left by the retirement of Felix Frankfurter.

In 1965, American astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad landed safely to end the eight-day orbital flight of Gemini V.

Thought for the day: American poet Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust."

Man Struck; Injuries Fatal

Where he lived is not known, nor whether he left any immediate family.

Boles was the 21st person to be killed on Marin roads this year, compared to 23 at this time last year.

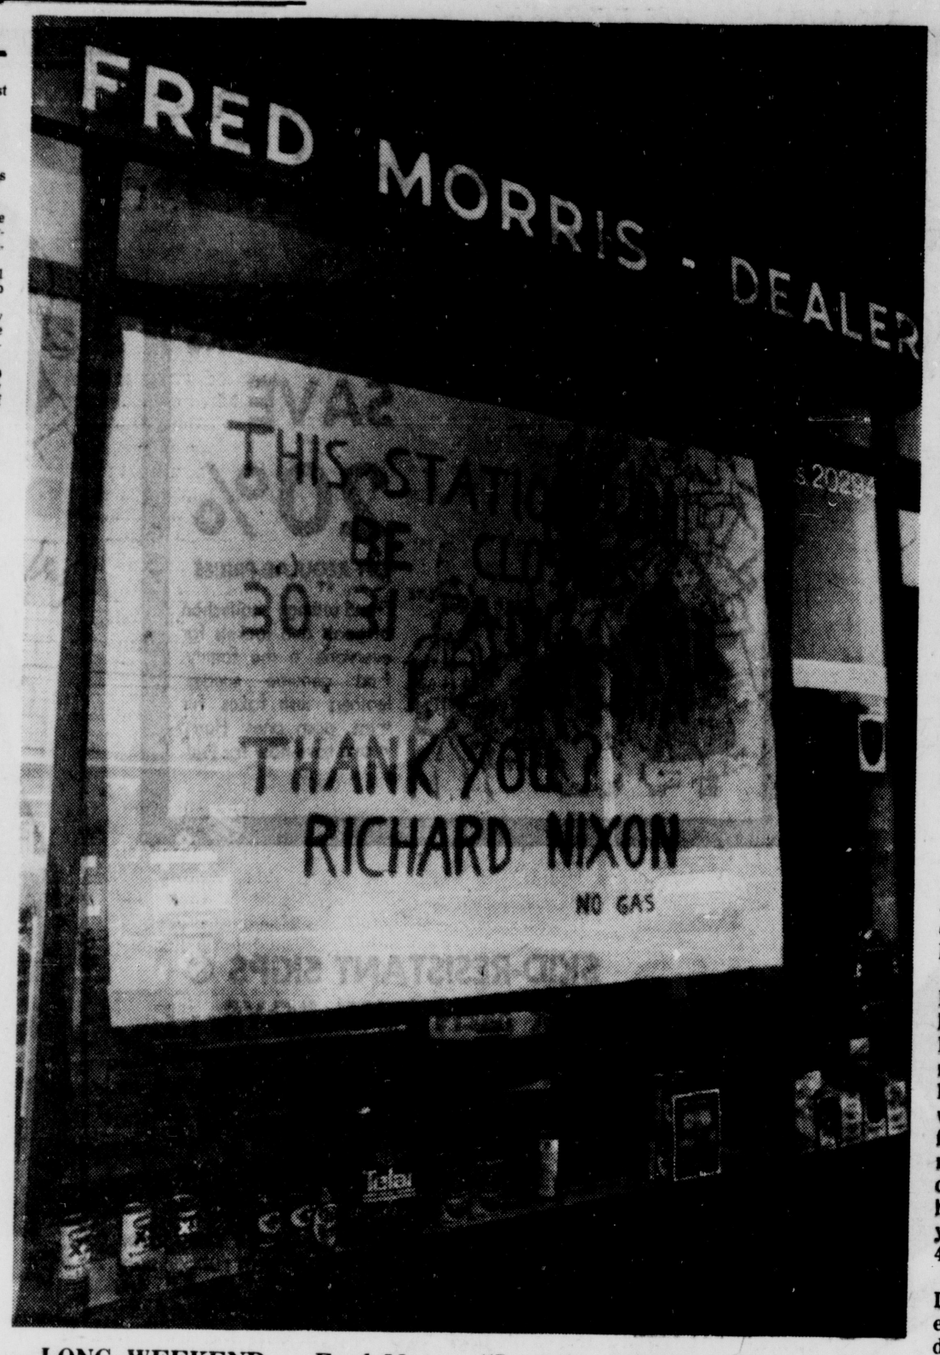
Meet Canceled

The Cotati City Council has canceled a special meeting planned for tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. and will set the 1973-74 tax rate at the regular Sept. 6 meeting, according to City Clerk Donna Olson.



LONG WEEKEND — Fred Morris, who operates the Arco service station on North San Pedro Road, Santa Venetia, is getting a long holiday involuntarily over the Labor Day weekend, his sign declares. "I'll be running out of gas by noon," Morris said today; "I can't get any delivery until late Saturday, so I'll just lock it up" until Tuesday. Robert Moore, spokesmen for Marin dealers, said most Marin stations will remain open daily until sundown except for closings Sunday and Monday.

Many Stations Drop Holiday Closing Plan

Many — but by no means all — gasoline service stations have dropped their plans to shut down over the entire Labor Day weekend, the American Automobile Association reported today.

The gasoline situation in Northern California and Nevada is expected to remain much the same as in recent weeks, the California State Auto Association reported. Except for major cities, open service stations will be hard to find after dark and on Sunday and Monday.

The AAA in its weekly "fuel gauge" report said national associations of service station owners had dropped previously announced plans to close the entire weekend as a protest against Phase IV price controls. U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker in Washington, D.C., blocked the proposed Phase IV federal controls on gasoline that were scheduled to go into effect at 11:59 p.m. Friday.

Although the government has appealed the decision, it apparently leaves dealers free to hike the prices on their pumps for the weekend.

The auto association today urged motorists to keep their gas tanks more than half full, and to be wary of driving after dark north of Petaluma and south of San Jose on Highway 101, where almost all stations close at sundown. Twenty-four-hour stations also are hard to find north of Sacramento on U.S. 99, but are available on I-80 to Nevada.

he said. "In my opinion it is not legal for a city to grant zoning permits in return for the cancellation of indebtedness."

The Zakessian waterfront project is currently in a state of limbo. In April, the city council sent it back to the drawing board because it did not conform to zoning on the waterfront.

In March, the city planning commission turned down Zakessian's request for a use permit for the development which would feature a Barbary Coast fishing village, shops fashioned from antique railroad cars and a Victorian railroad station, among other tourist attractions. Zakessian was ordered to revise his plans when he appealed the planning commission denial to the council.

The railroad proposal was to have been considered last night by the city council, but councilmen voted 4-1 toontinue the matter for 90 days after Robert and George Mohun, principals in the railroad company, asked for the delay.

Councilman Stephen A. Fraser opposed the postponement, saying it amounts to the city "being held up for ransom" by a major developer.

Fraser said Zakessian is using the right-of-way as a lever. By withholding it, he could hamper the establishment of the railroad or any other public transit system. Presumably, if the council had approved the steam train proposal last night, Zakessian would not have been able to use the right-of-way as a bargaining point without damaging an ally, the railroad company.

"You have been made a pawn in the effort by major landowners to get city approval of their projects," Fraser told the Mohuns.

George Mohun admitted that he was befriending Zakessian in asking that a decision on the railroad proposal be delayed. He said his firm did not want to jeopardize Zakessian's legal position with the city. (The longer the city postpones some action on the condemnation suit, the more likely the courts will declare the city has taken over the land and forced it to pay the property owners for the right of way, according to Jordan.)

Robert Mohun told councilmen the postponement would prevent any conflict with an alternative zoning plan for the central waterfront being developed by property owners and city stwff.

Consideration of new zoning for the central waterfront that would prohibit the commercial exploitation of the area by tourist-oriented businesses has been suspended by the city council until developers can produce an alternative zoning scheme. Zakessian has vehemently opposed the city's zoning plan, calling it "unworkable and unjust."

MENTAL

bility for public aid and to determine the method of treatment.

"The agencies spent the money as they saw fit," Dr. Robert Taylor, chief of county mental health services, told the board. "There was no central agency to establish priorities and decide who was served."

As a result, it is conceivable that a patient could receive services from several agencies, each billing the county.

Taylor and Miss Presley, in urging adoption of the new controls, said the system will allow the county to deal with about 35 local agencies on a per-patient basis rather than spending all funds on contracts with nine agencies.

Meyerson, of the Marin Institute, and spokesmen from several other agencies which held contracts with the county, told supervisors it would be difficult to plan budgets without knowing how many county patients to plan for.

Several persons said supervisors may force some agencies to close doors once the new system is put into operation next week.

Dr. Taylor responded that the funds are for patient treatment and "not to subsidize agencies."

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Robert A. Roumiguiere said they would support granting the nine agencies with contracts last year a funding guarantee equal to half the amount given last year. Their motion failed 2 to 3.

Nevada Christian of the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board said that group supports the new system and called it "better from the standpoint of the patient and the taxpayer."

She said the objection to identifying patients raised by Marin Institute "is misleading and overblown."

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste agreed, adding the proposal "is a major step toward fiscal and program accountability. The clients (patients) are more important than guaranteeing dollars to agencies next year."

He also questioned past practice of using eight or nine local agencies when a wider range of services has existed.

Baptiste was joined by Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini who said the new system will insure that "the better agencies will prosper. If the system decided ... some agency isn't cutting it, so be it."

Roumiguiere said he also favored the proposal because "competition is healthy" and because it will provide tighter control on tax dollars.

His motion to adopt the new system was approved unanimously.

BY U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Wednesday, Aug. 29, the 241st day of 1973 with 124 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

American poet Oliver Wendell Holmes was born Aug. 29, 1809.

On this day in history:

In 1852, Brigham Young proclaimed the "celestial law of marriage," thus signifying his approval of the practice of polygamy among Mormons.

In 1960, the premier of Jordan and 11 others were killed when a time bomb exploded in his office.

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy appointed Arthur Goldberg to fill the Supreme Court vacancy left by the retirement of Felix Frankfurter.

Thought for the day: American poet Oliver Wendell Holmes said, "Put not your trust in money, but put your money in trust."

George Mohun admitted that he was befriending Zakessian in asking that a decision on the railroad proposal be delayed. He said his firm did not want to jeopardize Zakessian's legal position with the city. (The longer the city postpones some action on the condemnation suit, the more likely the courts will declare the city has taken over the land and forced it to pay the property owners for the right of way, according to Jordan.)

Robert Mohun told councilmen the postponement would prevent any conflict with an alternative zoning plan for the central waterfront being developed by property owners and city stwff.

Consideration of new zoning for the central waterfront that would prohibit the commercial exploitation of the area by tourist-oriented businesses has been suspended by the city council until developers can produce an alternative zoning scheme. Zakessian has vehemently opposed the city's zoning plan, calling it "unworkable and unjust."

bility for public aid and to determine the method of treatment.

"The agencies spent the money as they saw fit," Dr. Robert Taylor, chief of county mental health services, told the board. "There was no central agency to establish priorities and decide who was served."

As a result, it is conceivable that a patient could receive services from several agencies, each billing the county.

Taylor and Miss Presley, in urging adoption of the new controls, said the system will allow the county to deal with about 35 local agencies on a per-patient basis rather than spending all funds on contracts with nine agencies.

Meyerson, of the Marin Institute, and spokesmen from several other agencies which held contracts with the county, told supervisors it would be difficult to plan budgets without knowing how many county patients to plan for.

Several persons said supervisors may force some agencies to close doors once the new system is put into operation next week.

Dr. Taylor responded that the funds are for patient treatment and "not to subsidize agencies."

Supervisors Michael Wornum and Robert A. Roumiguiere said they would support granting the nine agencies with contracts last year a funding guarantee equal to half the amount given last year. Their motion failed 2 to 3.

Nevada Christian of the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board said that group supports the new system and called it "better from the standpoint of the patient and the taxpayer."

She said the objection to identifying patients raised by Marin Institute "is misleading and overblown."

Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste agreed, adding the proposal "is a major step toward fiscal and program accountability. The clients (patients) are more important than guaranteeing dollars to agencies next year."

He also questioned past practice of using eight or nine local agencies when a wider range of services has existed.

Baptiste was joined by Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini who said the new system will insure that "the better agencies will prosper. If the system decided . . . some agency isn't cutting it, so be it."

Roumiguiere said he also favored the proposal because "competition is healthy" and because it will provide tighter control on tax dollars.

His motion to adopt the new system was approved unanimously.

Whip Action Aboard Jet Injures Five

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —An apparent mechanical failure in a tail section control of a jetliner hurled five persons standing in the rear of the plane against the walls in a violent crack-the-whip motion last night.

Three passengers were injured seriously and two stewardesses suffered back sprains. Several others among the 127 passengers and crew of nine complained of bumps and bruises but none was hospitalized.

The trouble occurred about 25,000 feet over the Pacific Ocean on a Boeing 707, TWA flight 742 from Hong Kong to San Francisco with stops at Honolulu and Los Angeles. The plane was 35 minutes out of Los Angeles International Airport when the shaking began at 9:30 p.m.

TWA spokesman Mike Leone said that it was initially reported that the aircraft encountered "severe air turbulence" while descending from 33,000 to 24,000 feet.

Leone said, however, that after talking with TWA personnel at the airport that there "possibly was a mechanical malfunction in an elevator control system in the tail section."

The system keeps the aircraft on a straight course while climbing or descending.

Fire department crash crews were standing by on the airport runway when the pilot brought the jet in safely for an emergency landing an hour after the incident.

A spokesman said one passenger was in very serious condition another in fair condition and a third in satisfactory condition. The stewardesses were released after treatment for back injuries.

One passenger was reported to have a possible broken neck, another possible skull and jaw fracture and the third a broken arm.

British War Blame Laid Upon Duke Of Windsor

LONDON (UPI) — A British historian who predicted World War II five years before its outbreak said today the late King Edward VIII was the man most responsible for plunging Britain into it.

He said the late Joseph P. Kennedy, father of President Kennedy and U.S. ambassador in London at the start of the war, told him the British government at that time "betrayed and deliberately misled" President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Historian George Bilainkin, 70, said publication of two books he has written to prove these claims were "suppressed" on grounds they were "libelous."

Bilainkin predicted Adolf Hitler's invasion of Poland and Western Europe in a book published in 1934.

"I have absolute proof now," he said, "that the Duke of Windsor (King Edward) was more responsible than any other person for the outbreak of World War II, the 1940 fall of France and the destruction of the British empire."

He said one of his books "contained documentary proof...that Edward VIII betrayed the British cabinet and was involved in secret plots to link the British people with the Nazi regime in Germany."

He said these charges were contained in a book titled "Why France Fell—Four Guilty Britons."

Bilainkin said the supressed book he wrote about Kennedy was based on numerous private conversations with him. He said these showed that the late Neville Chamberlain, British prime minister at the start of the war, and members of his government "betrayed and deliberately misled" Roosevelt.

"These men," he said, "were resolved on assisting Hitler, Benito Mussolini, the Polish colonels and certain Japanese personages to invade the Soviet Union...after the assassination of Joseph Stalin and his foreign minister, Vyacheslav M. Molotov."

Bilainkin charged that the three other "guilty Britons" were Chamberlain; the late Lord Halifax, foreign secretary at the time; and Lord Butler, undersecretary at the Foreign Office in 1938-41.

Floridian Named Top Kelley Aide

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — State Law Enforcement Commissioner William L. Reed, who has headed the Florida Department of Law Enforcement since its creation in 1967, will leave his post next week to become a top aide to new FBI Director Clarence Kelley.

Reed, the last remaining agency head appointed by former Gov. Claude R. Kirk Jr., submitted his letter of resignation to Gov. Reubin Askew yesterday.

131 Hours Of Terror Over For Hostages In Bank Vault

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Six days of terror for four hostages held at the point of a bandit's submachine gun in a downtown bank ended in five stormy minutes yesterday when he and his convict friend surrendered under a storm of police tear gas.

The gunman, Jan-Erik Olsson, 32, fired one last hail of bullets at police from the 40-by-10-foot bank vault where he was holding the hostages. Then—tears streaming down his face as gas flooded the chamber—he cried: "I give up. I give up."

The 131-hour ordeal that at one point had the hostages pleading for their lives was over.

Police said Olsson's companion, convicted bank robber Clark Olofsson, 26, also surrendered without a struggle. Olofsson was released from prison and brought to the Kreditbanken bank on Olsson's orders Thursday, the day he botched an attempt to rob the bank and took the hostages instead.

Looking tired and dirty, both men were led away handcuffed to officers still wearing their gasmasks.

Their bedragled victims—three women and a man, all bank employees — walked through the door of the vault and were loaded on stretchers, then taken to separate hospitals.

The hostages—Mrs. Birgitta Lundblad, a 31-year-old mother of two; Kristin Enmark, 21; Elisabeth Oldgren, 23; and the man, Sven Saefstroem, 25; were all unharmed, hospital spokesmen said.

"I've told the kids and they are waiting for mommy to come home soon," said Mrs. Lundblad's husband with tears in his eyes.

Olsson and Olofsson, blinded by tear gas before they surrendered, were also hospitalized with armed policemen standing guard by their bedsides.

One police officer, who would not identify himself, said hours before the capture that Olsson and Olofsson "have turned the vault into a torture chamber. They are extremely brutal. What's happening down there makes me want to throw up." He would not elaborate.

Divorced Wife Of Ex-POW To Get Payments

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Bonnye Vohden, sued for divorce by former prisoner of war Raymond A. Vohden, will receive $500 a month alimony and $250 a month child support for her two children.

The 42-year-old Navy commander filed for a divorce shortly after his release from a North Vietnamese prison where he spent almost eight years. The divorce is pending, but the property settlement was filed yesterday in circuit court. Vohden said he returned home Feb. 12 and found that his wife was dating another man. He filed for a divorce on May 7, charging his wife with "cruel and inhuman treatment." Mrs. Vohden, 34, said she planned to contest the divorce only on "any issues regarding custody of the children."

Looking tired and dirty, both men were led away handcuffed to officers still wearing their gasmasks.

Their bedragled victims—three women and a man, all bank employees — walked through the door of the vault and were loaded on stretchers, then taken to separate hospitals.

The hostages—Mrs. Birgitta Lundblad, a 31-year-old mother of two; Kristin Enmark, 21; Elisabeth Oldgren, 23; and the man, Sven Saefstroem, 25; were all unharmed, hospital spokesmen said.

"I've told the kids and they are waiting for mommy to come home soon," said Mrs. Lundblad's husband with tears in his eyes.

Olsson and Olofsson, blinded by tear gas before they surrendered, were also hospitalized with armed policemen standing guard by their bedsides.

One police officer, who would not identify himself, said hours before the capture that Olsson and Olofsson "have turned the vault into a torture chamber. They are extremely brutal. What's happening down there makes me want to throw up." He would not elaborate.

Divorced Wife Of Ex-POW To Get Payments

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Bonnye Vohden, sued for divorce by former prisoner of war Raymond A. Vohden, will receive $500 a month alimony and $250 a month child support for her two children.

The 42-year-old Navy commander filed for a divorce shortly after his release from a North Vietnamese prison where he spent almost eight years. The divorce is pending, but the property settlement was filed yesterday in circuit court. Vohden said he returned home Feb. 12 and found that his wife was dating another man. He filed for a divorce on May 7, charging his wife with "cruel and inhuman treatment." Mrs. Vohden, 34, said she planned to contest the divorce only on "any issues regarding custody of the children."

Regular School Day Announced

Novato High School will have a regular school day, 8:15 a.m. to 2:20 p.m. when it opens Sept. 11, according to principal Stanley V. Onderdonk.

There will not be an assembly because students are to get all scheduling information prior to school opening, he said.

Students should bring all school materials and clothing for physical education on the first day, Onderdonk said.

Yearbooks will be given at 7 p.m. next Wednesday in front of Novato High School Library, he reported.

San Anselmo Council Gives Palmistry Nod

The San Anselmo City Council voted 4-0 last night to permit palmistry in the city and to place stricter control on dogs. (Other San Anselmo City Council stories, page 1.)

The council also voted 4-0, with councilman Kenneth L. Anderson absent, to appoint George S. Gatter of Sausalito advance planner to update the city's general plan. The estimated cost by Gatter for the two-year program is $5,500.

The dog control ordinance would prohibit dogs on the property of another without their consent. Dogs walking on public property would also have to be restrained by a leash or be "at heel" within two feet of the owner. Final approvement of the ordinance will be made at the Sept. 11 meeting.

Unanimous repeal of the Municipal Code prohibiting palm readers in the city reflected Councilman Warren R. Perry's comment that he didn't see any "real threat to businesses or the community that would result from a gold rush of seers coming to San Anselmo."

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

PERMIT — Upheld 3-1, with councilman Woodrow W. Capurro opposed, a planning commission refusal of a permit for Roger J. Starwick of Novato to build a single-family residence at 11 Indian Rock Road. The denial was based on the open space subcommittee's recommendation that adjacent property is potential open space for the general plan and Starwick's property is a potential access to it.

BEER — Approved 3-1, with Capurro opposed, the chamber of commerce's request to sell beer during Country Fair Days from 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. in the parking lot at Jack's Drug Store.

DANCE — Approved 4-0 a request by the Marin Community Workshop, Inc., a rehabilitation program for handicapped adults, to hold a dance and open house in their building at 21 Mariposa Avenue during Country Fair Days. The dance will be held Sept. 15 from 1 to 5 p.m.

CALCULATOR — Approved 4-0 a purchase of a programmable calculator for the Public Works Department at a cost of $2,500.

BOARDS — Nominated Marianne Myers of San Anselmo and Walden E. Raymond, a San Anselmo businessman, to the design review committee and Edna Beedle and Frank L. Quinn to the parks and recreation commission. Final selection will be made at the Sept. 11 meeting.

SEWAGE — Approved 4-0 a uniform ordinance regulating installation and drainage field of septic tanks.

ADVERTISING — Approved 4-0 the first reading of the annual ordinance designating the chamber of commerce as the nongovernmental agency to administer and spend funds for advertising and publicity at a cost of $3,500.

BOTTLES — Approved 4-0 the first reading of the ordinance that would make it unlawful to sell bottled drinks without a sign instructing customers that returnable bottles "may save the environment and you money."

RETIREMENT — Approved 4-0 including police clerks in the police retirement system.

APPOINTMENT — Approved 4-0 the appointment of Virginia Boone to police clerk-dispatcher at a monthly salary of $639.

GUARD — Postponed until Sept. 11 discussion on a crossing guard policy.

GROWTH — Postponed until Sept. 11 a discussion on the Association of Bay Area Governments growth policy by councilman Anderson.

MEETING — Adjourned to the regular meeting Sept. 11 at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Supervisorial Pay Increase Is Rescinded

SALINAS (AP) — Monterey County supervisors have voted to rescind a 50 per cent pay hike they gave themselves last June.

The supervisors made the decision after the Monterey County Taxpayers Association led a successful petition campaign against the measure.

The pay increase, raising monthly pay from $800 to $1,250, was to have been effective Aug. 18, but was withheld pending the outcome of the petition effort.

Store Burglary Plea Is Guilty

Wilson, 22, will be sentenced Sept. 14 in Marin Municipal Court. He entered the plea after Judge David R. Baty reduced the charge from a felony.

Wilson was arrested by San Rafael police after they reported finding him inside the closed Food Mart on Fifth Avenue.

School Board Approves Tough Transfer Policy

Strict limits on student transfers from the Bolinas-Stinson School District to other districts were set last night by the district board.

Dr. Bernard Barrish, district superintendent-principal, said the board turned down 11 of 12 requests for transfers. Most of the students wanted to attend West Marin School in the Shoreline School District.

Barrish said the board decided that transfer requests will be denied unless a child has a specific educational need that the Bolinas-Stinson district cannot meet.

In the past, the district, like others in Marin, has been fairly liberal about permitting transfers, he said.

Trustees also decided transfers will be granted for a year at a time rather than on a permanent basis.

Barrish said transfers mean too much loss of revenue to a small district like Bolinas-Stinson, which expects 210 students this fall. State law requires the pupil's school district to pay the revenue obtained to educate the student to his new district.

"At the same time we'd still have the same number of teachers and same fixed costs whether we had 200 students or not," he said. "In a small district these transfers mean a great loss of funds."

Bill Is Opposed By Marin GOP

The Marin County Republican Central Committee last night came out against Senate Bill 400, legislation that would limit the bargaining powers of school boards in negotiations with employee unions.

The bill, already approved by the Senate and under consideration by the Assembly, would "compel school boards to bargain exclusively with specified teacher and employee organizations," according to a committee spokesman.

The bill would "completely inhibit the powers of the people's elected representatives in negotiations with the people's employees," the resolution said.

The committee also asked Governor Ronald Reagan to veto the bill, if the Assembly approves it and sends it to him for signature.

Sponsors Of Agnew Fete Deny Guilt

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — A committee that sponsored a 1972 Republican dinner in honor of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew pleaded innocent today to four conspiracy charges in connection with the filing of false financial reports.

Maryland Republican Chairman Alexander M. Lankler, one of seven members named in an indictment but not individually charged, represented the Salute to Ted Agnew Committee at the county court arraignment.

The Anne Arundel County grand jury issued an indictment last week, charging the committee with conspiring to file false financial statements on the dinner, held to raise money for the Maryland GOP. The charge said a $50,000 loan from the Committee to Re-Elect the President (CRP) was reported as donated by private individuals.

After the arraignment, Lankler said he had "no argument with the indictment" and said he thought the grand jury had "acted in a very responsible way."

The committee's attorney, William Hundley, conceded in response to questions that Lankler's comments indicated an admission of guilt and he was asked if the plea would be changed later.

"I wouldn't predict that there will be a trial, but I would rather not go beyond that," Hundley said.

The false report was revealed at Senate Watergate Committee hearings in Washington. The CRP treasurer, Hugh Sloan, testified about a $50,000 loan to the committee sponsoring the Agnew affair.

Lankler told newsmen the false report was "one of the dumbest things any committee has ever done." He said he appeared on behalf of the seven persons named in the indictment "as an indication of my sense of responsibility."

The same grand jury earlier this summer indicted Blagden H. Wharton, treasurer of the committee and vice president of the Maryland National Bank, on charges of filing the false report with the state elections office.

District's Tax Rate Unchanged

Novato Sanitary District directors have set the general purpose tax rate for 1973-74 at 33 cents per $100 assessed valuation, the same as last year, according to Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph.

Directors Monday night adopted a budget of $468,850, up $90,197 from last year.

With the property tax rate limited to 33 cents by Senate Bill 90, the law governing property taxes, the district will have to transfer about $79,000 from its capital improvement funds to finance operations, Joseph said.

With the district's assessed valuation up about 9 per cent, the amount to be raised by property taxes will be $316,631 as compared to $288,216 last year, he said.

The board will have its next regular meeting at 6 p.m. Sept. 11 at the district office in Novato instead of Sept. 10 because of the Admission Day holiday.

Students Face Higher Prices

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer said a la carte menu items will increase by five cents in almost all cases. Complete plate lunches, however, will remain at 50 cents for at least the beginning of the school year.

Meyer said increased food costs and inflation required the increases. All sandwiches will be raised by five cents and a half-pint of milk will increase from five to 10 cents.

First Round Set On General Plan

The newly formed citizens committee which will help a planning consulting firm write a new Mill Valley general plan will hold its first meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Tom W. Newton, planning director, said that the committee and representatives of the Sedway-Cooke firm of San Francisco will discuss the plan area, the schedule for writing the plan over the next 18 months and the impact of county planning goals on Mill Valley.

The 27 citizens appointed to the committee by the city council also will be divided into subcommittees on environmental quality, land use and housing and public services and facilities.

Four city councilmen, four members of the architectural advisory committee and the entire planning commission also are serving on the committee.

The meeting was set originally for the gallery of the Mill Valley Library but was transferred to city hall to provide more room.

A $43,000 Grant For Youth Corps

The Marin County Neighborhood Youth Corps office has announced that $40,300 in federal money has been received to continue through January its out-of-school program providing work experience for drop-outs.

Youth Corps director James McKenna said the funds were allocated to provide 26 paid training slots, but that the county has been able to increase its quota to 32 youths at present because of routine absenteeism.

He said the training is available to persons 16 to 22 ears old from low-income backgrounds who have dropped out of school.

Trainees are paid $1.65 an hour for work as clerical and teachers aides, kitchen help, and any other work which they might want to pursue, McKenna said.

Hospital Directors Accept Bid For Color Television

The Marin Hospital District Board accepted a bid last night for color television sets to replace the present black-and-white sets in Marin General Hospital's optional television service for patients.

The board accepted the bid of a Burlingame firm over six other bidders which offered different types of service and differing time lengths for the contract. The board raised the hospital's charge for the service 50 cents, to $2.25 per day as recommended by the successful bidder's recommendation.

Wells National Service Corporation's bid guarantees a $69,000 return to the hospital at the new rate over the six years of the contract. The Wells firm will receive $1.65 per set per day and the remaining 60 cents will be paid to the Marin General Hospital Volunteers for their service in turning on sets and changing channels at patient request.

All of the money made by the volunteers is returned to the hospital for the purchase of equipment and they gave the hospital a total of $62,894 last year. Of that amount $14,880 was from the television service.

Under the black-and-white contract, the volunteers were receiving 68 cents of the $1.75 which was charged to patients.

Although the new contract seems to guarantee a smaller annual return to the hospital, George H. Folsom, hospital board president, said he anticipates a higher use rate for the color sets and a higher return to the hospital than the $11,500 guaranteed yearly return of the contract.

Folsom said only 53 sets would have to be used each day to net the guaranteed return to the hospital and under the black-and-white system 60 sets are used daily. He said he expects more than the present average to be used which would raise the annual return above present figures.

Ed Stoehr, district manager for Wells, said his firm will begin installing color sets in 180 patient rooms within 60 days and the system will be completed within 30 days after the start of replacement.

The Marin Hospital District Board also:

LEASE — Approved a lease agreement with Marin County for rental of space by the county at the Community Mental Health Center.

BENEFIT — Approved the plan for a benefit in October at the Veterans Memorial Building by Sal Carson's big band of the 40s to benefit Marin General's hearing and speech center. The center will benefit from bar proceeds and the Carson band will make its profit or loss through the sale of tickets at $10 per couple.

BIDS — Asked for bids for approximately $7,000 worth of filing equipment for Marin General's X-ray department. Bid opening is to be scheduled at the board's September meeting.

GRANT — Received a $[illegible],000 grant from the San Rafael General Hospital Foundation which dissolved assets remaining after the hospital's closure May 31, 1973.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to its next regular meeting Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. in the Coral Room at Marin General Hospital.

Marin City Shooting Is Probed

A Marin City man arrested on suspicion of assault with intent to kill and being an accessory to a crime has not been charged in Marin Municipal Court.

The Marin District Attorney's Office said it still is investigating circumstances surrounding a shooting incident in Marin City Friday which led to the arrest of Wilbert Smith, 23, of that community.

Smith was arrested at a Marin City coffee shop a few hours after a man suspected of siphoning gasoline from cars at 79 Cole Drive exchanged gunfire with a Marin sheriff's deputy who arrived at the scene.

Deputies said Smith's car was identified by a witness as the one in which the gunman made his getaway, but Smith told deputies he had loaned the car to his mother and it could not have been used as the getaway vehicle.

Soldiers Hurt

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen injured four soldiers by exploding a 200-pound bomb in front of a British armored car yesterday 50 miles south of Belfast, where Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath conferred with Protestant and Catholic leaders.

Plea Made By PG&E For Plants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Pacific Gas & Electric Co warned today that unless it is allowed to build $100 million worth of new oil-burning facilities at existing gas-burning power plants immediately there will be an electricity "crisis" in Northern California next year.

The company called for "cooperation and coordination" by government agencies, consumers and fuel suppliers in allowing it to carry out "urgent" plant modification.

In a news release, PG&E said it plans to add facilities for oil burning at seven steam generating power stations which now use mostly natural gas, a fuel which is "in critically short supply for this purpose."

PG&E, like other power companies, has faced serious objections from environmentalists to construction of new power facilities in recent years. Two major nuclear power station sites were abandoned.

Apparently in an effort to head off such objections to its new construction plans, J. Dean Worthington, senior vice president, said it was "our hope that the necessary governmental authorizations at all levels can be obtained expeditiously.

"Delays in obtaining these necessary permits would greatly increase the prospect of power curtailments next year in our service of Northern and Central California."

Without the construction program, the statement said some of the area faces possible "brownouts or blackouts" in 1974.

The company said top priority in the program is a plan to increase oil facilities at its largest steam generating plant, located at Moss Landing. Other locations where work must be done "with great urgency" are plants at Morro Bay, in Contra Costa County, San Francisco, and Humboldt County.

Worthington said the work would be carried out in such a way that it will "have as little environmental effect as possible."

At Moss Landing the program includes building an offshore anchorage for large tankers, onshore storage tanks and pipelines, together with modifications of the plant to permit burning of varying types of oil, including low-sulfur fuels. Work at the other plants would be similar.

The company noted that one of the reasons it must add to its oil-burning capacity is the delay in construction of nuclear power facilities. The other reason is "the sudden and severe reductions" in supplies of natural gas.

CONNOISSEUR OF BEAUTY MAKES BEAUTIFUL GIFT

This gently sloping, undeveloped land, crowning a San Anselmo hill has been given to the city by resident C. Frederick Faude. (See story, page 1). Faude, art collector and owner of a gallery in Sausalito, gave the 15 acres (circled, center) as an expression of the pleasure he takes in living in San Anselmo, according to Mayor Lewis W. Stewart.

Judge Orders Man's Arrest

A Novato man, suspected of writing five worthless checks was ordered arrested yesterday by Marin Municipal Court Judge Gary W. Thomas after the man failed to appear for arraignment.

Thomas set $1,500 bail on a bench warrant for Harold D. Gann, age unknown, of 1812 Grant Avenue.

Gann has been charged with writing the checks totaling $146 against insufficient funds between March 3 and April 5 in Novato.

Judge Rules Bread Knife Not Weapon

A charge of carrying a concealed weapon, filed against a Marin City woman, was dismissed yesterday during a preliminary hearing by Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman.

But he ordered another hearing on a charge that Patricia Ann Fusiliereia, 22, is guilty of criminal conspiracy in connection with the theft of a car from a San Francisco man.

Miss Fusiliereia, who also faces two other actions in Marin courts, was ordered to appear Tuesday in municipal court.

Smallman ruled a bread knife found in Miss Fusiliereia's possession when she was arrested on suspicion of car theft Aug. 20 was not an illegal weapon.

On the other charge, she is accused of conspiring to steal a car from Willie Breedlove of San Francisco. Her companion in the alleged theft, David Townsel, still is being sought by Marin sheriff's deputies.

Miss Fusiliereia is awaiting sentencing in superior court on a previous conviction for concealing stolen property and has a burglary case pending in municipal court.

Youth Is Robbed Waiting For Bus

An Almonte youth was robbed at knife point yesterday while waiting for a Golden Gate Transit bus in Marin City, according to Marin County sheriff's deputies.

Robert McKenzie, 18, of 199 Morning Sun Avenue, told sheriff's deputies(qthat as he was waiting at about 1:25 a.m. at a bus stop at Donahue Street and Drake Avenue, he was approached by two men, one carrying a knife. He said they took from him $1.50 and a man's ring and then fled on foot.

CONNOISSEUR OF BEAUTY MAKES BEAUTIFUL GIFT

This gently sloping, undeveloped land, crowning a San Anselmo hill has been given to the city by resident C. Frederick Faude. (See story, page 1). Faude, art collector and owner of a gallery in Sausalito, gave the 15 acres (circled, center) as an expression of the pleasure he takes in living in San Anselmo, according to Mayor Lewis W. Stewart.

Judge Orders Man's Arrest

A Novato man, suspected of writing five worthless checks was ordered arrested yesterday by Marin Municipal Court Judge Gary W. Thomas after the man failed to appear for arraignment.

Thomas set $1,500 bail on a bench warrant for Harold D. Gann, age unknown, of 1812 Grant Avenue.

Gann has been charged with writing the checks totaling $146 against insufficient funds between March 3 and April 5 in Novato.

Judge Rules Bread Knife Not Weapon

A charge of carrying a concealed weapon, filed against a Marin City woman, was dismissed yesterday during a preliminary hearing by Municipal Judge Robert A. Smallman.

But he ordered another hearing on a charge that Patricia Ann Fusiliereia, 22, is guilty of criminal conspiracy in connection with the theft of a car from a San Francisco man.

Miss Fusiliereia, who also faces two other actions in Marin courts, was ordered to appear Tuesday in municipal court.

Smallman ruled a bread knife found in Miss Fusiliereia's possession when she was arrested on suspicion of car theft Aug. 20 was not an illegal weapon.

On the other charge, she is accused of conspiring to steal a car from Willie Breedlove of San Francisco. Her companion in the alleged theft, David Townsel, still is being sought by Marin sheriff's deputies.

Miss Fusiliereia is awaiting sentencing in superior court on a previous conviction for concealing stolen property and has a burglary case pending in municipal court.

Youth Is Robbed Waiting For Bus

An Almonte youth was robbed at knife point yesterday while waiting for a Golden Gate Transit bus in Marin City, according to Marin County sheriff's deputies.

Robert McKenzie, 18, of 199 Morning Sun Avenue, told sheriff's deputies(qthat as he was waiting at about 1:25 a.m. at a bus stop at Donahue Street and Drake Avenue, he was approached by two men, one carrying a knife. He said they took from him $1.50 and a man's ring and then fled on foot.

BEATING MANHATTAN HEAT

Children frolicked in a stream of water from an open fire hydrant in downtown Manhattan yesterday as a stifling, late summer heat wave paralyzed the East and Midwest, sending thousands of workers home early, straining air conditioners and threatening most cities with power shortages or cutbacks. The heat wave was expected to continue today. (UPI Telephoto)

Belvedere Adopts Plan Assuring Open Water Area Preservation

An open-space plan calling for preservation of all existing publicly and privately owned open water areas in Belvedere was approved last night by the Belvedere City Council.

The council also heard first reading of a set of amendments designed to tighten up Belvedere's zoning ordinance which would provide strict controls on the number of unrelated persons living in a single home.

The plan, the product of a year's work by a citizen's committee also recommends acquisition of open water areas and tidelots along Beach Road between the San Francisco Yacht Club and intersection of Main Street and Beach Road.

It asks the city to purchase the cliff area along West Shore Road, a small park area at Beach Road and San Rafael Avenue and preserve Lagoon Road Park as a park.

The plan calls for the city to preserve a one-foot strip along the west shore of Corinthian Island, improve city-owned open areas and to provide incentives for property owners to keep their land in open space or donate properties to the city.

The zoning ordinance amendments, incorporating suggestions by the consulting firm of Livingston and Blayney in its 1971 Belvedere planning study, outlaw building on substandard lots belonging to home owners of adjacent land.

The revisions also create two new zones, open space and cove multiple dwelling zones. The latter differs from regular multiple-family dwelling zones in that it would allow professional offices, churches, club buildings and apartment offices with a use permit.

Height limits for structures would be reduced from 42 to 36 in the multiple zone and from 32 to 28 feet in all other zones.

The chief objection to the zoning plan came from Hyram W. Johnson, a Belvedere resident since 1938.

Johnson objected to the amendment which states that "not more than two persons who are not related by blood, marriage or adoption" may live together in a home.

He called the proposal the strictest in the county, saying that several other Marin cities had agreed to limit nonrelated persons in a single home to five.

Council members replied that they believed the strict controls were "best for Belvedere." The current ordinance limits the number of unrelated persons in a home to three.

"I am not going to be told who can occupy the four bedrooms in my home," Johnson told the Independent-Journal. "It's an invasion of my privacy."

Man Freed On Charge Of Assault

A charge of assault with a deadly weapon filed against a Forest Knolls man was dismissed yesterday by Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court.

Thomas ruled Robert Leonard Frank, 29, acted in self defense when he fought with Greig Stacey, 24, who reportedly was trespassing on property owned by Frank's father, Carl A. Frank, of 259 Castro Street.

Testimony by the elder Frank during the preliminary hearing indicated Stacey tried to choke him, spit at him three times and threw a rock at his wife.

The elder Frank also testified Stacey struck his son in the head with a rock just before the younger Frank pulled a pen knife to defend himself.

Air Force Jet Crashes; 24 Die

MADRID (UPI) — A U.S. Air Force C141 jet transport plane crashed and burst into flames last night on a landing approach to the huge Torrejon airbase near Madrid. The Air Force said today 24 of the 25 persons aboard died instantly in the fiery explosion.

An Air Force spokesman said the sole survivor suffered a fractured leg and cuts, but had a good chance of living. It identified him as the plane's navigator, 1st Lt. William H. Ray, 25, of McGuire Air Force Base, N.J.

The giant four-engine Starlifter cargo jet carried a crew of eight and 17 passengers. According to the Spanish news agency Cifra, the dead included three women and witnesses reported that there also were children aboard.

The news agency said the passengers were families of U.S. servicemen living abroad and that they were on their way home.

The Military Airlift Command (MAC) jet was en route from Athens to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey, with a stop planned at the giant Torrejon airbase 40 miles from Madrid.

The plane went down in a grove of oak trees between the villages of Huera and Pastrana, 22 miles from the Torrejon base, which is operated jointly by the air forces of Spain and the United States.

The Spanish Aviation Ministry said the plane "lost contact with the Torrejon control tower at 10:50 p.m. ... and crashed near Hueva, bursting into flames on impact."

Witnesses said there was an explosion and reported wreckage strewn over a mile wide section of land. Spanish police sealed off the crash site.

Air Force sources said a U.S. F-4 Phantom jet fighter pilot flew over the stricken plane just before it went down for what was described as an emergency landing.

"It seemed to land all right, but then bounced up and broke up, bursting into flames," the pilot was quoted as saying.

Spanish news reports said the survivor was rescued from the wreckage of the plane's nose by villagers who arrived on the scene.

"He was apparently ejected from the aircraft on impact and suffered multiple fractures of the left leg and multiple contusions," the Air Force said. "He is listed as being in relatively stable condition and is expected to recover."

He was rushed to a Spanish hospital at the nearby town of Guadalajara, then transferred to the base hospital at Torrejon.

The Air Force said in a statement that the last crash involving MAC that resulted in fatalities to passengers occurred in 1965, and since then MAC aircraft have flown more than 6.6 million hours without a passenger fatality.

The cause of the accident has not been determined, but a board of Air Force officers will be convened to investigate, the statement said.

Threats On Susan Agnew Cuts Hospital Ship Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's daughter Susan has cut short a voyage on the hospital ship USS Hope because of threats on her life made in Brazil, an Agnew spokesman said today.

Marsh Thomson, the vice president's press secretary, said the family made "a judgment...not to take any further risks" and arranged to have the 26-year-old Miss Agnew return to Washington.

Miss Agnew, who sailed aboard the Hope in February with the intention of returning home in December, worked with audio-visual education equipment.

"There had been threats on her life down there (Brazil) and although the Brazilians thought they could take care of the situation and the vice president has expressed confidence in the ability of the Brazilian government to provide necessary security, as a father he wanted to take the prudent measure of bringing her closer to home," Thomson said.

The Washington Star-News reported today that Dr. William Walsh, who founded Project Hope under which the ship sails on humanitaran missions, said both he and Miss Agnew had received several threats — including one last week that could not be ignored.

"This was a threat which we felt was more serious and American intelligence agreed with Brazilian intelligence," Walsh told the Star-News.

"The Brazilians felt she was worth a great deal in ransom in exchange for political prisoners and their responsibility was greater than ours," said Walsh.

Miss Agnew told the Star-News that her return had nothing to do with the investigation of her father in connection with alleged kickbacks from Maryland contractors. On that score she was quoted as saying: "... I don't feel any cause for concern because I know my father is an honest person."

The newspaper also quoted Walsh as saying that the U. S. Secret Service and Brazilian authorities provided protection for Miss Agnew, whose job was to make video tapes of surgical operations to be used in teaching American medical techniques to foreign doctors and technicians.

Testimony Ends In Gainesville Conspiracy Trial

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Testimony ended in the conspiracy trial of eight members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW) yesterday and one defendant predicted "at least a hung jury."

"I'm apprehensive, but I would be apprehensive if we had put on a month-long case," said the former VVAW national coordinator, Peter P. Mahoney.

Mahoney, 24, a former seminary student from New Orleans, faces a possible five-year prison sentence if found guilty of conspiring with other VVAW members to disrupt the 1972 Republican National Convention at Miami Beach with riots and armed raids on police and communications targets.

60 Are Seeking Ranger Post

Sixty persons have applied for the post of San Rafael park ranger, parks and recreation director Andrew J. Snyder said yesterday.

A panel of police, fire and parks department representatives will convene within two weeks to interview applicants, Snyder said.

The ranger will be charged with patrolling city open space lands, which have been plagued by firebugs, transients, horses, vandals and motorcyclists, he said.

Belvedere Man Named To Bay Control Group

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has appointed two members of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission and designated a new vice chairman.

Reagan yesterday named Marcella Jacobson, a Hillsborough Republican, to replace Melvin B. Lane and Thomas S. Price, a Belvedere city councilman and Republican, to succeed Melville Owen. Both Lane and Owen resigned. The appointments require Senate confirmation.

Selected as vice chairman of the commission was Bessie H. Watkins of Portola Valley. Mrs. Watkins, a Republican, has served on the commission since 1967 and replaces William D. Evers of San Francisco, who will continue to serve as a member and chairman of the commission.

Commission members receive expenses.

Pentagon Fights Leaky Basement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon, now 30 years old, is suffering from that householders complaint, a leaky basement.

Government officials are trying to cure that problem and at the same time beautify the Pentagon's front lawn at a cost of about $59,000. Part of the beautification has involved building rolling hills by dumping dirt over the acre of lawn in front of the building.

After that workers placed sod over the hills at a cost of about $19,000. Large chunks of the sod, which was laid down about two weeks ago, have since died.

The Pentagon said the Army and Navy are paying about half the cost and the General Services Administration, which runs government buildings, is paying the remainder.

Threats On Susan Agnew Cuts Hospital Ship Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's daughter Susan has cut short a voyage on the hospital ship USS Hope because of threats on her life made in Brazil, an Agnew spokesman said today.

Marsh Thomson, the vice president's press secretary, said the family made "a judgment...not to take any further risks" and arranged to have the 26-year-old Miss Agnew return to Washington.

Miss Agnew, who sailed aboard the Hope in February with the intention of returning home in December, worked with audio-visual education equipment.

"There had been threats on her life down there (Brazil) and although the Brazilians thought they could take care of the situation and the vice president has expressed confidence in the ability of the Brazilian government to provide necessary security, as a father he wanted to take the prudent measure of bringing her closer to home," Thomson said.

The Washington Star-News reported today that Dr. William Walsh, who founded Project Hope under which the ship sails on humanitaran missions, said both he and Miss Agnew had received several threats — including one last week that could not be ignored.

"This was a threat which we felt was more serious and American intelligence agreed with Brazilian intelligence," Walsh told the Star-News.

"The Brazilians felt she was worth a great deal in ransom in exchange for political prisoners and their responsibility was greater than ours," said Walsh.

Miss Agnew told the Star-News that her return had nothing to do with the investigation of her father in connection with alleged kickbacks from Maryland contractors. On that score she was quoted as saying: "... I don't feel any cause for concern because I know my father is an honest person."

The newspaper also quoted Walsh as saying that the U. S. Secret Service and Brazilian authorities provided protection for Miss Agnew, whose job was to make video tapes of surgical operations to be used in teaching American medical techniques to foreign doctors and technicians.

Testimony Ends In Gainesville Conspiracy Trial

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Testimony ended in the conspiracy trial of eight members of the Vietnam Veterans Against the War (VVAW) yesterday and one defendant predicted "at least a hung jury."

"I'm apprehensive, but I would be apprehensive if we had put on a month-long case," said the former VVAW national coordinator, Peter P. Mahoney.

Mahoney, 24, a former seminary student from New Orleans, faces a possible five-year prison sentence if found guilty of conspiring with other VVAW members to disrupt the 1972 Republican National Convention at Miami Beach with riots and armed raids on police and communications targets.

Arab Terrorist Payoffs By Four Airlines Claimed

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Jerusalem Post said today four European airlines may have paid Arab guerrillas millions of dollars in protection money to prevent hijackings on their planes.

"The airlines have made a purely commercial calculation that it is cheaper to pay the terrorists for immunity than to employ effective, expensive security measures," the Israeli newspaper said.

Elsewhere, diplomatic sources in Cairo said today King Faisal of oil-rich Saudi Arabia has pledged unlimited money to bolster Egypt in the confrontation with Israel. And U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, who arrived in Beirut, Lebanon, yesterday on a Middle East tour, called the Middle East crisis "one of the most dangerous problems in the world."

"It is our duty to help solve this problem," Waldheim said," but I cannot perform miracles."

The Post, an authoritative English language paper, said "at least four European airlines are suspected of paying either regular or one-time payments to Arab terrorist organizations in return for immunity from hijacking." It added that the protection money was believed to run "into millions of dollars."

The Post quoted "unimpeachable sources" in the report and said it could not get official confirmation. It did not name the airlines, but said all four fly to Israel.

Five European airlines—Air France, Swissair, Austrian Airways, Lufthansa and Sabena—have been targets of Arab guerrillas. All European airlines with the exception of Iberia fly to Israel.

The sources in Cairo said Faisal gave the promise of cash to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, who toured the Persian Gulf countries over the weekend seeking financial and moral support for his policies.

Saudi Arabia has maintained a generally conservative voice in Arab affairs and maintains close ties with the United States, the largest customer for its vast resources of petroleum.

Waldheim, meeting today with Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh, denied diplomatic reports from Syria saying that he unveiled new peace proposals in Damascus.

"The purpose of my visit is to establish personal contacts with the government," Waldheim said of his Middle East tour, "and establish viewpoints on the Middle East crisis."

Back Ailment

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., entered the Baptist Medical Center yesterday to have tests performed for his chronic back ailment.

Man Denies A Charge Of Assault

Russell Kenneth Young pleaded innocent yesterday to knifing Larry Freeman of Bolinas during an argument Friday over what Young was carrying in a box.

Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court set a preliminary hearing for Tuesday after Young, 30, of no known address, denied a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Young is accused of stabbing Freeman when the latter, visiting a house at 6 Park Street, Bolinas, went to investigate what he thought might be a burglary, according to Marin sheriff's deputies.

Freeman saw Young carrying a box and asked to see what was in it, but Young refused and stabbed Freeman during the ensuing argument, deputies said.

Young was arrested a short time later at a nearby residence.

Charge Eyed In Derby Cheating

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — District Attorney Alex Hunter said yesterday he may file charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor against a man who admitted he helped his nephew cheat to win the National Soap Box Derby.

Robert Lange Sr., whose son Robert Jr., 19, won the national derby in 1972, said he convinced the 1973 winner, James Gronen, 14, to install an electromagnet in his car to get a better start in the race.

Gronen was disqualified two days after he won the Aug. 18 finals held in Akron, Ohio.

Hunter said he and Summit County, Ohio, prosecutor Stephen Gabalac would decide if they would each file their own charges in their own states or whether one joint charge would be filed in Boulder.

"We're on the way to filing charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor," Hunter said.

Lange issued a five-page statement yesterday in which he said cheating in soap box derbies is almost mandatory if a youngster has any hopes of winning.

"Anyone participating in derby races with eyes and ears open would soon learn that in order to get cars to Akron for the all-American derby and to seek to win the all-American derby the derby rules have been consistently and notoriously violated by some participants without censure or disqualification," Lange said.

"I determined that (Gronen) should build and install a magnetic nose so as to be competitive with the professional cars he would be racing against," Lange said.

He said he knew when he made the decision that the electromagnet violated Derby rules and "I consider it now to be serious mistake in judgment."

Kissinger Will Stay At Home

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — The globetrotting Henry Kissinger is going to stay at home while he waits to be confirmed as secretary of state. Kissinger will not make overseas trips pending his confirmation by the Senate, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren said yesterday. Warren said Kissinger is busy preparing for his assumption of command of the State Department.

Kissinger's planned trip to Brussels to address a NATO meeting Sept. 10 has been canceled, Warren said.

Arab Terrorist Payoffs By Four Airlines Claimed

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Jerusalem Post said today four European airlines may have paid Arab guerrillas millions of dollars in protection money to prevent hijackings on their planes.

"The airlines have made a purely commercial calculation that it is cheaper to pay the terrorists for immunity than to employ effective, expensive security measures," the Israeli newspaper said.

Elsewhere, diplomatic sources in Cairo said today King Faisal of oil-rich Saudi Arabia has pledged unlimited money to bolster Egypt in the confrontation with Israel. And U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, who arrived in Beirut, Lebanon, yesterday on a Middle East tour, called the Middle East crisis "one of the most dangerous problems in the world."

"It is our duty to help solve this problem," Waldheim said, "but I cannot perform miracles."

The Post, an authoritative English language paper, said "at least four European airlines are suspected of paying either regular or one-time payments to Arab terrorist organizations in return for immunity from hijacking." It added that the protection money was believed to run "into millions of dollars."

The Post quoted "unimpeachable sources" in the report and said it could not get official confirmation. It did not name the airlines, but said all four fly to Israel.

Five European airlines—Air France, Swissair, Austrian Airways, Lufthansa and Sabena—have been targets of Arab guerrillas. All European airlines with the exception of Iberia fly to Israel.

The sources in Cairo said Faisal gave the promise of cash to President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, who toured the Persian Gulf countries over the weekend seeking financial and moral support for his policies.

Saudi Arabia has maintained a generally conservative voice in Arab affairs and maintains close ties with the United States, the largest customer for its vast resources of petroleum.

Waldheim, meeting today with Lebanese President Suleiman Franjieh, denied diplomatic reports from Syria saying that he unveiled new peace proposals in Damascus.

"The purpose of my visit is to establish personal contacts with the government," Waldheim said of his Middle East tour, "and establish viewpoints on the Middle East crisis."

Back Ailment

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., entered the Baptist Medical Center yesterday to have tests performed for his chronic back ailment.

Man Denies A Charge Of Assault

Russell Kenneth Young pleaded innocent yesterday to knifing Larry Freeman of Bolinas during an argument Friday over what Young was carrying in a box.

Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court set a preliminary hearing for Tuesday after Young, 30, of no known address, denied a felony charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Young is accused of stabbing Freeman when the latter, visiting a house at 6 Park Street, Bolinas, went to investigate what he thought might be a burglary, according to Marin sheriff's deputies.

Freeman saw Young carrying a box and asked to see what was in it, but Young refused and stabbed Freeman during the ensuing argument, deputies said.

Young was arrested a short time later at a nearby residence.

Charge Eyed In Derby Cheating

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — District Attorney Alex Hunter said yesterday he may file charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor against a man who admitted he helped his nephew cheat to win the National Soap Box Derby.

Robert Lange Sr., whose son Robert Jr., 19, won the national derby in 1972, said he convinced the 1973 winner, James Gronen, 14, to install an electromagnet in his car to get a better start in the race.

Gronen was disqualified two days after he won the Aug. 18 finals held in Akron, Ohio.

Hunter said he and Summit County, Ohio, prosecutor Stephen Gabalac would decide if they would each file their own charges in their own states or whether one joint charge would be filed in Boulder.

"We're on the way to filing charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor," Hunter said.

Lange issued a five-page statement yesterday in which he said cheating in soap box derbies is almost mandatory if a youngster has any hopes of winning.

"Anyone participating in derby races with eyes and ears open would soon learn that in order to get cars to Akron for the all-American derby and to seek to win the all-American derby the derby rules have been consistently and notoriously violated by some participants without censure or disqualification," Lange said.

"I determined that (Gronen) should build and install a magnetic nose so as to be competitive with the professional cars he would be racing against," Lange said.

He said he knew when he made the decision that the electromagnet violated Derby rules and "I consider it now to be serious mistake in judgment."

Kissinger Will Stay At Home

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — The globetrotting Henry Kissinger is going to stay at home while he waits to be confirmed as secretary of state. Kissinger will not make overseas trips pending his confirmation by the Senate, Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald Warren said yesterday. Warren said Kissinger is busy preparing for his assumption of command of the State Department.

Kissinger's planned trip to Brussels to address a NATO meeting Sept. 10 has been canceled, Warren said.

Loma Alta School Hiring Announced

The hirings of two instructional aides and a psychology intern was approved last night by the Marin Board of Education to strengthen its program for educationally handicapped children at Loma Alta School.

Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent, said students at the Children's Treatment Center at Marin County Juvenile Hall have been classified as educationally handicapped for the first time and the school system has become eligible for additional state allowances.

The Marin County Grand Jury last March, while praising teachers at Loma Alta for "their tenacity and energy," complained of shortcomings in the overall educational program, asserting that some juvenile hall inmates were not being allowed to attend classes at all.

The county is to receive two class allowances of $10,440 each which Spain said will also allow testing and identification of educationally handicapped in addition to the hiring of additional personnel.

The instructional aides will split $7,000 in the $20,880 budget and the intern will receive $4,000.

The board also adopted a plan which will allow students to receive classroom credit for holding jobs which point toward their chosen career.

Mrs. Theodora Faiola, director of regional occupational program, said the new program will be self-supporting on returns from the average daily attendance.

Students 16 years old who have completed a regional occupational program course and have a vocational goal which will be furthered by the work experience will be eligible for the new program.

The education board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the county office to discuss the district's academic contract with San Quentin Prison and the employment of personnel.

Blast Kills 53

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — An explosion ripped through an illegal firecracker plant near Jakarta yesterday, killing 53 persons, most of them women, authorities said today.

Ex-Quentin Inmate Held In Slaying

SAN PABLO (AP) — A former San Quentin prison inmate has been arrested for investigation of murder in the death of another ex-convict whose bullet-riddled body was found in a car trunk, police said.

Acting on an anonymous tip Tuesday, police took James (Shorty) Schreckengost, 35, into custody in connection with the shooting of Greg Rice, 28, of Richmond.

Rice's wife had reported her husband missing and on Friday, Richmond police received a telephone tip that he had been shot and left in his car. The caller did not give the auto's location and officers didn't find it until Monday, located on a Richmond residential street.

Schreckengost was released from prison on Jan. 18, 1972. Rice was paroled last March 16.

Police Sgt. Ken Miller said Schreckengost had been arrested Friday for investigation of carrying two concealed weapons and later released on bail. Miller declined to say whether the guns were linked to Rice's death.

Plan Map, Text Win Approval In Larkspur

The proposed map and text for the Larkspur general plan was approved last night by the city's planning commission after seven prior sessions of hearing from citizens and groups concerned with the plan.

John A. Roberto, planning director, said the commission approved the plan and sent it on to the city council with a recommendation for further public hearing before the council.

The plan covers Larkspur and its sphere of influence extending to the south side of San Quentin peninsula, unincorporated Greenbrae and parts of Kentfield.

Admiral Binford Is Dead At 77

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Vice Adm. Thomas H. Binford, 77, USN, Ret., who won numerous citations including the Navy Cross, the Silver Star medal and the Legion of Merit award, died Monday in Balboa Naval Hospital.

Binford, a veteran of three wars, assumed command in March, 1941, of Destroyer Division 58 and participated in the battle of the Java Sea, the first major surface battle of World War II.

During the last year of the war, he received a gold star in lieu of a second Legion of Merit award for duty as commander of the cruiser Miami.

Smallpox Dead In The Americas

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Smallpox has been declared officially dead in the Western Hemisphere.

A five-man commission concluded last week that Brazil, the last stronghold of smallpox in the Americas, has eradicated the disease.

Exxon Denies Conspiracy; To Supply Bus Gas

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Exxon Co. has denied a conspiracy charge by the NAACP and promised to furnish extra gasoline to run court-ordered school buses while supplies are good.

Memphis said it could not furnish 80,000 gallons of fuel a month for busing nearly 27,000 students because of an earlier balk by Exxon at going beyond its contract limits with Memphis. U.S. District Judge Robert McRae Jr. called a hearing today to hash out the city's claim.

Exxon earlier contracted to sell 5 million gallons of gas to the city for fiscal 1973-74 and refused to go beyond the figure until it relented somewhat in a 10-page court brief yesterday.

The club now has $35,500, in grants, but still needs about $25,000 for furnishings and equipment, he said.

Loma Alta School Hiring Announced

The hirings of two instructional aides and a psychology intern was approved last night by the Marin Board of Education to strengthen its program for educationally handicapped children at Loma Alta School.

Robert E. Spain, assistant superintendent, said students at the Children's Treatment Center at Marin County Juvenile Hall have been classified as educationally handicapped for the first time and the school system has become eligible for additional state allowances.

The Marin County Grand Jury last March, while praising teachers at Loma Alta for "their tenacity and energy," complained of shortcomings in the overall educational program, asserting that some juvenile hall inmates were not being allowed to attend classes at all.

The county is to receive two class allowances of $10,440 each which Spain said will also allow testing and identification of educationally handicapped in addition to the hiring of additional personnel.

The instructional aides will split $7,000 in the $20,880 budget and the intern will receive $4,000.

The board also adopted a plan which will allow students to receive classroom credit for holding jobs which point toward their chosen career.

Mrs. Theodora Faiola, director of regional occupational program, said the new program will be self-supporting on returns from the average daily attendance.

Students 16 years old who have completed a regional occupational program course and have a vocational goal which will be furthered by the work experience will be eligible for the new program.

The education board will hold a special meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the county office to discuss the district's academic contract with San Quentin Prison and the employment of personnel.

Ex-Quentin Inmate Held In Slaying

SAN PABLO (AP) — A former San Quentin prison inmate has been arrested for investigation of murder in the death of another ex-convict whose bullet-riddled body was found in a car trunk, police said.

Acting on an anonymous tip Tuesday, police took James (Shorty) Schreckengost, 35, into custody in connection with the shooting of Greg Rice, 28, of Richmond.

Rice's wife had reported her husband missing and on Friday, Richmond police received a telephone tip that he had been shot and left in his car. The caller did not give the auto's location and officers didn't find it until Monday, located on a Richmond residential street.

Schreckengost was released from prison on Jan. 18, 1972. Rice was paroled last March 16.

Police Sgt. Ken Miller said Schreckengost had been arrested Friday for investigation of carrying two concealed weapons and later released on bail. Miller declined to say whether the guns were linked to Rice's death.

The plan covers Larkspur and its sphere of influence extending to the south side of San Quentin peninsula, unincorporated Greenbrae and parts of Kentfield.

Exxon Denies Conspiracy; To Supply Bus Gas

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Exxon Co. has denied a conspiracy charge by the NAACP and promised to furnish extra gasoline to run court-ordered school buses while supplies are good.

Memphis said it could not furnish 80,000 gallons of fuel a month for busing nearly 27,000 students because of an earlier balk by Exxon at going beyond its contract limits with Memphis. U.S. District Judge Robert McRae Jr. called a hearing today to hash out the city's claim.

Uncle Sam helps us prove that at Mayfair last week food cost less than at 9 other top chains.

Again last week, we compared food prices with the major supermarkets in this area.

"Specials", "total discount", and most other kinds of prices were compared. In this survey of August 17-18, Mayfair's overall food prices were lower than nine other top supermarket chains'.

To try to be fair, the comparisons were again with Uncle Sam's list, the same full list of items that the U.S. Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics, uses every month to measure food prices as part of the cost of living.

These comparisons show you could have saved from $.25 to $7.92 on the same $50 worth of basic foods in this list.

With the high cost of living these days, really, can you afford not to buy your food at Mayfair?

BUTTER BAKED chicken legs and a skillet zucchini casserole are two summer dishes to be eaten indoors or out. A salad is the accompaniment.

LATE SUMMER MENU

Economize With Baked Chicken Legs

For a late summer menu to enjoy indoors or out, butter baked chicken legs and a skillet zucchini casserole and salad make a most enjoyable repast. The butter herb sauce adds flavor to the chicken as it bakes in a hot oven.

A cube of butter, a green onion and the juice of half a lemon make the base for the sauce. Then add thyme and tarragon boldly, as here, or lightly if you prefer less robust seasonings.

The special vegetable dish is made by cutting zucchini into thin diagonal slices and cooking it with onion wedges and butter in a skillet. No additional moisture is added and the vegetables cook in their own juices. Watch this fairly closely giving it a shake now and then so the vegetables don't stick or burn. When they are barely tender, sprinkle generously with cubed Monterey Jack cheese and rest under the broiler until cheese is melted. A most delicious way to serve these favorite western vegetables.

Tossed green salad becomes very special when you toss it with a light oil and vinegar dressing with tiny cubes of Monterey Jack cheese giving it a protein lift. You can use this same idea with any of the bottled or mix varieties of French dressing. A basic homemade version would be three-quarter cup olive or salad oil, a quarter to one-third cup wine vinegar, salt and a generous grind of black pepper. To this add about half cup small diced Monterey Jack cheese.

BUTTER BAKED CHICKEN LEGS

- 2½ pounds chicken legs
- Salt
- ½ cup butter
- ¼ cup chopped green onion
- ¾ teaspoon thyme, crumbled
- ½ teaspoon tarragon, crumbled
- ½ teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Arrange chicken legs in single layer in baking pan. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Heat butter with onion, thyme, tarragon, garlic salt and lemon juice. Pour evenly over chicken. A SAVORY combination of mushrooms, tomatoes and onion slices tossed with a well-seasoned dressing is this Refreshing Mushroom Salad.

Mushrooms Now Enjoy A Major Role; Try This Tasty Salad

Some of our most delectable foods owe their appealing flavor to the action of various fungi: Bread, made light and fragrant by yeast which is a fungus. Cheeses, such as camembert, roquefort and stilton which owe their lusty goodness to still other types of fungi. Wines of many kinds and beer; the vinegar which gives piquancy to our salad dressings. These are all microscopic.

Visible are the white or golden cream mushrooms which are grown with the most meticulous care by specialists. While mushrooms of one kind or another have been highly esteemed in the past, it is only within the last three decades that mushroom culture has become an exact science.

There are countless ways of using mushrooms. Fresh or canned, they give flavor and texture to meat, poultry and seafood dishes. Cheese and eggs, too, are more enjoyable if seasoned with mushrooms. Coarsely chopped, mushrooms give elegant flavor to green beans, tomatoes, peas, celery, onions and almost any other vegetable. Saute or broil sliced mushrooms and serve on buttered toast as an ideal lunch dish.

Try the combination of mushrooms, tomatoes and paper-thin onion slices in a refreshing mushroom salad and when you're looking for a perfect go-along for meats, fowl or fish, try the marinated mushrooms and green beans.

REFRESHING MUSHROOM SALAD

- ½ pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can (6 to 8 oz.) sliced mushrooms
- ½ cup salad oil
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
- 2 cups sliced tomatoes
- 1 cup thinly sliced onions

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms; place in a serving bowl. Combine oil, vinegar, parsley, salt, sugar, garlic powder and black pepper; mix well. Pour over mushrooms; toss well to coat. Add tomatoes and onions; toss lightly. Cover and refrigerate for about one hour before serving. Perfect for picnics if packed in an insulated container.

Serves six.

Note: One bottle (8 oz.) Italian salad dressing may be substituted for the oil, vinegar, salt, sugar, garlic powder and black pepper.

MARINATED MUSHROOMS AND GREEN BEANS

- 1 pound medium-size fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) whole mushrooms
- 1 pound tender green beans or 2 packages (9 oz. each) frozen cut green beans

Add green beans; return to boiling point. Reduce heat; cover and simmer for five to 8 minutes or until almost tender. Add reserved mushrooms and basil leaves. Cover and simmer for two minutes.

Remove from heat and cool. Cover and refrigerate for at least two hours before serving.

Remember Not To Overload Freezer

Dried Egg Mixes Ideal For Camping

Next time you hit the road with your camper or head for your favorite wilderness spot on foot, take along some dried egg mixes. You'll find they are lightweight, easy to prepare, easy to store, and are both tasty and nutritious.

Dried egg mixes, or blends, are readily available around the country on sporting goods and other specialty store shelves. They come conveniently packed in moisture-resistant, leak-proof plastic bags that yield either two or four servings.

Most popular egg items are eggs with butter, scrambled eggs with imitation bacon, and two omelets — cheese and Mexican. Easy-to-follow preparation instructions are found on each package.

In some market areas, a multipurpose dried egg mix that is suitable for many uses is available. This product can be used in place of fresh whole eggs in cookies, cakes, breads, and other baked products. It is also excellent for scrambling, omelets, and sauces. When reconstituted, a six-ounce package of this mix will replace one dozen whole eggs.

Dried egg solids, the key ingredient found in the sophisticated blends now being marketed, are prepared by removing 95 per cent or more of the water from fresh eggs.

All egg products in the blends are produced from wholesome eggs in plants under the continuous inspection of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This is required under the Egg Products Inspection Act.

Try Peach Pudding For Next Treat

PEACH PUDDING WITH CUSTARD SAUCE

- ⅓ cup sugar
- 3 tablespoons corn starch
- ¾ cup water
- 2 cups peeled fresh peaches, cut into wedges

Mix together sugar and corn starch in top of double boiler. Add water and stir into corn starch mixture. Then add peaches. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Cover and cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Chill. If a softer pudding is desired, stir in a little lemon juice.

Makes four servings. Serve with custard sauce.

Custard Sauce: Mix together in a double boiler top, one-quarter cup sugar, one tablespoon corn starch and one-quarter teaspoon salt. Then mix in two egg yolks or one whole egg, slightly beaten. With a spoon, gradually blend in two cups of milk. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until mixture is slightly thickened, about five minutes. Do not overcook.

Remove from heat. Cool. Mix in vanilla. Chill. Makes two cups.

Demand For Meat Called Unnecessary

By PHYLLIS HANES
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

HONOLULU — Stuck for a steak in the meat shortage? Take heart, nutritionally you probably don't need it.

A leading world food expert calls the demand for meat in countries like the United States extravagant and unnecessary.

Not only does it lead to needless dependence on meat, he says, but it also distorts the world food supply encouraging overproduction in meat in prosperous countries at the expense of cereal grains.

"Many people seem to think that if they don't have meat they won't have the protein they need. But this is not true," explains Max Milner, of the United Nations protein advisory group. He told a symposium here to consider the world protein crisis that "there is no evidence that meat is necessary."

DR. MILNER blamed the growing demand for animal protein in affluent countries for adding to world food shortages. In fact, he twinned it with overpopulation in other countries as one of the two main food-shortage culprits.

"This demand exists not only for meat in international trade," he said, "but also in the resources needed to produce the animal protein, namely feed grains such as corn, and protein concentrates derived mainly from soybeans.

"In pooer countries where cereal grains are the primary foods, the per capita consumption of protein averages about 400 pounds a year. This grain is consumed as such, with minimul processing and certainly little if any conversion to animal protein.

"In the affluent countries, on the other hand, the per capita grain consumption is about 2,000 pounds per year, of which only about 150 pounds is used for foods such as bread, macaroni, and breakfast cereals. The cereals. The balance provides the animal foods we eat — meat, poultry, eggs and milk.

"A ROUGH calculation indicates that this diet is supported in the United States and Canada by the utilization of 11,000 calories per day per person in terms of grain."

In other words, he says, in poor countries people may suffer greatly from lack of basic foods such as cereal and grains, while the affluent countries are feeding it to livestock.

Fruits and vegetables, if properly frozen, will keep a year without losing quality.

Most vegetables that need to be cooked will freeze well. But cucumbers, lettuce, radishes and tomatoes lose their crispness when frozen and become limp.

BUTTER BAKED chicken legs and a skillet zucchini casserole are two summer dishes to be eaten indoors or out. A salad is the accompaniment.

LATE SUMMER MENU

Economize With Baked Chicken Legs

For a late summer menu to enjoy indoors or out, butter baked chicken legs and a skillet zucchini casserole and salad make a most enjoyable repast. The butter herb sauce adds flavor to the chicken as it bakes in a hot oven.

A cube of butter, a green onion and the juice of half a lemon make the base for the sauce. Then add thyme and tarragon boldly, as here, or lightly if you prefer less robust seasonings.

The special vegetable dish is made by cutting zucchini into thin diagonal slices and cooking it with onion wedges and butter in a skillet. No additional moisture is added and the vegetables cook in their own juices. Watch this fairly closely giving it a shake now and then so the vegetables don't stick or burn. When they are barely tender, sprinkle generously with cubed Monterey Jack cheese and rest under the broiler until cheese is melted. A most delicious way to serve these favorite western vegetables.

Tossed green salad becomes very special when you toss it with a light oil and vinegar dressing with tiny cubes of Monterey Jack cheese giving it a protein lift. You can use this same idea with any of the bottled or mix varieties of French dressing. A basic homemade version would be three-quarter cup olive or salad oil, a quarter to one-third cup wine vinegar, salt and a generous grind of black pepper. To this add about half cup small diced Monterey Jack cheese.

BUTTER BAKED CHICKEN LEGS

- 2½ pounds chicken legs
- Salt
- ½ cup butter
- ¼ cup chopped green onion
- ¾ teaspoon thyme, crumbled
- ½ teaspoon tarragon, crumbled
- ½ teaspoon garlic salt
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Arrange chicken legs in single layer in baking pan. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Heat butter with onion, thyme, tarragon, garlic salt and lemon juice. Pour evenly over chicken. Bake in 400-degree oven about 40 minutes, or until chicken is tender and skin is crisp and golden. Baste now and then with pan juices while baking.

Garden fresh vegetables are at the peak of their goodness now. It's time to freeze favorites for mid-winter enjoyment.

Freezing is among the simplest ways to preserve fresh vegetables at their best flavor, say home economists. After washing and trimming them, first blanch them in boiling water or in steam. Many vegetables, particularly starchy ones such as corn and peas, benefit from steam blanching. To steam blanch, bring water to a boil in a large pot, put the vegetables into a wire basket or steamer container above the water level, and cover tightly.

Add Nutmeg

Pack Tightly

Food should be packed tightly for freezing, but not too tightly. It expands as it freezes.

Blanching takes from two to ten minutes; consult a reliable cookbook for timing different vegetables.

Chill the blanched food at once in ice water; drain and dry before packing. Fill freezer containers close to the top and seal so that they are airtight. If the freezer maintains a temperature of zero or less, the frozen food will keep six to nine months. If the temperature is higher, use the food within one or two months.

So. American Variety For A Meat Loaf

New ways with ground beef are always most welcome. Here is still another meat loaf — a well seasoned one inspired by the cooking of our South American neighbors. The baked loaf is covered with a fluffy topping and returned to the oven to brown.

CROWN BEEF LOAF

3 eggs
1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup corn starch
½ cup catchup
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons mustard with horseradish
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup real mayonnaise

Separate two eggs, reserving whites. Slightly beat the two yolks and one whole egg. Mix together yolk mixture, beef, bread crumbs, corn starch, catchup, green pepper, onion, mustard with horseradish and salt.

Place in 11¾ x 7½ x 1¾-inch baking dish; shape into loaf. Bake in a 350 degree oven 30 minutes. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Fold in mayonnaise. Cover the baked meat loaf with topping. Return to oven for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes six servings.

Tossed Salad Is Refreshing

Cool as a cucumber is more than a cliche; it's a delicious idea, when you slice the cucumber transparently thin and marinate it, along with some shrimp, to toss in a salad with sweet slices of California Bartlett pears. This year's crop of California Bartletts is an exceptionally good one.

As a salad, pears satisfy a summer appetite and pair beautifully with almost any meat, poultry or fish. With the shrimp and cucumber combination, sweet juicy pears take on an oriental air which you can heighten by serving the salad with chopsticks

PEAR SEAFOOD SALAD

1 cucumber
1 cup cooked shrimp
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
¼ cup tarragon flavor flavor vinegar
2 teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 fresh California Bartlett pears
Crisp watercress

Pare and thinly slice cucumber; devein shrimp. Combine with onion and pimiento. Shake vinegar, sugar and salt together in covered jar. Pour over shrimp mixture; chill. Pare, halve, core and slice pears. Add to chilled ingredients and toss lightly. Serve on watercress.

FREEZING IS among the simplest ways to preserve fresh vegetables at peak flavor for the months ahead. Steam blanching benefits preservation and nutrients. An all purpose cooker provides an easy method for steam blanching vegetables for freezing. Lower the dark container (top left) containing the vegetables into the cooker which contains an inch of boiling water.

Garden fresh vegetables are at the peak of their goodness now. It's time to freeze favorites for mid-winter enjoyment.

Freezing is among the simplest ways to preserve fresh vegetables at their best flavor, say home economists. After washing and trimming them, first blanch them in boiling water or in steam. Many vegetables, particularly starchy ones such as corn and peas, benefit from steam blanching. To steam blanch, bring water to a boil in a large pot, put the vegetables into a wire basket or steamer container above the water level, and cover tightly.

Add Nutmeg

Pack Tightly

Food should be packed tightly for freezing, but not too tightly. It expands as it freezes.

Chill the blanched food at once in ice water; drain and dry before packing. Fill freezer containers close to the top and seal so that they are airtight. If the freezer maintains a temperature of zero or less, the frozen food will keep six to nine months. If the temperature is higher, use the food within one or two months.

So. American Variety For A Meat Loaf

New ways with ground beef are always most welcome. Here is still another meat loaf — a well seasoned one inspired by the cooking of our South American neighbors. The baked loaf is covered with a fluffy topping and returned to the oven to brown.

CROWN BEEF LOAF

3 eggs
1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup soft bread crumbs
½ cup corn starch
½ cup catchup
3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons mustard with horseradish
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup real mayonnaise

Separate two eggs, reserving whites. Slightly beat the two yolks and one whole egg. Mix together yolk mixture, beef, bread crumbs, corn starch, catchup, green pepper, onion, mustard with horseradish and salt.

Place in 11¾ x 7½ x 1¾-inch baking dish; shape into loaf. Bake in a 350 degree oven 30 minutes. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until soft peaks form when beater is raised. Fold in mayonnaise. Cover the baked meat loaf with topping. Return to oven for 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Makes six servings.

Tossed Salad Is Refreshing

Cool as a cucumber is more than a cliche; it's a delicious idea, when you slice the cucumber transparently thin and marinate it, along with some shrimp, to toss in a salad with sweet slices of California Bartlett pears. This year's crop of California Bartletts is an exceptionally good one.

As a salad, pears satisfy a summer appetite and pair beautifully with almost any meat, poultry or fish. With the shrimp and cucumber combination, sweet juicy pears take on an oriental air which you can heighten by serving the salad with chopsticks

1 cucumber
1 cup cooked shrimp
2 tablespoons sliced green onion
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
¼ cup tarragon flavor flavor vinegar
2 teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 fresh California Bartlett pears
Crisp watercress

Pare and thinly slice cucumber; devein shrimp. Combine with onion and pimiento. Shake vinegar, sugar and salt together in covered jar. Pour over shrimp mixture; chill. Pare, halve, core and slice pears. Add to chilled ingredients and toss lightly. Serve on watercress.

Makes 4 or 5 servings.

30-Year Sailing Veteran Is Ready To Tackle Baja Cruise

By PAT BALMES

Eleanor Carlson is readying her Columbia 29 at Paradise Harbor Yacht Club in Tiburon to leave in October for a year's cruise to Baja California, single handed if necessary.

"If it takes single handing the Sandpiper, I will, but people want to go along from here to Monterey and from Monterey down there. Once I get to La Paz I don't care if I get somebody to help.

"I am competent. I take my time. It's the right time of year. People who have trouble are those who have to meet a time schedule, or insist on going to this or that place," Mrs. Carlson explained.

The 42-year-old orthopedic technician from Lake Tahoe has sailed for 30 years. She also is an instrument pilot and a mountain climber.

"Sailing a boat is not that difficult. I have the advantage of having learned navigation. My former husband taught meteorology in the Navy. I know a little more than most people about weather," she said.

Mrs. Carlson and her former husband, a Navy pilot, owned a plane and "did an awful lot of flying."

A PILOT for 20 years, she ferried airplanes for Tom Peck Aviation, a Piper Aircraft Co. dealer in Monterey, flying to Florida, Pennsylvania and the East Coast to pick up new airplanes and "sick" airplanes to be repaired, she said.

"I learned what is an important bad noise and what is not really worrisome. I would fly to Baja with a mechanic to help bring back sick airplanes," she said.

At that time there were flying physicians, she said. She took some medical supplies on a private basis to a couple of little villages in Baja.

Later she took a vacation in Baja, trailering a 21-foot sailboat with her Toyota. Her guests had cancelled, so Mrs. Carlson single-handed the boat in the Gulf of California.

Drawing on what she learned volunteering at Lake Tahoe's drug abuse center, Mrs. Carlson said that "nobody was going to come and take care of me until I could take care of myself. I could not wait for somebody to come with me; it was my vacation."

She had a "terrific" time. She stayed on the boat for two weeks and decided that was the way to go. A child taught her to fish Mexican style and live off the land. She did not want to go home.

"EVERYTHING I have done since was headed in that direction, looking for a boat and arranging my finances," she said.

A 73-year-old visitor advised her not to wait. "You can always work when you are old; but you cannot do this," he said.

So Mrs. Carlson has "retired" for a year at 42. Her employer said she is just on a long vacation, she said.

On the ocean she plans to wear a harness to attach her aboard. She is an expert swimmer, but said she would hate to see her boat go sailing away. She keeps a life jacket out where she can reach it, and if the sea is rough, she wears it.

She trails the mainsheet (rope) to release the sail so it will luff. She experimented in the harbor on an "overboard" drill and failed to pull herself aboard by the mainsheet. So she has a rope ladder that she can pull down.

PLOTTING HER year's cruise to the Gulf of California beside her Columbia 29 at Paradise Harbor Yacht Club in Tiburon, Eleanor Carlson of Lake Tahoe plans to sail out the Golden Gate in October. Mrs. Carlson also is an instrument air pilot and a mountain climber, and is used to single handling her boat.

Mrs. Carlson bought her stable, heavy displacement boat specifically for her heavy weather trip. Built in 1965, it was fleet champion under the name Miwok.

Remarking on her independence, she said that she was an only child, off on her own quite early away from home. She was married at an early age to a husband who was gone more than he was home, she said.

"I do not really like responsibility. It is much easier to depend on someone. Some people do not know how to be alone. You must conquer yourself and your fears of the unknown. The biggest thing is learning to do things by yourself.

Invitations materialize when a person is by herself, Mrs. Carlson found before she was sailing off Baja and more recently in the delta.

In Mexico, she remarked, it is well to get to know someone who is "on the scene." A Mexican friend rowed out to her boat to check on her safety one night when she had not put on her running light.

You get to know people in various ways, she said. In Mexican waters she raised her coffee pot aboard her boat and Mexican fishermen answered, "Si!" The fishermen stayed aboard their boat but accepted her coffee and in exchange gave her leftovers from their Mexican lunches. They showed her how to fish with a beer can, line and sinker.

The next day the fishermen

By PAT BALMES

Eleanor Carlson is readying her Columbia 29 at Paradise Harbor Yacht Club in Tiburon to leave in October for a year's cruise to Baja California, single handed if necessary.

"If it takes single handing the Sandpiper, I will, but people want to go along from here to Monterey and from Monterey down there. Once I get to La Paz I don't care if I get somebody to help.

"I am competent. I take my time. It's the right time of year. People who have trouble are those who have to meet a time schedule, or insist on going to this or that place," Mrs. Carlson explained.

The 42-year-old orthopedic technician from Lake Tahoe has sailed for 30 years. She also is an instrument pilot and a mountain climber.

"Sailing a boat is not that difficult. I have the advantage of having learned navigation. My former husband taught meteorology in the Navy. I know a little more than most people about weather," she said.

Mrs. Carlson and her former husband, a Navy pilot, owned a plane and "did an awful lot of flying."

A PILOT for 20 years, she ferried airplanes for Tom Peck Aviation, a Piper Aircraft Co. dealer in Monterey, flying to Florida, Pennsylvania and the East Coast to pick up new airplanes and "sick" airplanes to be repaired, she said.

"I learned what is an important bad noise and what is not really worrisome. I would fly to Baja with a mechanic to help bring back sick airplanes," she said.

At that time there were flying physicians, she said. She took some medical supplies on a private basis to a couple of little villages in Baja.

Later she took a vacation in Baja, trailering a 21-foot sailboat with her Toyota. Her guests had cancelled, so Mrs. Carlson single-handed the boat in the Gulf of California.

Drawing on what she learned volunteering at Lake Tahoe's drug abuse center, Mrs. Carlson said that "nobody was going to come and take care of me until I could take care of myself. I could not wait for somebody to come with me; it was my vacation."

She had a "terrific" time. She stayed on the boat for two weeks and decided that was the way to go. A child taught her to fish Mexican style and live off the land. She did not want to go home.

"EVERYTHING I have done since was headed in that direction, looking for a boat and arranging my finances," she said.

A 73-year-old visitor advised her not to wait. "You can always work when you are old; but you cannot do this," he said.

So Mrs. Carlson has "retired" for a year at 42. Her employer said she is just on a long vacation, she said.

On the ocean she plans to wear a harness to attach her aboard. She is an expert swimmer, but said she would hate to see her boat go sailing away. She keeps a life jacket out where she can reach it, and if the sea is rough, she wears it.

She trails the mainsheet (rope) to release the sail so it will luff. She experimented in the harbor on an "overboard" drill and failed to pull herself aboard by the mainsheet. So she has a rope ladder that she can pull down.

PLOTTING HER year's cruise to the Gulf of California beside her Columbia 29 at Paradise Harbor Yacht Club in Tiburon, Eleanor Carlson of Lake Tahoe plans to sail out the Golden Gate in October. Mrs. Carlson also is an instrument air pilot and a mountain climber, and is used to single handling her boat.

Mrs. Carlson bought her stable, heavy displacement boat specifically for her heavy weather trip. Built in 1965, it was fleet champion under the name Miwok.

Remarking on her independence, she said that she was an only child, off on her own quite early away from home. She was married at an early age to a husband who was gone more than he was home, she said.

"I do not really like responsibility. It is much easier to depend on someone. Some people do not know how to be alone. You must conquer yourself and your fears of the unknown. The biggest thing is learning to do things by yourself.

Invitations materialize when a person is by herself, Mrs. Carlson found before she was sailing off Baja and more recently in the delta.

In Mexico, she remarked, it is well to get to know someone who is "on the scene." A Mexican friend rowed out to her boat to check on her safety one night when she had not put on her running light.

You get to know people in various ways, she said. In Mexican waters she raised her coffee pot aboard her boat and Mexican fishermen answered, "Si!" The fishermen stayed aboard their boat but accepted her coffee and in exchange gave her leftovers from their Mexican lunches. They showed her how to fish with a beer can, line and sinker.

The next day the fishermen

House Is Full Of Junk That Wife Bought At Garage Sales

DEAR HELEN:

My wife is hooked on garage sales. She pores over the want ads, then travels from one sale to another picking up "bargains." Our garage is full of junk which she says may be valuable antiques. What do you suggest? — OVERRUN HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND:

. . . A garage sale! — H.

NOTE TO BARGAIN HUNTING WIVES: Your chances of finding genuine antiques at garage sales are about on a par with biting on a pearl at an oyster bar. The antique dealers have usually been there first.

DEAR HELEN:

When Sarah started work at our office, she was "the girl nobody noticed." Except me. Call me Professor Higgins, but I took that girl and molded her into a sexy broad — because I saw her possibilities.

But it didn't turn out like Pygmalion. Now that Sarah can have any man she wants, she has dropped me cold. Says I'm not her type, and she doesn't need my "bossing and belittling." Last night she called me an old-fashioned square and said she didn't owe me a thing — she could have made it on her own.

I feel like sending her a bill for a transformation job that took ten months out of my life. I expected to marry the dame!

What do you do when the girl you made (figuratively, not literally) says you're not good enough for her and goes after the boss? — HIGGINS II

DEAR HIGGINS II:

I'd say you should either go into the female remodeling business or else look for a girl you like as is. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My teen-age daughter has always chided me for being "conservative." She says I'm unable to accept change and modern thinking.

But now the shoe is on the other foot. After four years of widowhood, I have fallen in love with a wonderful, intelligent, kind, successful — and beautifully black — man. We are white.

Suddenly my young liberal thinks my actions are scandalous and degrading. Her friends have made it worse by saying bad things about her because of me. They won't see anything but color, ignoring the fine human person simply because he has the "wrong" pigmentation.

Could it be that these "liberated" young people are really hypocrites? — THEY DON'T UNDERSTAND ME

DEAR TDUM:

. . . Not hypocrites — just abstract liberals. Most people — young and old — who champion new ways of thinking, would much rather have someone outside their families put thought into action.

Give your daughter time. If this man is all you say — and she is basically fair — she'll accept him in a little while. And so will most of her friends. — H.

invited her aboard and taught her to fish. Afterward they would stop by and bring her some of their shrimp catch.

In the delta she met people swimming and when she gave first aid to an injured person, she had five invitations to boats for cocktails, she said.

ELEANOR CARLSON sailed the Sandpiper to Paradise Harbor Yacht Club just for a holiday. She was not planning to join, but the members made her feel as though they had known her her whole life, she said, and she joined because "it's nice to have a place to come back to."

A native of Corpus Christi, Tex., where her father in an interior decorator and her mother is a petroleum engineer, she learned to sail in the Gulf of Mexico with the mariner girl scouts. A member all the way through high school, she learned on a "fleet" of donated boats.

She was gradudated from Tulane University at New Orleans, then married, and was a Navy wife for 20 years.

Eleanor Carlson lived in Hawaii and sailed snipes. When she lived in Yokosuka, Japan, she became interested in mountain climbing.

There she taught English to a group that had an active ski club. Lifts are arranged for backpacks, and they climbed for the next two days, sleeping in the snow.

Mrs. Carlson was named the first honorary citizen of Yokosuka for her work in its Sister City program with her home town in Texas.

"I GOT to go places that I would not ordinarily go. Me, just a little Texas fishing village girl. And I still hear from the Japanese," she said.

Pointing out that when you move around you cannot always work in your profession, Mrs. Carlson said that during her Navy years she worked in recreation as director of youth centers or tennis or swimming teacher, and during the 12 years she lived in Monterey, she was a pulmonary physiologist. She was employed by chest surgeon Dr. Verne Chaney in Monterey who is now head of the Tom Dooley Foundation in San Francisco.

She owns a home in Monterey and another at Lake Tahoe. Some time ago she was ski patrol nurse at Hidden Valley. She plans to return to Lake Tahoe in October.

THEN SHE will begin her ocean cruise. She would like to see as much as possible of the coast but she has to stay far enough out to be safe, she said.

Mrs. Carlson plans to visit friends in a leisurely fashion as she puts in at yacht clubs in Monterey, Laguna Beach, Santa Barbara and San Diego.

"With the military you meet people who are all over the place," said the yachtswoman, looking forward to her cruise.

Porcelain, China Go In Dishwasher

Porcelain and bone china may be washed in the dishwashing machine. The glaze protects it and short cycles treat it gently. Many dishwashers even have special china and crystal cycles.

Machine washing also decreases the possibility of breakage, since dishes are handled less than in hand dishwashing.

Marin Will Honor Orchestra Piccola At Concert

Following the critical acclaim given in the recent tour of Italy, Marin's Orchestra Piccola, now home, will receive further honors at a celebration and concert in its honor at 8 p.m. on Sept. 6 at Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Each of the 27 members of the orchestra and its conductor, Hugo Rinaldi of San Rafael, will receive individualized copies of a resolution passed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. Rinaldi will accept a plaque in behalf of the orchestra.

The celebration and concert was organized by a Marin County citizens committee in cooperation with the Marin Symphony Association, according to Frank Tallarida of the committee.

The orchestra will perform selections from its concert at Spoleto, Italy, in which it was the first amateur orchestra to perform in Gian Carlo Menotti's 16-year-old "Festival of Two Worlds."

Arnold M. Baptiste, chairman of the board of supervisors will present the award to Rinaldi. Robert A. Roumiguiere, supervisor; Carole Berg, president of the Marin County Symphony Association and Benjamin A. Farlatti, representing the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitor's Bureau will present individual awards to members of the orchestra.

The orchestra was formed three years ago from members of the Marin Youth Symphony Orchestra. It received an invitation to play in Italy after submitting a recording to the festival. The orchestra toured Milan, Florence, Venice, and Rome before mingling with world famous musicians at the Spoleto festival.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased at Crocker National Bank in San Rafael; Marin Music Center in Strawbery Shopping Center; Mill Valley and Novato Chambers of Commerce; Music Box in Northgate, San Rafael, and St. Mary's Square Garage in San Francisco.

Fair Photography Show Is Fine

By ADA GARFINKEL

Photography buffs should have a field day with the opening of Marin County Fair's annual photography show tomorrow in the Veterans Memorial Building at Civic Center.

One of the major exhibits of the fair, more than 250 prints were selected from 767 submissions. Those chosen are well diversified. Some are in color, others in monochrome; a few in both. There are novelty effects and sulptural ones and some are like line drawings, others like paintings. And there are Rorschach-like doubles and other pure abstractions.

For starters, there is Gary Thompson's "Best-in-Show" award for contemporary prints. A 10-layer "Untitled" cube-stacked construction, it juts from the wall in varying depths like primitive cave-dwellings. Shifts in tonal and textural quality in the photos attached to each cube front are derived from the grain of dry weeds and rubble and wisps of fog.

And a still different look at people is developed by Alissa Crandall in her grainy and manipulated "Mother and Dad" mask-like portraits.

Many of the photos are enlarged and unmatted. This lends a more commanding impact. For instance, Alfred Singer's "The Orange," shown in color, its pores like tiny craters, looms like huge ballon or a continent as it appears to float on a gray stretch of converging lines and checks.

Zeroing in on San Francisco's new skyling in "Modern Architecture" — an unusual view of the Transamerica pyramid — wins "Best in Show" prize for monochrome prints for Erwin Strohmaier.

"Patterns of Steel" — Rudolph Koch's sturdy approach to architectural geometry, Virginia Smoot's "Bank of America Reflections," and Dennis Volltner's "Concrete and Light" each document San Francisco's diversity of form.

Many of the photographers show more than one entry. John Starkweather, whose "Delta Sunrise" — a serene and broadly scanned horizon — won "Best in Show" for color prints, also shows a group of "Birdwatchers." And his "Sand Bar" is a single line of tiny shorebirds appearing like an inky line of black dots on a snow-white field.

This exhibit will continue through Monday and may be seen during regular fair hours, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Marin Will Honor Orchestra Piccola At Concert

Following the critical acclaim given in the recent tour of Italy, Marin's Orchestra Piccola, now home, will receive further honors at a celebration and concert in its honor at 8 p.m. on Sept. 6 at Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Each of the 27 members of the orchestra and its conductor, Hugo Rinaldi of San Rafael, will receive individualized copies of a resolution passed by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. Rinaldi will accept a plaque in behalf of the orchestra.

The celebration and concert was organized by a Marin County citizens committee in cooperation with the Marin Symphony Association, according to Frank Tallarida of the committee.

The orchestra will perform selections from its concert at Spoleto, Italy, in which it was the first amateur orchestra to perform in Gian Carlo Menotti's 16-year-old "Festival of Two Worlds."

Arnold M. Baptiste, chairman of the board of supervisors will present the award to Rinaldi. Robert A. Roumiguiere, supervisor; Carole Berg, president of the Marin County Symphony Association and Benjamin A. Farlatti, representing the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitor's Bureau will present individual awards to members of the orchestra.

The orchestra was formed three years ago from members of the Marin Youth Symphony Orchestra. It received an invitation to play in Italy after submitting a recording to the festival. The orchestra toured Milan, Florence, Venice, and Rome before mingling with world famous musicians at the Spoleto festival.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased at Crocker National Bank in San Rafael; Marin Music Center in Strawbery Shopping Center; Mill Valley and Novato Chambers of Commerce; Music Box in Northgate, San Rafael, and St. Mary's Square Garage in San Francisco.

Parcel Given Duplex Status Over Protest

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night rezoned a parcel on Clorinda Avenue from single-family to duplex district despite the protests of a dozen residents.

The move, opposed by commissioners Albert J. Boro and Alan M. Kay, was requested by owner Don Velich in the face of opposition by residents living along nearby Greenwood Avenue.

A parade of residents told commissioners that rezoning of the 6,250-square-foot parcel will allow higher density development, spark traffic congestion and set a precedent for future rezonings in the area.

The commission majority noted no neighbor along Clorinda Avenue had appeared to voice opposition to Velich's request, and noted adjacent property was also zoned duplex district.

The San Rafael Planning Department had urged denial of the request, saying the city should await completion of its general plan.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

COMMISSION — Said a county proposal for "area planning commissions" will be among topics of discussion at a study session scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in city hall.

GENERAL PLAN — Heard Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner report that the city is about 30 days behind schedule in preparation of a new general plan.

ORDINANCES — Heard commission landscape subcommittee chairman Kay urge staff to prepare ordinances setting landscape and open space requirements for varying types of development.

STAFF — Told staff to develop a checklist showing the status of various commission requests of city employees.

CONDOMINIUMS — Urged the city council to adopt an ordinance banning conversion of apartments to condominium units until adequate controls of such conversions are developed. Commissioners said the conversions often result in high profits for owners and burdens for the neighborhood.

HEALTH CENTER — Said interior alterations being made to the county public health center at Fourth Street and Grand Avenue are consistent with the city's general plan.

SIGNS — Heard Hotchner report that merchants are cooperating with regulations imposed by the city sign ordinance, and report that United Market on Third Street will soon replace existing nonconforming signs.

TENNIS — Said the Marin Tennis Club may use five completed courts at its 925 Belle Avenue facility even though parking, pool house and club house facilities are not yet completed. Commissioners noted club members have permission to park at a nearby church and ballet facilities, and said no use of the swimming pool, club house and remaining courts may be made until on site parking is provided, among other conditions.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Sept. 4.

Lunding Will Guide San Rafael Planners

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night unanimously elected colleague Jorgen V. Lunding commission chairman, but deadlocked on two nominees for vice chairman.

Lunding, appointed to the commission in 1965 and currently the agency's vice chairman, will serve as chairman until January, filling out the term of former commission chairman Thomas R. O'Toole who did not seek reappointment to the body last June.

Commissioners split on electing a vice chairman after commissioners Albert J. Boro and James Dougan each received three votes. Colleague John A. Starkweather was absent.

Commissioners Dougan, Joseph J. Garbarino and Lunding voted for the appointment of Dougan as vice chairman, and commissioners Boro, Alan M. Kay and Ben C. Albritton voted for appointment of Boro.

The commission postponed selection of a vice chairman.

Man Dangles Over Waterfall

GOODING, Idaho (UPI) — Lester Hoover may give up fishing after hanging by his heel for several hours over a Snake River waterfall.

Hoover, 75, San Leandro, Calif., said from his hospital bed yesterday that he was wading in the shallow stream trying to hook his second fish when he slipped.

"My foot went into a hole and I fell. I hung over the fall and my foot didn't come out of that groove. It was a miracle how that leg held out," Hoover said.

The elderly man said he passed out and doesn't know how long he dangled over the 20-foot fall Monday before rescuers found him.

Woman Admits Felony Counts In Check Case

Pamela Mae Wilson will spend no more than one year in county jail in exchange for her guilty plea to two felony counts, under the terms of a plea bargain struck yesterday.

Mrs. Wilson, 22, of San Rafael, pleaded guilty to possessing a forged check with intent to pass it and concealing stolen property. A third count of passing a forged check was dismissed.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of Marin Municipal Court also promised her three years probation. She is to be sentenced Sept. 19 in superior court.

Painting Display

Oil and water color paintings by Scott Tilden are being displayed until Sept. 22 at the San Rafael City Library. Tilden is a native of San Rafael and is landscape architect for the City of San Rafael.

Parcel Given Duplex Status Over Protest

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night rezoned a parcel on Clorinda Avenue from single-family to duplex district despite the protests of a dozen residents.

The move, opposed by commissioners Albert J. Boro and Alan M. Kay, was requested by owner Don Velich in the face of opposition by residents living along nearby Greenwood Avenue.

A parade of residents told commissioners that rezoning of the 6,250-square-foot parcel will allow higher density development, spark traffic congestion and set a precedent for future rezonings in the area.

The commission majority noted no neighbor along Clorinda Avenue had appeared to voice opposition to Velich's request, and noted adjacent property was also zoned duplex district.

The San Rafael Planning Department had urged denial of the request, saying the city should await completion of its general plan.

The San Rafael Planning Commission Also:

COMMISSION — Said a county proposal for "area planning commissions" will be among topics of discussion at a study session scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in city hall.

GENERAL PLAN — Heard Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner report that the city is about 30 days behind schedule in preparation of a new general plan.

ORDINANCES — Heard commission landscape subcommittee chairman Kay urge staff to prepare ordinances setting landscape and open space requirements for varying types of development.

STAFF — Told staff to develop a checklist showing the status of various commission requests of city employees.

CONDOMINIUMS — Urged the city council to adopt an ordinance banning conversion of apartments to condominium units until adequate controls of such conversions are developed. Commissioners said the conversions often result in high profits for owners and burdens for the neighborhood.

HEALTH CENTER — Said interior alterations being made to the county public health center at Fourth Street and Grand Avenue are consistent with the city's general plan.

SIGNS — Heard Hotchner report that merchants are cooperating with regulations imposed by the city sign ordinance, and report that United Market on Third Street will soon replace existing nonconforming signs.

TENNIS — Said the Marin Tennis Club may use five completed courts at its 925 Belle Avenue facility even though parking, pool house and club house facilities are not yet completed. Commissioners noted club members have permission to park at a nearby church and ballet facilities, and said no use of the swimming pool, club house and remaining courts may be made until on site parking is provided, among other conditions.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Sept. 4.

Lunding Will Guide San Rafael Planners

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night unanimously elected colleague Jorgen V. Lunding commission chairman, but deadlocked on two nominees for vice chairman.

Lunding, appointed to the commission in 1965 and currently the agency's vice chairman, will serve as chairman until January, filling out the term of former commission chairman Thomas R. O'Toole who did not seek reappointment to the body last June.

Commissioners split on electing a vice chairman after commissioners Albert J. Boro and James Dougan each received three votes. Colleague John A. Starkweather was absent.

Commissioners Dougan, Joseph J. Garbarino and Lunding voted for the appointment of Dougan as vice chairman, and commissioners Boro, Alan M. Kay and Ben C. Albritton voted for appointment of Boro.

The commission postponed selection of a vice chairman.

Man Dangles Over Waterfall

GOODING, Idaho (UPI) — Lester Hoover may give up fishing after hanging by his heel for several hours over a Snake River waterfall.

Hoover, 75, San Leandro, Calif., said from his hospital bed yesterday that he was wading in the shallow stream trying to hook his second fish when he slipped.

"My foot went into a hole and I fell. I hung over the fall and my foot didn't come out of that groove. It was a miracle how that leg held out," Hoover said.

The elderly man said he passed out and doesn't know how long he dangled over the 20-foot fall Monday before rescuers found him.

Help Sought To Preserve Quake Films

WESTPORT (UPI) — T. K. Peters, a pioneer newsreel cameraman who filmed the 1906 San Francisco earthquake from the window of his hotel room, wants somebody to help him preserve his shots of the quake, fire and other historical events.

Peters, who lives quietly in this small seacoast town 150 miles north of the Golden Gate, will be 90 years old on his next birthday.

"I figure it will take about $20,000 to restore the film and put sound to it," says Peters.

If he can get financial backing, Peters plans to edit the 12,000 feet of film he shot himself and combine it with other historical footage about San Francisco which he has acquired over the years.

He hopes to produce a motion picture story of the city going back to the De Anza expedition, a dramatization of which was filmed at the Panama Pacific Exposition in 1915.

Some of Peters' own footage predates the great earthquake. In 1903 he filmed San Francisco's notable citizens, and he has 1904 movies of Lillian Russell at the old Grand Opera House.

The collection also includes movies taken by Herbert Miles in 1896 with the camera riding on a cable car up California Street. This is believed to be the first motion picture ever taken in San Francisco.

The day before the great quake in 1906 Peters was scouting around the city for newsreel material when he came across the great singer Enrico Caruso. He chatted with him and took films. Caruso was among those routed from their beds in the Palace Hotel by the quake the next morning.

Peters, a native of Norfolk, Va., is a story subject himself. He left home at the age of 15 to join an expedition to the Yucatan as an artist. A few years later he was creating illusions for magicians. Then he traveled the world with some of them.

He joined the Pathe Freres in Vincennes, France, and thus became one of the pioneers of the motion picture industry. In the ensuing years he made films in Europe, Asia and the South Seas. He recorded the construction of the Panama Canal, from beginning to end.

Later Peters was involved in the development of neon tubes for signs.

Because he had built one of the first microfilm cameras Peters was called on by the Oglethorpe University, Atlanta, to head its "Crypt of Civilization" project. He spent five years collecting artifacts and documents which were placed in an impregnable vault May 25, 1940, to be opened in the year 8,113.

Later he headed the Chinese Air Force College in Georgia, and after World War II he collected equipment and tools to establish a factory in China for aviation instruments.

But the equipment fell into the hands of the Chinese communists, and Peters joined Lockheed Co. until his retirement in 1960.

Bedayan Verdict Innocent; Jurors Believe Him Insane

By JEFF GREER
AND PAUL CANE

Brent William Bedayan last night was found innocent by reason of insanity in his admitted slaying of three members of a Mill Valley family, and was immediately sentenced to a state hospital for the criminally insane, possibly for life.

The same jury that less than 24 hours earlier had said Bedayan was guilty of voluntary manslaughter for blasting Melvin J. and Ruth Schallock and their son Daniel to death with a shotgun on March 16, returned the insanity verdict at 6 p.m. after nearly four hours of deliberation.

No emotion showed on the 22-year-old killer's face as he heard the three-count verdict. He said nothing during the whole sentencing. Only his parents, Torcon and Marcea Bedayan, reporters and a cluster of attorneys sat in the audience.

Bedayan's defense attorney, Deputy Public Defender Frank J. Cox, told the seven-woman, five-man jury, "I want to thank you for Mr. and Mrs. Bedayan. I don't think Brent can thank you now."

After the brief formalities ended, Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said, "My feeling is that the judge directed the jury to a verdict of voluntary manslaughter." He said he believed the results would have been different if Broderick had read the jury Bales's definition of felony murder, "but he refused at the last second."

Before they convicted Bedayan of manslaughter Monday night, Broderick told jurors they must find the youth guilty of either first or second degree murder, or of voluntary manslaughter.

"I couldn't be happier" with the verdict, Cox said. "After the judge committed him" to the hospital, "I told Brent but I got no response at all. He's completely withdrawn. He didn't even ask me how long he would be in the hospital."

Bedayan could be confined for the rest of his life, unless mental experts and the court later agree that he has been returned to sanity. Bedayan probably will be sent to Atascadero, but first may go to the California Medical Facility at Vacaville for testing and evaluation.

Jury Foreman Dale A. Stopp said the jurors decided Bedayan was "floridly psychotic.

"It was clear that Bedayan did have psychotic delusions about Danny," the 19-year-old Schallock who, Bedayan believed, could project waves of pain to him. "And there was some question about Melvin (the father) as 'the enforcer,' " Stopp added. "But we couldn't find any clearcut reason why he killed Ruth Schallock. That's when we decided he was insane."

Bedayan's mother, a school nurse, who sat in the courtroom throughoutqthe 22 days of trial and sentencing, said she was "thankful, happy and relieved." She said she now could go home to rest at last. "It's just a shame Brent has to be so far away" and difficult to visit at Atascadero, she said.

She voiced high praise for Cox and the entire public defender's staff: "They couldn't have been more helpful. We were so thankful to have an attorney who understands psychiatry, and whom Brent could trust."

While awaiting the jury's verdict, she had said she felt the gruesome killings and arson of the Schallock home could have been prevented if adequate mental treatment had been given her son just before the slayings. "We knew he needed help, but he wouldn't" cooperate, she explained.

Juror Chester Olson said, "we learned a lot" about psychiatry and the law during the trial and deliberations. He said the jury concentrated on the task as defined in Judge Broderick's instructions and "wasn't concerned" about the fate of the defendant but rather about returning the correct verdict. "The jury, I feel was a very legal bunch of people; we're proud of ourselves."

He said much of the 15 hours the jury deliberated the manslaughter verdict was spent by jurors who wanted to say how they felt. "You understand we were not dealing with concrete evidence."

Olson refused to discuss how the balloting went, but another juror said the first ballot was 8-4 for conviction on the manslaughter count.

"A verdict of insane does not grant Brent Bedayan forgiveness, or give him a pat on the back," Cox told jurors in his argument yesterday before the verdict. "But the law says that the legally insane are not criminally responsible for what they do, and we must treat this man with understanding."

Yesterday's investigation of Bedayan's sanity was based on testimony presented earlier in the 20-day guilt phase of the trial. Five psychiatrists had testified on their findings in examinations of Bedayan, offering judgments on his mental state at the time of the shootings.

Judge Broderick instructed that under California law, the defense must show either that Bedayan's mental condition at the instant he pulled the trigger prevented him from knowing and understanding the nature of his acts, or that he did not understand that his acts were wrong.

If Bedayan was not aware that what he was doing was wrong, Bales pointed out, why then did he wipe fingerprints from the shotgun shells and go into hiding after the shooting?

He also cited statements of police officers to the effect that Bedayan had shouted, "You can't get me for first degree murder," when they arrested him 21 hours after the shooting.

Cox said he could explain that easily, relying simply on the fact that Bedayan's paranoid state prevented him from trusting anybody.

From the start of the legal proceedings, the defense had conceded that Bedayan did kill the Schallocks, so they therefore could not find him innocent of the crimes in the first phase of the trial.

Cox said during the final arguments that Bedayan's mental problems apparently partially stemmed from a basketball game in which Dan Schallock accidentally struck Bedayan in the groin. From then on, Cox declared, Bedayan had believed that the young Schallock could inflict pain on him at will, especially through a guitar that Schallock once gave him.

On March 16, Cox said, Bedayan was like a pressure cooker waiting to explode. All the pent-up hatred he had built up for Dan Schallock gushed forth in the burst of shotgun fire that left the three dead. At that time, Cox said, Bedayan could not have stopped himself even had he known that his actions were wrong.

INDIAN VALLEY COLLEGES

A New Instructional Idea

By FRANK FARRARA

Indian Valley Colleges, a part of the Marin Community College District, is tapping the community for instructors.

President Ernest H. Berg, who believes in bringing practical knowledge to students, has a roster of instructors from law enforcement, business, real estate and law offices.

A prime example is Leif W. Evensen, owner of a Novato accountancy firm, who has revamped the beginning accounting course.

Seated in his Novato office the other day, Evensen, enthusiastic and outgoing, said his aim "is to give people some knowledge that will be helpful in life."

Professionals, experienced in their fields, can bring into schools a lot more than theory, he said. "I think the students benefit in the final analysis."

Businessmen who have practical experience can tell students about practical application of what they are learning, he said.

The participation of businessmen is needed in community colleges, he said.

Evensen, 46, has been a certified public accountant for 20 years, but a college instructor only since last spring.

He had been teaching income tax preparation at Novato Adult Evening High School and became interested in teaching at a "little higher level," he said.

He was called to help at Indian Valley Colleges and started on four-day notice, "teaching with a book I had never seen before," he said.

The textbook wasn't practical enough," Evensen said, "Indian Valley Colleges had picked up what College of Marin had been using for umpteen semesters."

The textbook "was just too sophisticated" for beginning accounting students, he said. "My concept of the function of a junior college is to give students something they can use in a practical way when they get out of junior college . . . something down to earth . . . not some far out theories certified public acountants use after 20 years."

Evensen, who described himself as a renegade, said he then started his own system. "I would handwrite my notes for every class and relate to what students brought up. I don't think you can have a canned list."

On class days, Tuesdays and Thursday, he would "quit work" at about 3:30 or 4 p.m. to prepare for the 7 to 9 p.m. class and skip dinner. "I do not eat dinner before class," he said. "It helps you to respond."

Evensen, who wrote all his examinations and spent Sunday afternoons grading work, estimated that he put in about 12 to 13 hours a week on his teaching chores.

"Accounting isn't the most exotic subject in the world, I made a lot of bad jokes," he said.

Dissatisfied with the textbook, Evensen said he decided "to do something else this fall," and started by looking for a new textbook. "I must have $300 worth of free books" from textbook salesmen, he said.

He discovered a textbook, workbook and materials that filled the bill and will start a system whereby students "will keep a small set of books."

He said he will be teaching students "what bookkeeping is all about before they try to be accountants."

Ban On Construction Is Delayed

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

HAYWARD — A proposed constructed ban in Stinson Beach was postponed two months yesterday by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The staff of the board previously said it would seek an immediate ban for new septic tanks at yesterday's monthly meeting, but recommended the delay to give more time for comment.

Board action on the proposal was set for its Sept. 25 meeting. Its sentiment apparently was summed up by chairman Sidney S. Lippow of Martinez. He told protesting officials from the Stinson Beach County Water District that "we've been giving you time for 10 years — time is running short."

The board, however, voted 6-3 to allow construction of homes for which building permits were issued before yesterday for the Seadrift peninsula. About six homes will qualify under this exemption.

The staff also recommended exemptions for new buildings with a county building permit before Oct. 31, but this was part of the proposal to be voted upon next month.

The proposal by the staff also would forbid use of septic tanks — the only sewage system in the community — after Oct. 15, 1977. A staff engineer, Lawrence P. Kolb, said sewage waste may have to be pumped into holding tanks after that date for transfer by truck to treatment plants elsewhere.

Seemingly conflicting testimony on the ban came from William P. Desmond, Marin County's director of environmental control. While he said he had no choice but to concur with the proposal since its need was documented by geological surveys, he also insisted there was no threat to public health "that we can't handle."

Desmond argued the county's tough new septic tank ordinance gives him all the power he needs to prevent pollution from creating a hazard to health. The county's tight control on septic tanks amounts to "a virtual moratorium," he added, with only six permits for homes issued in the past 18 months in the community.

He complained the proposed ban was not entirely for health reasons, but was an effort by the board's staff to get the state to speed financing a $3 million sewage system for the community. State and federal grants could cover up to 87.5 per cent of its cost.

Deputy County Counsel George J. Silvestri Jr. also objected to the ban, saying it was "overkill" to apply it beyond the "old town" section. He noted Kolb testified no septic tank failures had occurred in either Seadrift or the Highland or Panoramic areas.

The ban also would apply to new septic tanks in Stinson Beach State Park.

The proposal was triggered by findings by a state geologist, Alvin L. Franks, that it was "highly probably" sewage will percolate to the water table and then into adjacent lagoons and the ocean. Additional construction will further overload the soil's capacity to filter pollution before wastes reach the adjacent waters, he said.

Spokesmen for Stinson Beach County Water District, which has drafted plans for a sewage treatment system, objected district taxpayers could not afford to meet the board's requirements for cleaning up sewage wastes.

The vice chairman of the district, Proctor Jones, said it "has done all that can be sensibly accomplished" until the regional board acts on its plan. He insisted, however, that "there is little or no change for passage of a substantial bond issue."

Even if one were passed, he added, "it would force a substantial social dislocation with attendant hardships because of tax increases."

Chairman Lippow, however, dismissed this argument by Jones, observing "everybody has financial problems." State law requires the board to consider water quality, not financial problems, Lippow declared.

The board also kept the public hearing open for the Sept. 25 meeting so more testimony can be taken. It took note without comment of a letter from Marin County Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini to give the county health department time to consider imposing its own building plan.

School Board Appoints Council Liaison Unit

The San Rafael Board of Education last night appointed two of its members to a liaison committee with the San Rafael City Council.

Tapped for the posts were board president Herman Childress and board member Francis X. Kelly, according to Supt. Donald Leisey.

Childress and Kelly will meet periodically with Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman John A. Miskimen to "improve communications and discuss matters of mutual concern," Leisey said.

The need for a liaison group coordinating efforts of the two agencies was accented during negotiations over the city redevelopment project, he said.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

BUS — Told resident Raymond Haas it is unlikely that bus transportation can be reinstated to the Upper Terra Linda Valley neighborhood. The district consolidated bus service during budget discussions, Leisey noted.

ADULT EDUCATION — Said new courses ranging from community chorus to photography and quilting have been added to the district adult education program.

TEACHERS — Learned that six teachers must still be hired for fall duty to fill out the school system work force of 346 teachers.

DELEGATE — Nominated county school board member Dorothy Brown for delegate to the state school board association assembly.

INSTRUCTIONAL AIDES — Announced that more funds under a trailer bill to SB 90, the state tax shift, school finance law, have enabled reinstatement of 22 instructional aides at a cost of $27,000.

BID — Awarded a $25,077 contract to Marin County Roofing Inc., low bidder, for roofing work at San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools.

ADJOURNAMENT — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Sept. 11.

New York Is Top In Principal Pay

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York City's school principals are now the highest paid in the country under the terms of a new three-year contract.

Under the contract, accepted yesterday by members of the Council of Supervisors and Administrators, principals' salaries will now range from $25,690 for a starting elementary school principal to $35,000 for a high school principal at the highest level.

STORE FINDS POT AMONG ITS PLANTS

Employee James Cahill saw five plants in a flat of mixed potted plants which he did not remember Sears selling before. He suspected the worst.

San Rafael police confirmed his fears — they were small marijuana plants. Cahill said he had no idea which nursery delivered them.

Police put an ignominious end to them. They were flushed down the toilet.

Reward In Ranger's Death Grows

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer of National Park Ranger Kenneth Carmel Patrick have grown to more than $10,500, a park official said today.

Patrick was shot to death Aug. 5 while on a predawn patrol for deer poachers in the Point Reyes National Seashore. He is believed to have been shot by a poaching suspect he may have been questioning on the fog-shrouded Mount Vision where his body was found.

Ronald H. Walker, National Park Service director, said today that park service employees nationwide donated more than $2,500 to the reward total, "and more is coming in."

Patrick was the first ranger to be slain on duty in the 57-year-history of the National Park Service, Walker said.

The rewards offered include $5,000 from an anonymous West Marin citizen; $1,000 through the Independent-Journal's "Secret Witness" program, $1,000 by the California Rifle and Pistol Association, $500 by the California Wildlife Federation and $500 by the Marin Rod and Gun Club.

Walker urged any person having information on the case to contact Federal Bureau of Investigation offices in San Francisco or San Rafael.

Drug Trial Ordered By Judge

A San Francisco man, arrested after police reported finding about two pounds of marijuana and 2,000 peyote buttons in his wrecked auto, was bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court for trial on drug charges.

Danny Lee Downs, 23, is charged with felony counts of transporting marijuana and peyote. Downs has pleaded innocent and will appear Sept. 19 in superior court.

Judge David R. Baty ruled there is enough evidence to justify trying Downs on the charges.

California highway patrolmen said they found the pot and peyote in Downs's car March 5 when he apparently fell asleep at the wheel and the auto smashed into the center divider of Highway 101 in San Rafael.

Cause Behind Some Insomnia

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Stanford University researchers have found that some insomnia is caused by a temporary halt of breathing during sleep.

Drs. Christian Guilleminault, William C. Dement and Frederic L. Eldridge studied insomniacs at the Stanford Sleep Disorders Clinic and found six of them suffered from sleep apnea, or cessation of breathing. They reported their findings on two of them in the current issue of the Science Journal.

Researchers said both patients experienced severe sleep disturbances in which breathing stopped for periods of 20 to 150 seconds. These episodes were followed by arousal, often complete awakening, and resumption of breathing.

Arousals numbered up to 250 per night.

Supplies Taken

Copper fittings and plumbing supplies valued at $273 were taken between noon Saturday and 8:15 a.m. Monday from the fenced yard of Pacific Plumbing and Heating Supply Co. at 8 Lovell Avenue, San Rafael police reported.

Single-Family Home Plan Rejected Again

Plans for a single-family home at 8 Malvino Court in Tiburon were rejected last night for the second time by the city's board of design review.

Several neighbors turned out to object to the house, proposed by 20th Century Homes of San Rafael, on the grounds it is not compatible with the neighborhood, according to Andrew E. Hahto, planning assistant.

Hahto said the board disliked the design and site of the house and the size of the garage. Board members complained that the dwelling would block views.

Twentieth Century Homes was asked to revise and resubmit the design after the board rejected its first plans in June. But Hahto said the only change shown in plans last night was a new roof design.

The board also approved plans for three duplexes, with a total of eight units, proposed for Centro West by Kendall-Decook Contractors of Tiburon.

Doctor Rushed To Hospital After Collapse

A San Rafael physician collapsed at a meeting of the San Rafael Planning Commission last night and was rushed to Marin General Hospital.

The man, identified by police as Dr. Joseph J. Arons of 28 Porto Bello Drive, was reported in satisfactory condition in the hospital's coronary care unit after he collapsed at about 9 p.m.

Arons apparently walked out of city hall chambers and collapsed in the lobby. Commissioners adjourned the meeting briefly as police and fire units and an ambulance converged on city hall.

Smith Ranch's Violations Are Held Continual

The Smith Ranch Airport has been in continual violation of its use permit in recent years, but the San Rafael city administration has failed to take action, city planning director Herbert G. Hotchner reported today.

Hotchner said he has inspected the facility repeatedly in recent years and has reported use permit violations to "at least two city managers," but has received no instructions for action.

Hotchner's comments came on the heels of a revelation by the San Rafael Police Department that 54 airplanes were parked at the airport at 5 p.m. yesterday despite the facility's use permit which sets a 35-plane lid.

Motorcycle Theft

Former Sausalito Man Slain In Irish Violence

Word has been received in Marin County of the murder of Robert Sean Armstrong, former Sausalito resident, shot to death in his native Ireland.

Armstrong, 31, was listed in Belfast papers as a victim of the continuing religious wars in Northern Ireland.

His widow, Morie, wrote bay area friends that Armstrong was shot in his apartment by a young gunman, only days after the couple honeymooned in Scotland. Armstrong was leading a summer program for children in strife-torn Belfast.

Armstrong and his wife first met in the Trident restaurant in Sausalito. The bearded pacifist with a master's degree in education, worked there as a busboy. She was a waitress. When Armstrong left Sausalito, his employer threw a champagne party for him that attracted 300 friends.

Armstrong then spent months in Israel and Sweden before returning to Ireland to marry. His widow wrote friends that she is staying on in Ireland to continue her husband's work.

David Weitzman, an official of Heath Ceramics Inc. at 400 Gate Five Road, Sausalito, said he plans to organize a benefit concert to help the Sean Armstrong Memorial Fund set up in Belfast.

Corte Maderan Admits Burglary

In exchange for his guilty plea, Smallman promised Cota no more than 90 days in county jail when he is sentenced in municipal court Sept. 28.

Senate Votes To Tighten Laws On Campaign Funding

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate has overwhelmingly voted to tighten state laws which require political candidates to disclose their campaign expenditures and contributions.

"This is a genuine reform bill that the peole are demanding," Sen. Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Los Angeles, author of the bill, told the Senate yesterday before it approved the measure (SB509) on a 30-3 vote.

However, Dymally acknowledged that the measure was designed to head off an even tougher initiative proposed by Common Cause, the national "people's lobby."

Dymally's bill was sent to the Assembly, which on Monday approved a slightly stricter rival bill (AB703) by Assemblyman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles.

Both bills would lower from $500 to $100 the minimum size of contribution which must be reported. Both also require more detailed identification of contributors and audits of the candidates' contribution disclosure statements.

The major differences between the two rival bills are these:

The Dymally bill requires that all political committees must register with the Secretary of State, a provision not contained in the Waxman bill.

The Waxman bill requires random audits of campaign spending reports, while Dymally's bill calls for audits of all candidates receiving more than 15 per cent of the vote or spending more than $25,000.

The Dymbally bill requires the reporting of names of contributors' employers, another provision not contained in the Waxman measure.

The Senate

LUNCH PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A $28 million bill requiring all California school districts to provide a nutritious meal for students from low-income families has moved a step closer to Assembly passage.

The bill (SB1264) by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was approved yesterday by the Assembly Education Committee on a 10-2 vote and sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

The measure would require every school district to apply for funds so it could provide a nutritious breakfast or lunch or both every school day.

CONSUMER

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A $1.8 million bill to create or expand city and county consumer affairs agencies was endorsed yesterday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure (AB666) by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, appropriates $1.26 million to set up or expand consumer fraud divisions with offices of county district attorneys and city attorneys.

It also called for a $300,000 pilot project assisting local consumer complaint bureaus. The remaining funds would go for administrative expenses.

The measure was sent to the Finance Committee on a 9-1 vote.

This Cute Little Number Runs on 3,600 Gallons Per Hour

We'd like to see him have just as much fun at a fraction of the water loss.

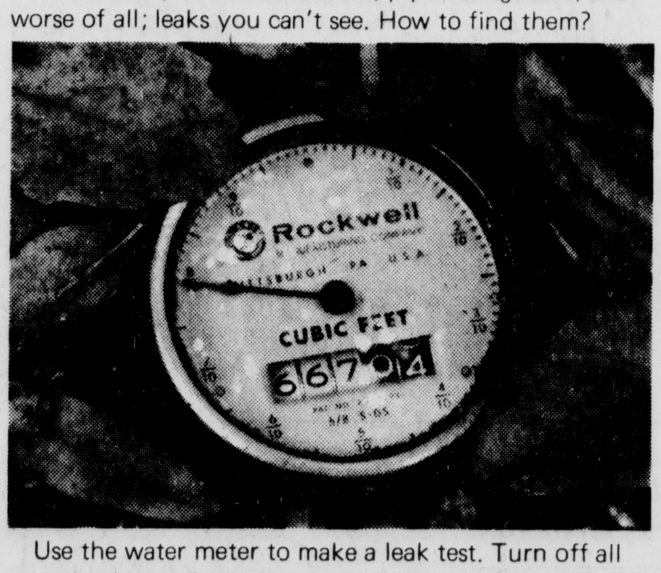
A pin sized leak in a pipe or a hose will waste 170 gallons a day. A 1/8 inch leak — 3600 gallons — enough water for 144 baths.

There are sprinkler head leaks, pipe fitting leaks, and worse of all; leaks you can't see. How to find them?



Use the water meter to make a leak test. Turn off all water outlets and watch the dial for movement. If it moves, you've got a leak some place.

Water rights and wrongs:

Go to a car wash that re-cycles its water. Call us to find them or ask the car-wash place yourself.

If you do it yourself, use a bucket, a nozzle on your hose, and TURN IT OFF when you're not rinsing.

Water gardens in the early morning or evening to decrease evaporation.

Soak thoroughly rather than lightly sprinkle.

Hand water if you can — more accurate!

Set your oven timer or alarm clock if you must leave sprinkler or hose running.

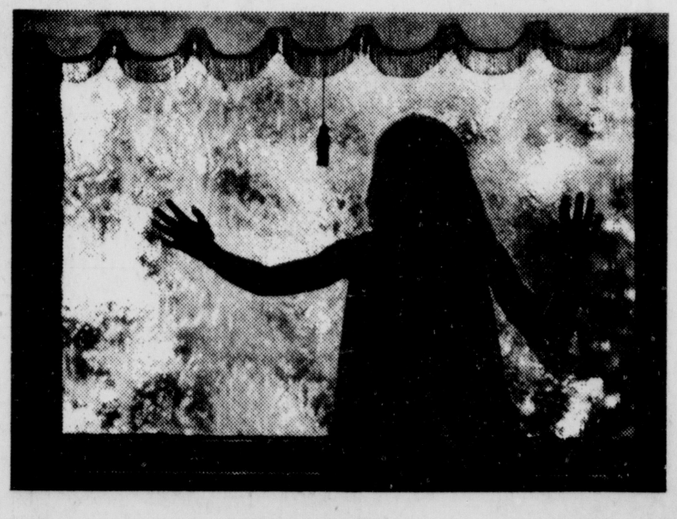
Try some native California plants. They will give as much pleasure and demand less water and attention. Ask your garden shop, and be on the lookout for our "Native Plants" ad in November.

Aerate your soil to increase its ability to "drink".

Don't leave hose running in bird bath, wading pool, or pet dishes — it's too easy to forget.

Don't waste the waste water. Water from wading pools, de-frosted refrigerators, air conditioners (etc.) can be given to your plants.

Save it for a rainy — or even foggy — day! Don't water on a rigid schedule. Foggy or overcast days will hold enough moisture in your soil.



Thanks for your attention! For further information, call your Water Information Office, Marin Municipal District, 924-4600.

LUNCH PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A $28 million bill requiring all California school districts to provide a nutritious meal for students from low-income families has moved a step closer to Assembly passage.

The bill (SB1264) by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was approved yesterday by the Assembly Education Committee on a 10-2 vote and sent to the Ways and Means Committee.

The measure would require every school district to apply for funds so it could provide a nutritious breakfast or lunch or both every school day.

CONSUMER

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A $1.8 million bill to create or expand city and county consumer affairs agencies was endorsed yesterday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure (AB666) by Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, appropriates $1.26 million to set up or expand consumer fraud divisions with offices of county district attorneys and city attorneys.

It also called for a $300,000 pilot project assisting local consumer complaint bureaus. The remaining funds would go for administrative expenses.

The measure was sent to the Finance Committee on a 9-1 vote.

This Cute Little Number Runs on 3,600 Gallons Per Hour

We'd like to see him have just as much fun at a fraction of the water loss.

A pin sized leak in a pipe or a hose will waste 170 gallons a day. A 1/8 inch leak — 3600 gallons — enough water for 144 baths.

There are sprinkler head leaks, pipe fitting leaks, and worse of all; leaks you can't see. How to find them?

Use the water meter to make a leak test. Turn off all water outlets and watch the dial for movement. If it moves, you've got a leak some place.

Water rights and wrongs:

Go to a car wash that re-cycles its water. Call us to find them or ask the car-wash place yourself.

If you do it yourself, use a bucket, a nozzle on your hose, and TURN IT OFF when you're not rinsing.

Water gardens in the early morning or evening to decrease evaporation.

Soak thoroughly rather than lightly sprinkle.

Hand water if you can — more accurate!

Set your oven timer or alarm clock if you must leave sprinkler or hose running.

Try some native California plants. They will give as much pleasure and demand less water and attention. Ask your garden shop, and be on the lookout for our "Native Plants" ad in November.

Aerate your soil to increase its ability to "drink".

Don't leave hose running in bird bath, wading pool, or pet dishes — it's too easy to forget.

Don't waste the waste water. Water from wading pools, de-frosted refrigerators, air conditioners (etc.) can be given to your plants.

Save it for a rainy — or even foggy — day! Don't water on a rigid schedule. Foggy or overcast days will hold enough moisture in your soil.

Police Accused Of Soliciting

OAKLAND (UPI) —The Oakland Police Officers Association has been accused of soliticing funds without a permit by the city Commission of Public Charities.

The commission asked the District Attorney to investigate the police group's promotion of a country-western music show to benefit officers, charging phone solicitors were making "substantial misrepresentations" about the purpose of the show.

The accusation was turned over Monday to the District Attorney after officials of the police group failed to show up for a commission hearing on the question.

The city attorney said solicitors have misrepresented the show as benefiting officers sidelined by illness and a legal defense fund for officers.

FCC Nomination Is Reportedly Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Broadcasting trade journals have reported President Nixon will appoint James H. Quello, a Detroit, Mich., broadcast consultant, to a vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission, and opposition already has developed.

The reports have said Quello's nomination will be announced sometime after Labor Day. The vacancy has created when the term of Commissioner Nicholas Johnson expired June 30.

Experts Differ On Opening Leads; Most Favor Low Card

When you hold three small cards of a "blind" suit, which should you lead — high, low or middle card? Experts have been arguing about this for a few years. Today's hand shows one of the reasons that most of the top players favor the low card.

TOURNAMENT

When this hand came along in a tournament in Washington, D.C., West led the nine of diamonds.

There wouldn't be any question about the right play at rubber bridge, but this was a tournament. Extra tricks were worth their weight in gold.

WONDERED

South wondered whether or not to try the diamond finesse. He finally decided that West looked like an honest man. The nine of diamonds was surely a "top of nothing" lead.

For this reason declarer put up dummy's ace of diamonds and took his tricks. When the spades broke favorably, he had 10 tricks — four spades, five hearts and one diamond.

MANY BEATEN

Many players in the tournament were beaten when West opened the deuce instead of the nine of diamonds. These declarers knew that they could take the first nine or 10 tricks by grabbing the ace of diamonds, but this wouldn't be much good if everybody else took the diamond finesse and made 11 or 12 tricks.

So these players played low from dummy at the first trick. East won with the king of diamonds and shifted to a low club, whereupon the defenders rattled off four club tricks.

A single hand doesn't prove the entire case, but clearly you reveal less to the declarer when you lead your lowest card from three small than when you lead the top card.

DAILY QUESTION

♠ A Q 6 2
♥ Q
♦ A Q J 5
♣ 9 6 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one diamond. The hand is clearly worth an opening bid since you have 15 points in high cards alone. Partner's probable response is in hearts, where you are shortest. If you begin with one diamond, you will next be able to bid one spade. If you begin with one spade, you will be embarrassed by a response of two hearts.

Recording Checks Textbooks' Ideas

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — A French-born phonetician who recorded 25 hours of conversations in Paris found that fewer than 4,000 separate words were used.

Andre Malcot, a University of California professor, made the recordings to find how the French language is actually being spoken—not how the textbooks assume it is spoken.

Chinese Congress Slaps Russia

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Communist Party of China, meeting in secret session in Peking, held its 10th National Congress and unanimously reaffirmed the leadership of Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai, according to a communique issued today.

The congress, in effect, endorsed the Mao-Chou program aimed at improving relations with the United States and took the unusual step of denouncing the Soviet Union by name.

UPI Correspondent Sylvana Foa reported from Peking tonight that bright fireworks lit the sky and cheering workers romped the streets of Peking as news of the conclusion of the 10th National Congress spread through the Chinese capital.

Chinese Communist party cadres scurried across the streets of Peking with the news, calling workers and functionaries out of their homes and factories.

With a general festive atmosphere, thousands of Chinese marched through the city, beating drums and clanging cymbals. Carrying portraits of party chairman Mao, the marchers kept up a cheerful chant of "long live chairman Mao."

The announcement of the congress' conclusion of its four-day session came while diplomats and other foreigners were still speculating that the congress was about to begin.

Mao, the party chairman for almost 40 years, presided over the session. Chou considered the No. 2 man behind Mao, delivered the usual political report.

Peking Radio, broadcasting the official press communique, said the congress was "held solemnly" and "was a congress of unity, a congress of victory and a congress full of vigor."

It was unusual for two reasons: It was held in secret and it was much shorter than party congresses of the past.

The congress unanimously adopted a political report—a sort of state-of-the-nation address—by Chou, adopted a new party constitution and elected a new Central Committee, consisting of 195 full members and 124 alternates.

A communique broadcast by Peking Radio and the New China News Agency (NCNA) said 1,249 delegates, representing more than 28 million party members, attended the congress.

The lineup of the party leadership appeared little changed from what it had been since the downfall of the late Lin Piao almost two years ago, in September, 1971.

Lin, former Defense Minister and party vice chairman, was named specifically in the constitution adopted at the 9th Party Congress, in April 1969, as "close comrade-in-arms and successor" to Mao as party chief.

Lin died while trying to flee to the Soviet Union after an alleged abortive coup d'etat attempt against Mao and Chou.

The communique on the 10th Party Congress denounced Lin by name for the first time since his fall. It also denounced Chen Po-ta, a onetime private secretary to Mao and top party ideologist before and during the turbulent Cultural Revolution of the late 1960's.

Both Lin and Chen were expelled from the party "once and for all" by the 10th party congress, the communique said.

The initial reports on the congress indicated that Mao and Chou had successfully repulsed and subdued a counter-attack by radical elements, identified with some of the Lin policies, during recent weeks.

The communique touched only briefly on international affairs. (That undoubtedly was covered more thoroughly in Chou's political report, which probably will be issued later.) It called for unity with other international groups "against imperialism, colonialism and neo-colonialism and in particular against the hegemonism of the two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union."

Considering the fact that here was the world's largest Communist party denoucing the first and most powerful Communist nation in the world by name, the comments on the United states were soft indeed. The initial interpretation of this would indicate that the congress gave its endorsement to the continued improvement of Sino-American relations.

Religion Keeps Midwestern Youths Straight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Religious upbringing and respect for authority have inhibited smoking, drinking, the use of soft drugs and sexual behavior among middle class youths in mid-America, a study showed today.

The study, by three Michigan State University social scientists, focused on 4,220 persons aged 13-17 in three Western Michigan communities.

The social scientists—Drs. Arthur M. Vener, Cyrus S. Stewart and Mary Zaenglein,—said they found younger adolescents in the communities were more attuned to religious orthodoxy than older ones. They said orthodoxy declined with age and was more prevalent among girls than boys.

Goldwater To Run In 1974

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., thinks the Senate is less important than the House, he says, but he is going to run for re-election anyway.

Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, said yesterday he plans to run again in 1974. He said he hopes Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., does not decide to oppose him in the election, "not for selfish reasons, but because I think Mo can be Speaker of the House.

"He is a very important man and the House is really a more important part of Congress than the Senate," Goldwater said.

Diplomats Must Ask The President

BRASILIA (UPI) — Under a recently passed law, Brazilian diplomats can marry foreign citizens only with the previous consent of the president of Brazil.

The law further states no Brazilian diplomat can marry a person employed by a foreign country or an international organization and, if married to a foreigner, a Brazilian diplomat cannot serve in the country of his spouse's origin.

Donors To Town Meeting Sought

The San Rafael Town Meeting Association last night issued a call for donations to finance the city's second town meeting.

About $400 will be needed to pay for publicity and printing costs generated by the citizens' forum scheduled for 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Oct. 13 at Terra Linda High School, according to Dorothy Breiner, association secretary.

Residents wishing to contribute may send funds to the association via Steven Sachs, association president, 17 Dominican Drive, San Rafael, she said.

The format for the second annual forum will be much like last year, and will include topics ranging from "redevelopment: renewal or ripoff?" to pet peeves, she said.

Chinese Congress Slaps Russia

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Communist Party of China, meeting in secret session in Peking, held its 10th National Congress and unanimously reaffirmed the leadership of Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai, according to a communique issued today.

The congress, in effect, endorsed the Mao-Chou program aimed at improving relations with the United States and took the unusual step of denouncing the Soviet Union by name.

UPI Correspondent Sylvana Foa reported from Peking tonight that bright fireworks lit the sky and cheering workers romped the streets of Peking as news of the conclusion of the 10th National Congress spread through the Chinese capital.

Chinese Communist party cadres scurried across the streets of Peking with the news, calling workers and functionaries out of their homes and factories.

With a general festive atmosphere, thousands of Chinese marched through the city, beating drums and clanging cymbals. Carrying portraits of party chairman Mao, the marchers kept up a cheerful chant of "long live chairman Mao."

The announcement of the congress' conclusion of its four-day session came while diplomats and other foreigners were still speculating that the congress was about to begin.

Mao, the party chairman for almost 40 years, presided over the session. Chou considered the No. 2 man behind Mao, delivered the usual political report.

Peking Radio, broadcasting the official press communique, said the congress was "held solemnly" and "was a congress of unity, a congress of victory and a congress full of vigor."

It was unusual for two reasons: It was held in secret and it was much shorter than party congresses of the past.

The congress unanimously adopted a political report—a sort of state-of-the-nation address—by Chou, adopted a new party constitution and elected a new Central Committee, consisting of 195 full members and 124 alternates.

A communique broadcast by Peking Radio and the New China News Agency (NCNA) said 1,249 delegates, representing more than 28 million party members, attended the congress.

The lineup of the party leadership appeared little changed from what it had been since the downfall of the late Lin Piao almost two years ago, in September, 1971.

Lin, former Defense Minister and party vice chairman, was named specifically in the constitution adopted at the 9th Party Congress, in April 1969, as "close comrade-in-arms and successor" to Mao as party chief.

Lin died while trying to flee to the Soviet Union after an alleged abortive coup d'etat attempt against Mao and Chou.

The communique on the 10th Party Congress denounced Lin by name for the first time since his fall. It also denounced Chen Po-ta, a onetime private secretary to Mao and top party ideologist before and during the turbulent Cultural Revolution of the late 1960's.

Both Lin and Chen were expelled from the party "once and for all" by the 10th party congress, the communique said.

The initial reports on the congress indicated that Mao and Chou had successfully repulsed and subdued a counter-attack by radical elements, identified with some of the Lin policies, during recent weeks.

The communique touched only briefly on international affairs. (That undoubtedly was covered more thoroughly in Chou's political report, which probably will be issued later.) It called for unity with other international groups "against imperialism, colonialism and neo-colonialism and in particular against the hegemonism of the two superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union."

Considering the fact that here was the world's largest Communist party denoucing the first and most powerful Communist nation in the world by name, the comments on the United states were soft indeed. The initial interpretation of this would indicate that the congress gave its endorsement to the continued improvement of Sino-American relations.

Religion Keeps Midwestern Youths Straight

NEW YORK (UPI) — Religious upbringing and respect for authority have inhibited smoking, drinking, the use of soft drugs and sexual behavior among middle class youths in mid-America, a study showed today.

The study, by three Michigan State University social scientists, focused on 4,220 persons aged 13-17 in three Western Michigan communities.

The social scientists—Drs. Arthur M. Vener, Cyrus S. Stewart and Mary Zaenglein,—said they found younger adolescents in the communities were more attuned to religious orthodoxy than older ones. They said orthodoxy declined with age and was more prevalent among girls than boys.

Goldwater To Run In 1974

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., thinks the Senate is less important than the House, he says, but he is going to run for re-election anyway.

Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential nominee, said yesterday he plans to run again in 1974. He said he hopes Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., does not decide to oppose him in the election, "not for selfish reasons, but because I think Mo can be Speaker of the House.

"He is a very important man and the House is really a more important part of Congress than the Senate," Goldwater said.

Diplomats Must Ask The President

BRASILIA (UPI) — Under a recently passed law, Brazilian diplomats can marry foreign citizens only with the previous consent of the president of Brazil.

The law further states no Brazilian diplomat can marry a person employed by a foreign country or an international organization and, if married to a foreigner, a Brazilian diplomat cannot serve in the country of his spouse's origin.

Donors To Town Meeting Sought

The San Rafael Town Meeting Association last night issued a call for donations to finance the city's second town meeting.

About $400 will be needed to pay for publicity and printing costs generated by the citizens' forum scheduled for 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Oct. 13 at Terra Linda High School, according to Dorothy Breiner, association secretary.

Residents wishing to contribute may send funds to the association via Steven Sachs, association president, 17 Dominican Drive, San Rafael, she said.

The format for the second annual forum will be much like last year, and will include topics ranging from "redevelopment: renewal or ripoff?" to pet peeves, she said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Most People Are Too Heavy To Be A Picture Of Health

In his booklet "Eat to Live," Dr. D. M. Hegsted, professor of nutrition at the Harvard School of Public Health, states: "The well-nourished person in good health impresses you as mentally and physically alert, appropriately contoured, well proportioned, and very much alive. He is active and strong with a capcity for work and play and resists infection. The well-nourished person has straight and strong bones, with firm and well-toned muscles. The hair is glossy, the eyes bright, and the skin smooth and supple. His teeth are well-formed, free of cavaties, and the gums pink and firm."

FINE PHYSICAL specimens such as these people do not overeat, yet enjoy a variety of foods. Appetite and digestion are good, and elimination is regular. Chances are they sleep better and awaken more refreshed. Unfortunately, many people never achieve this enviable state. Others have it, but cannot maintain it.

Weight also is an outward sign of physical condition. A person's ideal weight is said to be what he weighed between 25 and 30 years of age — if at that time he was in good health and not too fat or too skinny. At age 25, most men have reached maximum physical growth, women at 20. From this time on, food no longer will be used for growth; it will be used develop energy for warmth and vitality, and to help regulate body processes. Maintenance of the body demands the constant replacement of worn-out cells and tissues with vital new material.

AMERICANS tend to overeat and underexercise. Some estimate that about 20 to 25 per cent of our population could lose a few pounds. For many people, the gain in weight is so gradual that it is not noticed for years. Since overweight is a form of malnutrition, these people are not exactly in the best of health. There are exceptions because the height-weight tables of insurance companies do not always take into consideration body frame and musculature. Some people are overweight "by the book", but not when examined.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen c/o the Independent Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

ON COFFEE JAG

A reader writes: We have a new neighbor who says she drinks three pots (24 cups) of coffee every day. She always has what appears to be a jag on and we wonder if her flubby conversation and peculiar actions are due to too much coffee. All of us on the block are coffee drinkers, but not to excess. We do get together every morning at 10 for three or four cups.

REPLY

Overindulgence (five or more cups) in caffeine leads to insomnia, dizziness, restlessness, anxiety, excitement, and confusion. In this respect, your neighbor is on a coffee jag. On the other hand, the situation may be reversed in that she has a nervous disorder or is unbalanced mentally and drinking too much coffee merely aggravates the condition.

RELAXING HOT BATH

G. A. writes: Is there any harm in taking a hot bath at night to induce sleep?

REPLY

No. Many persons find that a hot bath offers just enough relaxation to put them to sleep.

Teacher Strikes Are Predicted

PACIFIC GROVE, Calif. (UPI) — Teachers in about 143 U.S. school districts will be making strike threats for higher wages, a National Education Association spokesman predicted.

Terry E. Herndon, the NEA's executive secretary, did not identify the districts but called them "serious trouble spots."

Reagan Labels Post's Analysis Of Tax Initiative Distortion

Reagan told a Capitol news conference that the analysis of the initiatve Post has written for the ballot "is neither an analysis nor is it nonpartisan."

He said Post distorted the analysis in an attempt to confuse voters and defeat the initiative.

Post has said success of the initiative may force Reagan to cut next year's budget by as much as $680 million.

Reagan said that is not true.

Reagan said, "A number of legislators have expressed to me their shock at Mr. Post's depature from the role he is supposed to play. His office I regret to say has in fact become as partisan as the Assembly Office of Research which does the bidding of the speaker.

"He is doing their bidding in a partisan sense," Reagan said.

Post has been the legislature's chief fiscal adviser, under both Republican and Democratic majorities, for the past 20 years.

Asked why Post would deliberately distort figures and the potential effect of the initiative, Reagan said: "I think you have to look at who employs him. He is employed by the legislative leadership.

"The purpose is to confuse the people of California," Reagan said. "They have attempted to create fears in the minds of the people if this initiative is passed."

The initiative, if approved in November, would freeze the percentate of personal income going for state taxes at the current level and then reduce the percentage gradually over the next 15 years.

The analysis is required by law.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Proper Gear For Mooring

The meaning of the word "dock" has undergone quite a change over the past generation or two.

To the average boatman today, a dock is almost anything or any place to which, or where, he can tie up his boat.

In its original meaning, a dock was the water space between wharves or piers in which a boat might rest with security. It was also called a slip or a berth, and to a degree these words have retained much of their original meaning.

A vessel was moored in a dock, not to it.

However, now that we have agreed that the word has changed meaning, let's not quibble about it, because it really doesn't matter, as long as you know what the guy you are talking to really means.

Here are a few other nautical words you will hear, and they too may be undergoing a change of meaning.

To tie a boat up to a pier, wharf, dock or even a quay, morring lines must be used. They are made fast to cleats or bitts bolted to the dockside. For big ships bollards are provided.

Rubbing or chafing between boat and wharf or dockwall is taken up by fenders. When a boat is berthed in a slip regularly, lines of proper length are made up with eye-splices (permanent loops) and chafing gear is provided.

The chafing gear may be pieces of rubber hose, canvas or leather wrapped around a morring line where it passes through a chock or fairlead.

There are a hundred more words of more or less specialized meaning used by boaters in mooring their craft. Most are self-explanatory. But that there are doubts concerning mooring procedures is shown by some of the questions we've been asked:

Q. What rope resists abrasion best as a mooring line?

A. Nylon and dacron are about equal, and far ahead of all natural fiber ropes.

Q. Is rope required on pleasure craft?

A. The law doesn't demand that small pleasure craft carry any rope, but common sense certainly does. Two 20-foot lengths for tying up are a minimum. For cruisers, or craft 26 feet long or more, two 50 foot lengths for morring and 100 feet of rope or chain for an anchor are necessary. I also carry about 50 feet of buoyant heaving line, such as a piece of ski-tow rope. It's handy to throw to someone when you are coming in to a dock under difficult circumstances.

Q. I left my boat tied up. The rope shrank in a rain storm and pulled a cleat off my deck. How much does rope shrink?

A. Synthetic rope doesn't shrink when wet, but all natural fiber rope — manila, hemp, sisal, cotton and lines — do. Assume that most natural fiber ropes will shrink up to one inch per foot when thoroughly wet.

Q. Is nylon better than manila rope for an anchor line?

A. Infinitely. Nylon stretches and has a springiness that no other type of rope has. It's good for an anchor line but not so good for applications such as sheets or halliards where stretch is not wanted.

Cunningham Battling For A Job

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — San Francisco 49ers' running back Doug Cunningham says he's a mellow fellow — except when it comes to blocking.

"All blocking is," said Cunningham, "is to want to go get 'em and knock 'em off their feet. My asset used to be my quickness, but now it's just that I'm tough."

After two years of bench-rest with knee and back problems, Cunningham considered retiring.

"The season came around and I mellowed," said Cunningham, 27. "The frustration left me about the time my wallet got flat and I started getting hungry."

Coach Dick Nolan said the seven-year veteran "came into camp in the best shape he's been in for a couple of years. He's running well and he's always been a good blocker. We just didn't know if he was healthy."

On that score, Cunningham set the coach's mind straight after one practice session.

In one day, Nolan said, "he went through the two-a-day workout and did conditioning on his own. Then I found him on the exercise machine and later he ran on the treadmill and had one of the highest oxygen intakes. What a recovery."

Texas' 'Given Day' Arrives

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

On any given day, baseball folk are fond of saying, even the worst can beat the best. yesterday was the Texas Rangers' given day.

With the crack of Toby Harrah's bat in the fifth inning and Sonny Siebert's clutch relief pitching in the late innings, Texas finally penetrated Baltimore's invincibility and defeated the Orioles 5-3.

Ended were: Baltimore's 14-game winning streak, the longest in the majors since 1965; Baltimore's nine-game winning streak over the Rangers; and Dave McNally's 17-game winning streak over Texas.

McNally, whose record dropped to 13-14 this year, hadn't been beaten by the Rangers since Sept. 12, 1968. He was through last night, though, after Harrah singled home Ken Suarez to snap a 3-3 tie in the fifth.

Ranger Manager Whitey Herzog was asked afterward how it felt to beat Baltimore and McNally after losing so often.

"Anytime we win is a cause for celebration," Herzog said.

Herzog wasn't kidding. The Rangers, with 46 victories and 84 losses, own the worst record in the majors. The Orioles, on the other hand, at 75-53, lead the American League East by 4 ½ games.

The Orioles jumped to a 3-1 lead after three innings but Bill Sudakis tied the score with two-run homer in the fourth inning off McNally. After Harrah's RBI put the Rangers ahead to stay in the fifth and Texas added an insurance run on a single and two errors on bunts by Baltimore reliever Bob Reynolds in the seventh, Siebert came on to pitch the final 2 2-3 innings.

He put down an Oriole threat in the seventh with two on and one out and set the Orioles down in the final two innings to earn his second save.

In other AL games, Oakland beat Boston 6-1, Cleveland edged Kansas City 4-3, Minnesota blanked Detroit 5-0, Chicago defeated Milwaukee 6-4 and California stopped New York 5-2.

John Lowenstein singled in the first run and triggered a three-run sixth inning with a single to pace the Indians over Kansas City and extend the Royals' losing streak to four games.

Tony Muser's two-run double in the eighth inning drove in what proved to be the winning runs as the White Sox stretched their winning streak to four games with the victory over Milwaukee.

Bob Oliver drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Lee Stanton hit a solo homer to pace California over New York and hand the Yankees their seventh straight defeat.

N. L. ROUNDUP

Rico Carty Returns To Atlanta

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Henry Aaron moved another step closer to "the record" last night but he was overshadowed by the homecoming of a former teammate.

Returning to Atlanta Stadium for the first time since he was traded by the Braves last Winter, former National League batting champion Rico Carty drove in four runs to pace the Chicago Cubs to a 9-6 victory over the Braves.

Carty's performance enabled the Cubs to overcome Aaron's three-run homer in the first inning, a towering drive over the 375-foot mark in left field. It was the 33rd homer for Aaron and the 706th of his career. He needs eight more this season to tie Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714 homers.

If Aaron continues at his present pace, he'll wind up this season at 713—one short of the mark. But he still has a shot at making it this year with a late surge.

Carty, who was traded from Atlanta to Texas last winter and then was shipped to the Cubs earlier this month, hit a two-run homer in the first inning in his first at bat in Atlanta Stadium since leaving the Braves. He added a two-out bases loaded single in the fifth.

In the other games, St. Louis topped Houston 8-3, Pittsburgh downed Cincinnati 8-3, Los Angeles beat Montreal 6-1, Philadelphia blanked San Francisco 1-0 and New York outlasted San Diego 8-6.

Al Oliver's two-run homer touched off a four-run sixth inning and paced the Pirates over Ross Grimsley. Bob Johnson worked the final 3 1-3 innings to save Bob Moose's ninth win.

Claude Osteen won his 16th game with a five-hitter and Steve Garvey drove home two runs to pace the Dodgers over the Expos. Osteen, boosting his record to 16-6, walked three and struck out two and registered his 12th lifetime victory in 14 decisions against Montreal.

Lou Brock hit a two-run single and Tommie Agee homered to pace St. Louis over the Astros. Brock's two-run hit climaxed a four-run fourth inning rally. Alan Foster pitched a six-hitter in boosting his record to 11-7.

The Mets scored five runs in the sixth inning to beat the Padres. Wayne Garrett started the rally with a homer as the Mets gave Jon Matlack, who was lifted in the eighth inning, enough help to record his 11th victory.

nine and 10 batters at a time. He twice struck out Bobby Bonds who had moved back to the leadoff position after batting third in 17 games.

Tito Fuentes singled to open the ninth for the Giants, but was cut down at second on a bunt by Garry Maddox. Willie McCovey followed with a single to center, but Maddox was out stretching for third base on the play.

Maddox also hit what appeared to be double to left field in the sixth inning, but Phillies outfielder Greg Luzinski leaped high to snare the ball near the top of the wall.

San Jose's Brown Pitches Perfect Game

SAN JOSE (AP) — San Jose right-hander Ray Brown pitched a no-hit, 3-0 victory last night over Modesto, the first perfect game in 31-years of California League play.

Brown, relying chiefly on his slider, struck out three of the 21 Modesto players he faced in the seven-inning game.

"If it happens, it happens. It doesn't do any good to worry," said Brown.

The no-hitter was the first game of a doubleheader. San Jose won the second game 7-1 with southpaw Curt Isom on the pitchers mound.

DECKER WINS 6TH IN ROW ON SHUTOUT

DETROIT (UPI) — Joe Decker won his sixth straight game on a five-hitter and Joe Lis drove in a pair of runs with a single and a homer last night to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 5-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Petaluma's Decker walked four but still faced only five batters over the minimum and raised his record to 9-5 with his second straight shutout. His teammates turned over three double plays and caught one man stealing behind him.

Lis singled in a run during a three-run fourth and hit his eighth homer of the season in the eighth inning to round out a three-hit night. Rod Carew of the Twins, the American League's leading hitter, also had his second straight three-hit night.

paid a $2,500 bonus to defensive tackle Alan Page under a ruling by Commissioner Pete Rozelle. Page's contract called for the bonus if he made any of four All-Star teams. He was named to UPI's All Conference team and Finks contested it. Rozelle ruled in Page's favor.

John Riggins, the New York Jets' leading rusher and Most Valuable Player last season, walked out of camp Tuesday after failing to agree on a contract with Weeb Ewbank, the head coach and general manager.

"The way I see it now, I won't be back." said Riggins, who reported last Wednesday but did not work out with the Jets. "We're too far apart."

Riggins reportedly is asking for $120,000 a year and Ewbank is offering $40,000.

Buffalo traded veteran offensive lineman Irv Goode to Miami for defensive tackle Mike Kadish, the Dolphins' No. 1 draft choice last season. Kadish taxied all last year.

Defensive back Bryant Salter, who walked out of San Diego's camp 13 days ago with contract problems, returned to the Chargers. Coach Harland Svare said Salter was fined $150 a day.

Job Switch

ATLANTA (UPI) — Commissioner Phil Woosman of the North American Soccer League formerly was general manager and coach of the Atlanta Chiefs.

It's A Dismal Week In Minor Leagues

Marin's five minor league batsmen combined for an average of .206 last week, with only Tom Olson of Kentfield improving his season's mark.

Olson hit three clutch singles in 10 times up to drive in four runs and lift his average to .279 for the New York Mets' Marion, Va., farm team in the Appalachian Rookie League.

Dolinsek, struggling through a 19-for-98 stretch, went 0-for-4 last week and slid to .285 for Denver in the Class AAA Aerican Association, a Houston affiliate.

Thomas, with only seven hits in his last 39 at-bats, has dipped to .293 for Salem, Va., in the Class A Carolina League. The Pittsburgh Pirate property was 4-for-25 last week and drove in two runs, hiking his season total to 80. He has 11 homers.

Clifford Hill of Marion City, who had been inching upward, slid back down a bit with a 5-for-19 week that left him at .269 for Quincy, Ill., a Chicago Cub farm team in the Class A Midwest League.

Fairfax' Mike Parnow went 2-for-10 for Ogden, Utah, in the Pioneer Rookie League, dropping his average to .218. He is property of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Niether Marin pitcher — Novato's Russ Dillon or San Rafael's Dewey Forry — was involved in a decision last week. Dillon is 3-6 with a 5.64 earned run average for Savannah, Ga., the Atlanta Braves' Class AA Southern League affiliate. Forry is 9-3 and 3.25 for the Class A California League Bakersfield Dodgers.

Al Curtiss of Fairfax, signed by Oakland after he graduated from Drake High School last year, was released and has returned to Marin. He intends to attend College of Marin this fall.

Petaluman In Car Race Lead

During the next five weeks, Petaluma's Larry Schlee will try to clinch his second sportsman auto racing title in as many years — and on different tracks.

Schlee, who captured the Petaluma track crown last season, brings a 65-point lead into Saturday night's regular NASCAR action at Antioch Speedway. The season ends Sept. 29 with a 100-lap special.

Unofficial point standings show Schlee with 912 points followed by Gene Dothage of Fremont with 847. San Rafael's Gary Ramsier and Kirk Edison also have an outside at the title, but their scores were unavailable. First race Saturday is 8 p.m.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Another Big Fair Opens Tomorrow

Much like last year — but better.

That's what we can expect from the Marin County Fair, which opens its five-day run tomorrow at the county fairgrounds and Marin Veterans Memorial building, according to fair manager Marcelle McCoy.

In general, the arrangement will be much like last year's, but there will be a few changes. For the first time, fruits, vegetables and flowers will be displayed in the Veterans Memorial lobby. There, also, will be the art exhibit and an enlarged photography exhibit, along with a model railroad in operation.

THE FAIR'S film competition has proved a big pre-show attraction this year, and films entered will be shown free to those visiting the fair. They came from all over the United States.

The Marin Civic Ballet will give free entertainment on the stage of the Veterans Memorial, as will mimes Robert Shields and his wife, Lorene Yarnell.

Outdoors, there will be more entertainment than ever before.

The Banana Splits will be back with their fun for small fry, as will the puppet theater. There'll be a "high country band," the San Francisco Strutters, and — a new feature — two visiting marching bands, the 75-member Watsonville Community Band on Monday (Labor Day) and the Sacramento Youth Band on Sunday.

Another new feature which Mrs. McCoy expects to be a crowd-pleaser will be a fiddling contest — not violin playing, please, but fiddling, country style.

THERE'LL BE the usual sale and display booths, model gardens, commercial and non-commercial, a circus, boat rides, kiddie train — and a carnival twice as big as in years past.

All in all, it sounds like a great fair — and another tribute to the organizing and arrangement abilities of Mrs. McCoy, who has managed to retain the best features of the former Marin Art and Garden Fair in the new fairgrounds setting.

See y'all there!

Longevity Symbols

In the Far East, butterflies symbolize longevity and it is considered great luck if a butterfly alights on a child. Why this should be makes us wonder. For butterflies are very short lived, even for insects. However, in some Chinese dialects the word for butterfly is supposed to have the same sound as "60 years of age."

Whatever the explanation, most butterflies are dead within a month of emerging from the chrysalis and none lives as long as a year. Consider what perfection goes into the wings of this brief form of life when next you see one flitting over our fences and feeding on our Marin flowers.

State Compensatory Education Program Produces Results

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Many educational programs turn out to be long on promises and short on results, but State Supt. Wilson C. Riles is able to point to a record of measurable accomplishment last year in California's compensatory education.

This program is designed to benefit pupils who, for one reason or another, either enter school unable to keep abreast of their classmates or else fall behind after entering. To provide special help for these children, the program depends heavily on part-time teachers and on parent conferences.

Funding is chiefly from the federal treasury under Title 1 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. During the 1971-72 school year, "Title 1" programs were offered in 560 California school districts. They reached 314,281 pupils, of whom 96.7 per cent were in the public schools.

IN HIS ANNUAL report to the legislature on this program, submitted this month, Superintendent Riles said that these pupils made an average of one year's growth or better in both reading and mathematics for each year in the program, based on tests at the beginning and end of the year.

This was notable, Riles wrote, because "these children in the past had achieved only four to six months' gain during one school year without compensatory assistance."

Statewide, the program cost $133 million for the year — or approximately $422 per pupil enrolled in it.

It was most successful, noted Riles, in the lower grades.

"This is consistent," he commented, "with what educators have always believed to be true: We must reach disadvantaged children — in fact, all children — at an early age before frustration and failure become a way of life for them. We are talking about the difference between prevention and remediation — between building and repairing."

It also was more successful, he noted, in suburban and medium-sized urban areas than in the big cities.

ANALYSIS of figures in Riles's report makes the success of the program appear a little less impressive than his statement of an average of one year's growth or better might lead one to believe.

In both reading and mathematics, children in the compensatory program were able to keep up to grade level only during the first three grades. From there on, they gradually slipped behind.

In reading, public school children enrolled averaged at a level of 5.8 — just short of sixth grade — on completion of the eighth grade, and only at eighth grade level on completion of high school. Those in non-public schools averaged at 7.3 — almost up to grade level — on completing eighth grade.

In mathematics, the grade level average in public schools was 6.3 on completing eighth grade and 8.5 on completing high school. In the non-public schools it was 7.4 — again almost up to grade level — on completion of the eighth grade.

However, 64 per cent of those in the public schools and 70.2 per cent of those in non-public schools showed gains in reading of better than seven months for each nine months in the program. In mathematics, such gains were shown by 74.1 per cent in public and 79.6 per cent in non-public schools.

This means that two-thirds to three-fourths of these "educationally handicapped" children were able to almost keep up with grade levels because of having the compensatory programs.

THE OVER-ALL result falls a little short of that attained by the compensatory education program in Michigan, as reported for the same school year several months ago by State Supt. John W. Porter. There, 112,000 children in kindergarten through sixth grade enrolled in compensatory education made average gains of 1.4 years for each year of instruction, Superintendent Porter announced.

Nevertheless, Riles's report gives assurance that compensatory education in California is working, and the $133 million outlay did not go for nothing.

New Theories About Nature Of Universe

In the most interesting article printed in last night's (Aug. 24) Independent-Journal, "New Data Hints Collapse of Universe Impossible," the statement was made that the age of the universe was over four billion years. Inasmuch as our sun is believed to be somewhat around five and one-half billion years old, and two Quasars have recently been resolved at distances between 10 and 11 billion light years away by radio telescopes, as well as the fact that the best of optical telescopes can now penetrate deep space to around eight billion light years away, we must drastically revise our belief in the size of the universe.

What does this all mean? At the present time the majority of astronomers believe that the universe is round, that the "Hubble Law" or constant holds true (the further objects are from us in deep space the faster they are receding from us) clear to the "edge" of our universe... Today's fantastically powerful radio telescopes can now "photograph" electronically deep space so far away that what has been resolved to date indicates that matter is rapidly thinning out (approaching the edge of the universe) and which corraborates theoretical mathematical studies, and that the far reaches of our universe are "peopled" with a whole strange new array of celestial objects (Seyfert, N-types, and Zwicky "compact" galaxies, as well as the above mentioned Quasare) which release such fantastic amounts of energy that the source of their energy is unknown and makes the well-known atomic processes that "stoke" the stars, and in many cases blow them to pieces most violently (nova and super-nova) look like the burst of a firecracker compared to the sudden disappearance of a large nitroglycerin factory.

Thank you for your excellent monthly sky charts and accompanying astronomical data.

Nomination For I-J 'Carrier Hall of Fame'

We nominate Bernie Wiegandt for the I-J Carrier Hall of Fame. Subscribers since 1968, Bernie first started delivering the I-J to us two years ago when he was an 11-year-old boy. Today he is an enthusiastic 13-year-old I-J business promoter.

Bernie enters Del Mar School eighth grade in Tiburon this fall with money in his pocket from his own earnings. He is cheerful, friendly and polite. After complimenting him for two years of dependable service a few days ago, Bernie confided in us that he carries two adjoining I-J routes — earning from them $60 each month. He speaks proudly of the seven awards your circulation representative has encouraged him to win.

Learning by earning, Bernie wins our support for the I-J Carrier Hall of Fame. He is living proof the American system works under leadership such as yours. You are helping our youngsters to become fine American men — the hope of the future.

Thank you for constantly improving the quality of the I-J.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Having been informed that U.S. colleges are overcrowded, we're now told they're under-attended.

A college recruiter is part truant officer and part bounty hunter who gets as much as $500 per body.

Due to student shortages, some universities are having trouble getting a quorum for campus riots.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Putting The Union Label On Every Classroom

By RUS WALTON

The public schools of this state are about to slide further down the drain.

They will for sure if Senate Bill 400 becomes law.

That legislation — authored by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco — would force radical changes in employee-employer relations in the entire California public school system, kindergarten through colleges and universities.

It would establish a mandatory collective bargaining procedure between school boards and teachers' unions and could turn the classrooms into closed shops.

The bill has passed the State Senate, 21-17, and has just cleared the Assembly Education Committee, 11-4.

First, it opens the door to teacher strikes.

Senator Moscone denies that. But, the two groups behind the bill — the California Teachers Assn. (CTA) and the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) — both demand the right to strike.

The Moscone-Bagley bill seeks to allay such work stoppages by establishing a collective bargaining procedure that climaxes in binding arbitration. And that brings up a second evil.

Under SB 400, when all else failed, employer-employe disputes would be settled by an arbitration award that "shall be final and binding" upon all parties — including the taxpayer.

The "third party" arbiter would not be an elected official. He would not be accountable to the taxpayers or parents.

SB 400 contains no "management rights" clause — management meaning the taxpayer and his elected or appointed representatives.

This could open a Pandora's Box of teacher union demands in such areas as curricula, class-content and lesson plans and other policy decisions. Those policy decisions belong to the employer — the taxpayer-parent — not to the employee (the teacher).

FINALLY, the bill would lump the educational employer-employee relations structure — elementary, secondary and higher — into a giant labor monolith. It would not be long before we had an education monopoly, controlled by the unions, calling the tune.

You think I exaggerate? Listen: Herrick Roth, former head of the Colorado Labor Council, told AFT delegates that the labor movement would not reach its "ultimate" until union shop signs were posted in every classroom.

He also advised that teachers must place their union obligations first. Already those unions stand guilty of manipulating lesson-plans, of propagandizing on Cesar Chavez and his activities, and of refusing to use qualified but non-union-printed materials in the classroom.

THAT IS NOT free education. That is not even good education. That is coercion.

Schools belong to kids and the quest for knowledge. They are not financed to be recruiting grounds for union memberships or breeding grounds for propaganda.

If SB 400 gets to the Governor's desk — and it probably will — he has not choice but to veto it... and hope his veto is sustained.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

Farewell, Pocomoonshine, You're Doomed By The Numbers

MEDDYBEMPS, Me. — The postmistress here is named Effie Gillespie, and she does business in one wing of her house by the side of Route 191. It is green clapboard and shingle with white trim, and has an apple tree and a bird feeder out back, wash hanging on the line and an American Flag dancing in the morning breeze.

Mrs. Gillespie has been postmistress for 20 years come March, long enough to state firmly that Meddybemps means "lake of many islands" in the Indian language, (although the Washington County edition of "Maine Place Names" opts for "plenty of alewives").

When you mail a post card, Mrs. Gillespie takes her rubber stamp and thumps it firmly across the corner, leaving wavy black lines and no doubt where it came from — a village where the main enterprises are Palmeter's Grocery and Gas Station, which sells worms and crawlers and does game inspection duty in the fall; the Meddybemps airport, which has an orange windsock, five very light planes and a barn-style hangar beside the rolling grassy runway, and the United States Post Office.

AS FAR AS Mrs. Gillespie is concerned, she intends to keep postmarking cards and letters by hand until the postal inspector tells her not to. But the United States Postal Service down in Washington has fine and modern plans for the Meddybempses of this world, and they do not include hand-postmarking.

You can tell by the service you have been getting lately that they already have started improving things. There is much more to come.

The trouble with human postal clerks, a Postal Service spokesman said the other day, is that they have limited "scheme knowledge." That means that Mrs. Gillespie, for example, might not know whether Pomona is a suburb of Los Angeles or San Francisco — although I have confidence that she does.

Clerks are fairly efficient, however, at reading numbers. So, the Postal Services hopes, will be some devices now being tested, called Optical Character Reading Machines. That is why the Postal Service is phasing in ZIPcoes (for Zone Improvement Plan, in bureaucratese).

THE "SERVICE," which also is in bureaucratese and though not an acronym does not mean exactly what it says, reports reasonably good customer cooperation with the ZIP system by now. About 80 per cent or 85 per cent of mailings use the ZIP. It has started using the ZIP only, and phasing out town names. So when you get a letter or package you will have to guess where it's from. If it is from Meddybemps, the postmark will say ME 04657. This, the service explains, will expedite handling of mail at big post offices to be called Sectional Center Facilities. Instead of slowing down to stamp each piece with its specific origin, it will be rushed to an SCF and postmarked by number and rushed to its addressee, who lives in another number. Thus, the theory goes, the mail will be miraculously speeded up.

Horray for the SCF, and too bad about Meddybemps. Everybody might not know the etymology of their towns' names, but a lot of people do. Everybody might not look at the postmarks to see where their mail came from, but a lot of people do. I still remember post cards from Cloudcroft and Sydney when I was little, and never fail to check the postmarks on letters now before opening them.

TOO BAD, not only for Meddybemps, but for Atchafalaya, Point Barrow and Chili Gulch. Any postmark (or dateline) fancier would be forced, on first receiving a missive from same, to bolster his scheme knowledge by looking up and finding that the first means "long river" in Indian, the second is for the man who was second secretary of the admiralty when Capt. Frederick William Beechey rounded that northernmost point in Alaska in 1826, and Chili Gulch designated a Mexican mining camp in the California gold fields.

Then there are some I haven't been to yet. I still look forward to Itchepuckesassa, which is in Florida and means either "tobacco field" or "where the moon puts the colors of the rainbow into the earth and the sun draws them out in the flowers," depending on who your Seminole translator is.

Before I get there, though, I plan to swing through Pocomoonshine, which is only about 30 miles from here, up the road the other side of Baring, Woodland and Princeton.

There is a whole mapful of them, and I hope I never get to the last one. I wonder whether I ever would have bothered starting out had it not been for the invitation on the hand-stamped post marks of the cards and stamps I collected back then. And it beats me how anybody who hasn't begun yet is going to be tempted onto the road by the inscriptions left by an Optical Character Reading Machine at a Sectional Center Facility, something like ME 04657.

Efficiency? Humph!

1973, Baltimore Sun.

Watergate Questions Won't Vanish At President's Bidding

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is asking a lot of the American people to turn from their questioning and anxiety about Watergate just because he has reaffirmed that he himself had no foreknowledge of the break-ins nor any part in the White House coverup.

I happen to be one who believes that the President did not have such foreknowledge and was not a participant in the coverup. But I still believe that the American people are entitled to get a fuller and more forthright explanation on the following:

WHY DID MEN Mr. Nixon deemed honorable and trustworthy become involved in the Watergate offenses?

What in his relationship to his staff made the offenses possible?

How could most of the circumstances remain concealed from the President when so much was known by nearly everyone else?

Mr. Nixon's San Clemente press conference was a good beginning — so good that even the New York Times praised the President for his "self-confidence and conciliatory good humor."

Mr. Nixon couldn't have been more candid and direct than when he answered the question about how much personal blame he accepted for creating the climate in the White House for the Watergate abuses. His answer: "I accept it all."

But there are further matters which need clarification.

I am not suggesting presidential complicity. There is no evidence, other than John Dean's "impression," that there was any complicity.

MR. NIXON HIMSELF has rightly said that Watergate involves "a whole series of acts that either represent or appear to represent abuse of power." The President's reaffirmation that he was not involved in them does not explain how they came about.

Here are some of the questions to which I believe most Americans would like to get answers directly from the President Why weren't the President's suspicions aroused much earlier than they appear to have been when the first signs that something was going dreadfully wrong began to appear?

With all the powers and resources of the presidency available to him, what explanation can Mr. Nixon give to account for the fact that the press could uncover so much of the Watergate offenses when the government was unable to do so?

Mr. Nixon himself said that immediately after the Watergate break-in one of his foremost considerations was to "get the facts out first." Why was he unable to do so?

WHEN THE PRESIDENT learned that the White House "plumbers" had illegally broken into Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office — thus exceeding his instructions — why didn't Mr. Nixon order these lawbreakers dismissed?

What was the President's reaction and response, if any, when he learned that Atty. Gen. John Mitchell continued to retain the services of G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt after they had three times proposed the burglary and bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters?

What was there in the climate of the White House, and in the relationship between the President and his most trusted associates, that could persuade John Mitchell that he was faithfully serving the President by deciding to withhold from Mr. Nixon everything he knew lest it adversely affect the election?

These offenses are not things which the nation committed. They are acts which the President's own people committed. When, as the Harris poll shows, some 66 per cent of the public has an adverse reaction to Mr. Nixon's Watergate speech, this means that many who wish the President well feel they need and deserve to hear from him more frankly and more forthrightly.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

In his booklet "Eat to Live," Dr. D. M. Hegsted, professor of nutrition at the Harvard School of Public Health, states: "The well-nourished person in good health impresses you as mentally and physically alert, appropriately contoured, well proportioned, and very much alive. He is active and strong with a capcity for work and play and resists infection. The well-nourished person has straight and strong bones, with firm and well-toned muscles. The hair is glossy, the eyes bright, and the skin smooth and supple. His teeth are well-formed, free of cavaties, and the gums pink and firm."

FINE PHYSICAL specimens such as these people do not overeat, yet enjoy a variety of foods. Appetite and digestion are good, and elimination is regular. Chances are they sleep better and awaken more refreshed. Unfortunately, many people never achieve this enviable state. Others have it, but cannot maintain it.

Weight also is an outward sign of physical condition. A person's ideal weight is said to be what he weighed between 25 and 30 years of age — if at that time he was in good health and not too fat or too skinny. At age 25, most men have reached maximum physical growth, women at 20. From this time on, food no longer will be used for growth; it will be used develop energy for warmth and vitality, and to help regulate body processes. Maintenance of the body demands the constant replacement of worn-out cells and tissues with vital new material.

AMERICANS tend to overeat and underexercise. Some estimate that about 20 to 25 per cent of our population could lose a few pounds. For many people, the gain in weight is so gradual that it is not noticed for years. Since overweight is a form of malnutrition, these people are not exactly in the best of health. There are exceptions because the height-weight tables of insurance companies do not always take into consideration body frame and musculature. Some people are overweight "by the book", but not when examined.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen c/o the Independent Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

ON COFFEE JAG

A reader writes: We have a new neighbor who says she drinks three pots (24 cups) of coffee every day. She always has what appears to be a jag on and we wonder if her flubby conversation and peculiar actions are due to too much coffee. All of us on the block are coffee drinkers, but not to excess. We do get together every morning at 10 for three or four cups.

REPLY

Overindulgence (five or more cups) in caffeine leads to insomnia, dizziness, restlessness, anxiety, excitement, and confusion. In this respect, your neighbor is on a coffee jag. On the other hand, the situation may be reversed in that she has a nervous disorder or is unbalanced mentally and drinking too much coffee merely aggravates the condition.

RELAXING HOT BATH

G. A. writes: Is there any harm in taking a hot bath at night to induce sleep?

REPLY

No. Many persons find that a hot bath offers just enough relaxation to put them to sleep.

Teacher Strikes Are Predicted

PACIFIC GROVE, Calif. (UPI) — Teachers in about 143 U.S. school districts will be making strike threats for higher wages, a National Education Association spokesman predicted.

Terry E. Herndon, the NEA's executive secretary, did not identify the districts but called them "serious trouble spots."

Sentencing In Murder Case

OAKLAND (UPI) — Harold Holmes, 24, was sentenced yester-day for 2nd degree murder in the death of Anthony Costa, 59, who was shot down while dumping trash in a street container in front of the Black Panther Party offices in East Oaklaand.

During Holmes' trial before Superior Judge Harold Hove and an all-white jury, the prosecution presented evidence that Holmes, a member of the Panthers, was passing the offices in his car on Sunday, Feb. 17. He stopped and shot Costa in the back of the head after a quarrel, the prosecutor charged.

The jury found that Holmes was sane at the time of the slaying. He was sentenced to 10 years to life in prison.

Abourezk Raps Indian Programs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., charged yesterday that the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs has tried to eliminate the Indian problem "by eliminating reservation Indians." Abourezk said the bureau relocates Indians in cities, then forgets them.

Ce Ce Marin, director of the Intertribal Friendship House in Oakland, Calif., told the subcommittee that the government's job training programs for Indians moving to cities rarely lead to employment.

After the programs, she said, "everything ceases."

Dr. Taylor Refuses A Promotion

Dr. Robert R. Taylor yesterday turned down promotion to director of community mental health services when Marin County supervisors refused a midyear salary boost to $34,650. (Other Marin Supervisors stories, page 1.)

Taylor, who currently makes $31,500, as program chief of those services told supervisors he couldn't accept the post to be vacated Friday by Dr. Donovan O. Cooke because of "the principle of how people are paid."

Supervisors quickly named Betty L. Presley, director of health and human services, to the state mandated position — which falls under her authority anyway.

Taylor, who agreed Mrs. Presley should be named to the slot, said he would accept the "greater legal responsibility" only with a 10 per cent pay hike.

Taylor, who under a departmental reorganization will have a reduced workload, was asked by supervisors what he meant by greater responsibility.

He responded that it was "whether the buck could be passed one step further" or stop with him.

Taylor reminisced, by way of example, that Dr. Cooke had taken the blame for a large deficit in mental health spending recently even though the error occurred, in part, in Taylor's office. "People are paid for the responsibility they assume," he said.

County Administrator John F. Barrows then recommended Miss Presley be named to the position.

"And then Dr. Taylor can have someone to pass the buck to," Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere added.

Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. came to Taylor assistance saying he didn't interpret the psychiatrist's remarks as meaning he would pass responsibility.

Supervisors Approve Portable Lighting For Fair Parking Lot

Marin County supervisors authorized $750 yesterday to rent portable lights to illuminate the Veterans Memorial Building parking lot during the county fair, which opens a five-day run tomorrow.

The board approved the allocation after Darryl G. Bellack of the Northgate Lion's Club complained that the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. recently had removed all light standards at the lot which is being repaved.

He also urged that sand or gravel be placed over oil puddles to protect fairgoers against slipping.

Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker agreed with the need for temporary lighting and gravel but noted that he managed to walk through the parking lot the other day without getting oil on his shoes.

In approving the funds, supervisors also asked that the lot be rolled to eliminate swells.

Ron Marinoff of the Lucas Valley Homeowners Association told supervisors the $300,000 construction project should have been phased to avoid conflicting with the county fair.

The Marin Board of Supervisors Also:

SOLID WASTE — Approved a contract, not to exceed $48,000, with the architect and engineering firm of Garretson, Elmendorf, Zinov and Reibin to prepare a master plan for solid waste (garbage) management. CHAMBERS — Approved $1,500 for building modifications to provide chambers for visiting judges in the Hall of Justice.

PRISONERS — Approved payment of $18,036 to Sonoma County for housing of Marin prisoners during June, July and August due to the delay in opening the county honor farm.

APPEAL — Rejected the appeal of Edward Titus of the planning commission's denial of his master plan for an 11-unit apartment house near the Mark Twain Shopping Center in Santa Venetia.

SIGNS — Approved placement of two stop signs at Belvedere Drive and Ricardo Road in Strawberry.

LEASES — Voted to renew a lease for the community mental health services team office at 61 Camino Alto, Mill Valley, for $16,050 for the year — a cost of more than 60 cents per square foot. A search for cheaper quarters also was ordered. Approved a new lease for a similar office in Point Reyes Station for $3,500 through June 1974, at a square-foot rate of 24 cents a month.

COMMUNITY ACTION — Unanimously concurred with Community Action Marin proposals to budget federal funds to several projects: $7,407 for medical contact service by the Street Ministry of Southern Marin; $6,720 for Operation Give A Damn (O'GAD) in Marin City, and $8,000 for auto mechanic training in Marin City, to be operated by the Boys Club of Southern Marin.

APPRENTICESHIP — Voted 4-1 with Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguires dissenting, to concur with Community Action Marin proposals to fund three apprenticeships of the Baulines Craftsmen's Guild at $1,200 each.

Shooting In India Kills Untouchable

NEW DELHI (UPI) — One person was killed and eight others were injured Monday when police opened fire on a crowd of untouchable farm laborers in a village in the state of Andhra Pradesh, the Press Trust of India (PTI) news agency reported today.

The agency quoting official reports said about 2,000 laborers attacked a police party with spears and sticks when it took into custody a labor leader on a charge of inciting people and fomenting trouble.

Reagan Labels Post's Analysis Of Tax Initiative Distortion

Reagan told a Capitol news conference that the analysis of the initiatve Post has written for the ballot "is neither an analysis nor is it nonpartisan."

He said Post distorted the analysis in an attempt to confuse voters and defeat the initiative.

Post has said success of the initiative may force Reagan to cut next year's budget by as much as $680 million.

Reagan said that is not true.

Reagan said, "A number of legislators have expressed to me their shock at Mr. Post's depature from the role he is supposed to play. His office I regret to say has in fact become as partisan as the Assembly Office of Research which does the bidding of the speaker.

"He is doing their bidding in a partisan sense," Reagan said.

Post has been the legislature's chief fiscal adviser, under both Republican and Democratic majorities, for the past 20 years.

Asked why Post would deliberately distort figures and the potential effect of the initiative, Reagan said: "I think you have to look at who employs him. He is employed by the legislative leadership.

"The purpose is to confuse the people of California," Reagan said. "They have attempted to create fears in the minds of the people if this initiative is passed."

The initiative, if approved in November, would freeze the percentate of personal income going for state taxes at the current level and then reduce the percentage gradually over the next 15 years.

The analysis is required by law.

Ambitious Plans For Boxing Show

The San Rafael Jaycees and a group of men trying to form the Central Marin Boys Club have some mighty ambitious plans in the fire for a boxing show Oct. 19 in the College of Marin gym.

Joseph A. Gereghty of Kentfield, one of the men trying to get the Boys Club over the first hurdle, called the I-J office to announce plans for a program of Amateur Athletic Union exhibition bouts and said his group was trying to get heavyweight champion George Foreman and former light heavyweight champ Archie Moore to head the show.

The Jaycees are co-sponsoring the boxing program but all money raised will go to help start the Central Marin Boys Club. And Gereghty says they are hoping to raise between $5,000 and $6,000. That would be quite a feat if they landed Foreman and Moore, and since both men enjoy working in programs for kids there is a distinct possibility it could happen.

JOHN LOANE, former place kicker at Drake High and College of Marin, will be getting his kicks at Cal Poly in San Luis Obispo this year. Loane will be getting his room and board paid by doing his specialty, kicking footballs through goalposts. From what I've heard about this young man's kicking, he's definitely a professional prospect.

TWO SAN RAFAEL residents, Gary Mason and Dolly O'Keefe, are among the first winners in the KNBR Silver and Black Oakland Raider sweepstakes, a contest sponsored by United Delco and KNBR. Gary and Dolly won themselves Raider stadium blankets, so now they can stay warm at all the Raider games.

FOR ALL YOU MARIN COUNTY hardy souls who like to swim and run: have you heard about the third annual Clear Lake Marathon Sept. 22 put on by the Lake County Chamber of Commerce?

The torture test starts out with a seven-mile run from Lucerne to Indian Beach Resort in Glenhaven. Then comes a three-mile swim across Clear Lake to the Konocti Harbor Inn, followed by a 3,000-foot climb up the face of Mount Konocti. But it doesn't end there. The entrants who can still stand will then turn around, run down the mountain and swim back another three miles to Indian Beach Resort. Ow! My arms and legs hurt just thinking about it.

The winners of the first two marathons — 1971 champ Frederick Timms of Clearlake Oaks and '72 king Gary Ruff of Hayward — have already sent in their entry blanks for the event which carries the stamp of approval by the AAU. Entry blanks can be obtained by writing the Lake County Chamber of Commerce at P.O. Box 517, Lakeport 95453.

DID YOU EVER TRY ice hockey on a strip of linoleum? You will get such a chance at the Marin Amateur Hockey Club's booth at the Marin County Fair tomorrow through Monday. There will be a goalie, pads and all, and a net, and a strip of linoleum. The club will be selling chances (three for a quarter) to persons who want to try to score a goal. There'll be prizes for those who succeed.

The proceeds will pay for some of the expenses the club has for the upcoming season.

'Catfish' Helps A's Widen Their Lead

OAKLAND (UPI) — Despite missing nearly a month because of a thumb injury in the All-Star game, Jim (Catfish) Hunter is on schedule for his third straight 20-game season and a solid shot at American League Cy Young Award honors.

The sturdy Oakland A's righthander, making his third start last night since the injury on a hit off the bat of the Chicago Cubs' Billy Williams, pitched a one-hitter for seven innings and wound up with his 17th victory in 20 decisions with a 6-1 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

"There was no other call but a hit," said A's skipper Dick Williams. "You hate to see the first hit come that way. It was just one of those things."

Hunter didn't like the call and eventually left after the seventh inning when he developed a tenderness in his right shoulder. He was in front 6-0 and Rollie Fingers finished up. The Red Sox touched the A's' ace reliever for two singles and a sacrifice fly in the eighth for their only run.

Hunter now hasn't lost a game since May 29. He's 12-0 over the stretch and has a chance to top his big league career victory total of 21, which he achieved in both 1971 and 1972.

Ray Fosse's two-run triple and a single by Green netted the A's three runs off Boston's Dick Pole in the second and they finally chased him in the seventh with three more runs.

It was the A's' 14th victory in the last 16 games and, coupled with Kansas City's loss to Cleveland, increased Oakland's lead over the Royals in the AL West to 5 ½ games with 31 left to play. The A's conclude their current homestand tonight against Boston, then open a three-game weekend series in Kansas City. Two of three victories over the Royals could all but lock up the division title.

Vida Blue (15-7) pitches for the A's tonight against Bill Lee (14-8). Lee said Monday night that he has thrown a spitter on occasion and virtually dared A.L. President Joe Cronin to fine him as he did Jim Merritt of the Texas Rangers.

Despite last night's loss to the A's the Red Sox are five games behind Baltimore in the A.L. East. They have won nine of their last 11 starts.

LARCENY IN HIS HEART — The A's Bill North (4), who came over from the Chicago Cubs to become the American League's stolen base leader, pilfered No. 43 of the year in the fifth inning last night in the Oakland Coliseum, as Boston second baseman Doug Griffin lunged after a high, wide throw from catcher Carlton Fisk. The A's won, 6-1, to extend their lead in the American League West to 5½ games over Kansas City.

Giants' Bats Quiet; Juan Loses Another 1-0 Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 400-foot drive over the left field fence was all the Philadelphia Phillies needed yesterday to beat the San Francisco Giants for the second straight day.

Bill Robinson connected with the homer in the second inning off Giants' starter Juan Marichal. It was his 23rd of the season and seventh home run in 10 games.

For Marichal, now 10-11, it was his second straight 1-0 loss. He allowed only five hits.

The loss also was another step backward for the Giants who now trail first-place Los Angeles by nine games in the National League West.

The Phillies' Wayne Twitchell, 13-6, scattered four hits over the distance. The righthander offered few opportunities to score, retiring strings of

Berkeley Game For Raiders

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders announced yesterday that their Sept. 23 National Football League game against the Miami Dolphins will be played at the University of California stadium in Berkeley instead of the Oakland Coliseum.

The Raiders said the switch has been approved by the University's regents. It was requested because the Oakland A's baseball team is scheduled to play in the Coliseum Monday, Sept. 24.

As a result of the change to the Berkeley site, which has a capacity of 75,000, the Raiders will offer 21,000 additional tickets for sale. Fans who have purchased tickets for the game in the 54,000-seat coliseum will get exchange tickets in the mail, the team said.

FOREST HILLS

Top Stars, Rich Purse

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Politics within the game has kept the world's top tennis players from competing together for the past 12 months but all of them, including the two top seeds, Stan Smith and Ilie Nastase, were at Forest Hills today for the start of the richest U.S. Open championship in history.

This year's prize money amounts to $227,200 with both singles titles worth $25,000 to the winner. Smith and Billie Jean King are the respective favorites. It is the first time in history the women have played for a similar prize as the men, something which has not gone down too well with the men.

Last year, Forest Hills was the only tournament of the world's big four which drew a top field and tournament director Bill Talbert has again achieved his aim of presenting "the best there is in the game today."

The top stars bypassed the Australian Open due to the lengthy travel involved and because of the poor prize money offered; many skipped the French titles in Paris because of a dislike of clay courts and a heavy winter indoor schedule, while Wimbledon saw over 70 of the top males stay away because a fellow pro, Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia, had his entry rejected.

There was a possibility the tennis wars would be carried to Forest Hills, but the International Lawn Tennis Federation, the controlling body of the sport, cleared the way yesterday for Mrs. King to defend her title.

Mrs. King, who is seeking her fifth title to go with her five Wimbledon crowns, was under a cloud because she, along with 1967 champion John Newcombe of Australia and Federation Cup captain Linda Tuero, had signed contracts with World Team Tennis which does not have federation approval.

Signing of contracts or accepting guarantees is contrary to ILTF rules, but the federation's main objection to WTT is that its three-month schedule, which runs from May through July, would seriously disrupt the European circuit and part of the U.S. summer-fall calender.

Frenchman Bob Abdesselam, a member of the ILTF's committee of management and one of four men on the emergency suspension committee, said the federation did not wish "to disrupt the championship" and that no action will be taken until the committee has had a chance to meet next week.

Namath Files $2.3 Million Magazine Suit

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath, star quarterback for the New York Jets, yesterday filed a $2.3 million suit against Sports Illustrated and Time Inc., for using his name without permission in advertisements for the magazine.

The complaint was filed in Manhattan Supreme Court and gave Time 20 days to answer the charges.

In the complaint, Namath charged that from June, 1969, to the present Sports Illustrated conducted "a malicious campaign to malign, disgrace and impugn his integrity and honesty."

Champ In Top Shape For Saturday Bout

TOKYO (UPI) — World heavyweight champion George Foreman concentrated on speed today as he sparred four rounds in apparently top shape for his first title defense Saturday against challenger Joe King Roman of Puerto Rico.

Roman, the World Boxing Association (WBA) ninth ranking contender, did not spar but punched a bag hard for four rounds and shadow boxed for six rounds at the Toyo Boxing gym shortly before Foreman arrived there.

Manager Bill Daly said Roman had finished his gym work and would do only light roadwork tomorrow. Friday, he would only take a long walk.

"Roman will not be a standing target for Foreman," Daly said. "He will move fast and get in a punch. It will be a good fight. My only concern is that Roman, a Puerto Rican, might get mad and lose his temper if he is hit. That'll be bad because Roman might set himself up to be stopped."

Foreman boxed two rounds each with Len Hutchins of Kalamazoo, Mich., whom Sadler described as a leading light heavyweight contender, and middleweight Sam Helmer of San Francisco.

Foreman bored in relentlessly and pumped in hard lefts and rights to the body against Hutchins. Helmer moved to his left and right, the probable tactics of Roman, but Foreman caught him a corner and unleashed hard body punches.

Foreman then punched a small bag for six consecutive minutes and skipped rope for another six minutes.

Dr. Keith West of Hayward, Calif., who arrived last Saturday as Foreman's doctor, watched Foreman train and said, "Foreman is the best specimen of a human God has ever created. He is in perfect condition. He went through six minutes of bag punching and he is not even breathing."

Foreman said he was in the best of condition because he has been training for a month.

Foreman refused to predict any knockout win over Roman, saying "it is a 50-50 chance for me and Roman and it is up to me to make it 55-45 or better for me."

Asked if he preferred Joe Frazier or Ali in his next fight, Foreman said, "I don't care who I fight. I gotta fight to make a living and I'll fight anybody."

The rules for the fight will be discussed by Sadler and Daly with the Japan Boxing Commission tomorrow.

Schmidt's Bat Paces Valley's Softball Win

Larry Schmidt hit two doubles and a single last night to pace a 15-hit Valley Realty attack which subdued Charcoal Pit, 18-11, in a San Rafael Recreation Department adult softball league game at Albert Field.

In other games, Gary Burns singled home the winning run in the seventh inning as Don Collins Buick edged Holiday Magic, 5-4, and Wesco Cabinet defeated Apache Signs, 5-2.

FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

Veteran Nitschke Retires

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Ray Nitschke, one of the last ties to Vince Lombardi's great Green Bay teams of the early 1960s, has called it a career after 15 years in the National Football League.

Nitschke, once one of the most ferocious players in the game and voted the best middle linebacker of the NFL's first 50 years, announced his retirement yesterday at an emotion-filled news conference. Nitschke, relegated to a third-string job in recent seasons, probably saved the Packers the unenviable task of cutting the popular ex-star.

Coach Dan Devine installed Jim Carter as his starting middle linebacker and had Larry Hefner in reserve and thought that Nitschke wouldn't report to camp. In fact, Nitschke's name and biography were obvious additions to the Packer press guide.

"The spirit is still there but the numbers game got to me," said Nitschke, who helped the Packers to three consecutive NFL titles and two Super Bowl wins. "There's no room on the roster for a third middle linebacker. Even though I have known the day would come when I'd have to make this announcement, it never really is an easy one to do. I'm going to hang No. 66 up for the last time."

In other news from the training camps, the Minnesota Vikings dealt Gene Washington to Denver for Rod Sherman in an exchange of wide receivers. Washington was one of the top receivers in the NFL before suffering nagging foot injuries two years ago. Sherman, who also played for Oakland and Cincinnati, was Denver's leading receiver last year with 38 catches.

Raiders' Angry Siani Walks Out

He failed to return to the Raiders' camp following Saturday's pre-season loss to the Minnesota Vikings and instead returned to his apartment in Walnut Creek.

"All I want is a $5,000 raise," said Siani, who made 28 receptions in his rookie season. "Al Davis (managing general partner) promised me a raise if I had a good season last year. Well, I think I played quite well."

Siani said he had planned to miss only one day of practice as a protest but decided to stay away from camp until he can come to some sort of a more profitable arrangement with Raider management.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Proper Gear For Mooring

The meaning of the word "dock" has undergone quite a change over the past generation or two.

To the average boatman today, a dock is almost anything or any place to which, or where, he can tie up his boat.

In its original meaning, a dock was the water space between wharves or piers in which a boat might rest with security. It was also called a slip or a berth, and to a degree these words have retained much of their original meaning.

A vessel was moored in a dock, not to it.

However, now that we have agreed that the word has changed meaning, let's not quibble about it, because it really doesn't matter, as long as you know what the guy you are talking to really means.

Here are a few other nautical words you will hear, and they too may be undergoing a change of meaning.

To tie a boat up to a pier, wharf, dock or even a quay, morring lines must be used. They are made fast to cleats or bitts bolted to the dockside. For big ships bollards are provided.

Rubbing or chafing between boat and wharf or dockwall is taken up by fenders. When a boat is berthed in a slip regularly, lines of proper length are made up with eye-splices (permanent loops) and chafing gear is provided.

The chafing gear may be pieces of rubber hose, canvas or leather wrapped around a morring line where it passes through a chock or fairlead.

There are a hundred more words of more or less specialized meaning used by boaters in mooring their craft. Most are self-explanatory. But that there are doubts concerning mooring procedures is shown by some of the questions we've been asked:

Q. What rope resists abrasion best as a mooring line?

A. Nylon and dacron are about equal, and far ahead of all natural fiber ropes.

Q. Is rope required on pleasure craft?

A. The law doesn't demand that small pleasure craft carry any rope, but common sense certainly does. Two 20-foot lengths for tying up are a minimum. For cruisers, or craft 26 feet long or more, two 50 foot lengths for morring and 100 feet of rope or chain for an anchor are necessary. I also carry about 50 feet of buoyant heaving line, such as a piece of ski-tow rope. It's handy to throw to someone when you are coming in to a dock under difficult circumstances.

Q. I left my boat tied up. The rope shrank in a rain storm and pulled a cleat off my deck. How much does rope shrink?

A. Synthetic rope doesn't shrink when wet, but all natural fiber rope — manila, hemp, sisal, cotton and lines — do. Assume that most natural fiber ropes will shrink up to one inch per foot when thoroughly wet.

Q. Is nylon better than manila rope for an anchor line?

A. Infinitely. Nylon stretches and has a springiness that no other type of rope has. It's good for an anchor line but not so good for applications such as sheets or halliards where stretch is not wanted.

Cunningham Battling For A Job

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — San Francisco 49ers' running back Doug Cunningham says he's a mellow fellow — except when it comes to blocking.

"All blocking is," said Cunningham, "is to want to go get 'em and knock 'em off their feet. My asset used to be my quickness, but now it's just that I'm tough."

After two years of bench-rest with knee and back problems, Cunningham considered retiring.

"The season came around and I mellowed," said Cunningham, 27. "The frustration left me about the time my wallet got flat and I started getting hungry."

Coach Dick Nolan said the seven-year veteran "came into camp in the best shape he's been in for a couple of years. He's running well and he's always been a good blocker. We just didn't know if he was healthy."

On that score, Cunningham set the coach's mind straight after one practice session.

In one day, Nolan said, "he went through the two-a-day workout and did conditioning on his own. Then I found him on the exercise machine and later he ran on the treadmill and had one of the highest oxygen intakes. What a recovery."

It's A Dismal Week In Minor Leagues

Marin's five minor league batsmen combined for an average of .206 last week, with only Tom Olson of Kentfield improving his season's mark.

Olson hit three clutch singles in 10 times up to drive in four runs and lift his average to .279 for the New York Mets' Marion, Va., farm team in the Appalachian Rookie League.

Dolinsek, struggling through a 19-for-98 stretch, went 0-for-4 last week and slid to .285 for Denver in the Class AAA American Association, a Houston affiliate.

Thomas, with only seven hits in his last 39 at-bats, has dipped to .293 for Salem, Va., in the Class A Carolina League. The Pittsburgh Pirate property was 4-for-25 last week and drove in two runs, hiking his season total to 80. He has 11 homers.

Clifford Hill of Marion City, who had been inching upward, slid back down a bit with a 5-for-19 week that left him at .269 for Quincy, Ill., a Chicago Cub farm team in the Class A Midwest League.

Fairfax' Mike Parnow went 2-for-10 for Ogden, Utah, in the Pioneer Rookie League, dropping his average to .218. He is property of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Niether Marin pitcher — Novato's Russ Dillon or San Rafael's Dewey Forry — was involved in a decision last week. Dillon is 3-6 with a 5.64 earned run average for Savannah, Ga., the Atlanta Braves' Class AA Southern League affiliate. Forry is 9-3 and 3.25 for the Class A California League Bakersfield Dodgers.

Al Curtiss of Fairfax, signed by Oakland after he graduated from Drake High School last year, was released and has returned to Marin. He intends to attend College of Marin this fall.

Rico Carty Returns To Atlanta

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Henry Aaron moved another step closer to "the record" last night but he was overshadowed by the homecoming of a former teammate.

Returning to Atlanta Stadium for the first time since he was traded by the Braves last Winter, former National League batting champion Rico Carty drove in four runs to pace the Chicago Cubs to a 9-6 victory over the Braves.

Carty's performance enabled the Cubs to overcome Aaron's three-run homer in the first inning, a towering drive over the 375-foot mark in left field. It was the 33rd homer for Aaron and the 706th of his career. He needs eight more this season to tie Babe Ruth's all-time record of 714 homers.

If Aaron continues at his present pace, he'll wind up this season at 713—one short of the mark. But he still has a shot at making it this year with a late surge.

Carty, who was traded from Atlanta to Texas last winter and then was shipped to the Cubs earlier this month, hit a two-run homer in the first inning in his first at bat in Atlanta Stadium since leaving the Braves. He added a two-out bases loaded single in the fifth.

In the other games, St. Louis topped Houston 8-3, Pittsburgh downed Cincinnati 8-3, Los Angeles beat Montreal 6-1, Philadelphia blanked San Francisco 1-0 and New York outlasted San Diego 8-6.

Al Oliver's two-run homer touched off a four-run sixth inning and paced the Pirates over Ross Grimsley. Bob Johnson worked the final 3 1-3 innings to save Bob Moose's ninth win.

Claude Osteen won his 16th game with a five-hitter and Steve Garvey drove home two runs to pace the Dodgers over the Expos. Osteen, boosting his record to 16-6, walked three and struck out two and registered his 12th lifetime victory in 14 decisions against Montreal.

Lou Brock hit a two-run single and Tommie Agee homered to pace St. Louis over the Astros. Brock's two-run hit climaxed a four-run fourth inning rally. Alan Foster pitched a six-hitter in boosting his record to 11-7.

The Mets scored five runs in the sixth inning to beat the Padres. Wayne Garrett started the rally with a homer as the Mets gave Jon Matlack, who was lifted in the eighth inning, enough help to record his 11th victory.

Water District Wins

The Marin Municipal Water District opened the floodgates for seven runs in the bottom of the fifth inning Monday night and went on to defeat the Sausalito Fire Department, 17-10, at Bundy FIeld in Larkspur to win the championship of the Marin County Firemen's Softball League.

Texas' 'Given Day' Arrives

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

On any given day, baseball folk are fond of saying, even the worst can beat the best. yesterday was the Texas Rangers' given day.

With the crack of Toby Harrah's bat in the fifth inning and Sonny Siebert's clutch relief pitching in the late innings, Texas finally penetrated Baltimore's invincibility and defeated the Orioles 5-3.

Ended were: Baltimore's 14-game winning streak, the longest in the majors since 1965; Baltimore's nine-game winning streak over the Rangers; and Dave McNally's 17-game winning streak over Texas.

McNally, whose record dropped to 13-14 this year, hadn't been beaten by the Rangers since Sept. 12, 1968. He was through last night, though, after Harrah singled home Ken Suarez to snap a 3-3 tie in the fifth.

Ranger Manager Whitey Herzog was asked afterward how it felt to beat Baltimore and McNally after losing so often.

"Anytime we win is a cause for celebration," Herzog said.

Herzog wasn't kidding. The Rangers, with 46 victories and 84 losses, own the worst record in the majors. The Orioles, on the other hand, at 75-53, lead the American League East by 4 ½ games.

The Orioles jumped to a 3-1 lead after three innings but Bill Sudakis tied the score with two-run homer in the fourth inning off McNally. After Harrah's RBI put the Rangers ahead to stay in the fifth and Texas added an insurance run on a single and two errors on bunts by Baltimore reliever Bob Reynolds in the seventh, Siebert came on to pitch the final 2 2-3 innings.

He put down an Oriole threat in the seventh with two on and one out and set the Orioles down in the final two innings to earn his second save.

In other AL games, Oakland beat Boston 6-1, Cleveland edged Kansas City 4-3, Minnesota blanked Detroit 5-0, Chicago defeated Milwaukee 6-4 and California stopped New York 5-2.

John Lowenstein singled in the first run and triggered a three-run sixth inning with a single to pace the Indians over Kansas City and extend the Royals' losing streak to four games.

Tony Muser's two-run double in the eighth inning drove in what proved to be the winning runs as the White Sox stretched their winning streak to four games with the victory over Milwaukee.

Bob Oliver drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Lee Stanton hit a solo homer to pace California over New York and hand the Yankees their seventh straight defeat.

nine and 10 batters at a time. He twice struck out Bobby Bonds who had moved back to the leadoff position after batting third in 17 games.

Tito Fuentes singled to open the ninth for the Giants, but was cut down at second on a bunt by Garry Maddox. Willie McCovey followed with a single to center, but Maddox was out stretching for third base on the play.

Maddox also hit what appeared to be double to left field in the sixth inning, but Phillies outfielder Greg Luzinski leaped high to snare the ball near the top of the wall.

San Jose's Brown Pitches Perfect Game

SAN JOSE (AP) — San Jose right-hander Ray Brown pitched a no-hit, 3-0 victory last night over Modesto, the first perfect game in 31-years of California League play.

Brown, relying chiefly on his slider, struck out three of the 21 Modesto players he faced in the seven-inning game.

"If it happens, it happens. It doesn't do any good to worry," said Brown.

The no-hitter was the first game of a doubleheader. San Jose won the second game 7-1 with southpaw Curt Isom on the pitchers mound.

DECKER WINS 6TH IN ROW ON SHUTOUT

DETROIT (UPI) — Joe Decker won his sixth straight game on a five-hitter and Joe Lis drove in a pair of runs with a single and a homer last night to lead the Minnesota Twins to a 5-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Petaluma's Decker walked four but still faced only five batters over the minimum and raised his record to 9-5 with his second straight shutout. His teammates turned over three double plays and caught one man stealing behind him.

Lis singled in a run during a three-run fourth and hit his eighth homer of the season in the eighth inning to round out a three-hit night. Rod Carew of the Twins, the American League's leading hitter, also had his second straight three-hit night.

paid a $2,500 bonus to defensive tackle Alan Page under a ruling by Commissioner Pete Rozelle. Page's contract called for the bonus if he made any of four All-Star teams. He was named to UPI's All Conference team and Finks contested it. Rozelle ruled in Page's favor.

John Riggins, the New York Jets' leading rusher and Most Valuable Player last season, walked out of camp Tuesday after failing to agree on a contract with Weeb Ewbank, the head coach and general manager.

"The way I see it now, I won't be back." said Riggins, who reported last Wednesday but did not work out with the Jets. "We're too far apart."

Riggins reportedly is asking for $120,000 a year and Ewbank is offering $40,000.

Defensive back Bryant Salter, who walked out of San Diego's camp 13 days ago with contract problems, returned to the Chargers. Coach Harland Svare said Salter was fined $150 a day.

Quarterly Plan On Savings Bonds

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. How can the small investor, who may from time to time wish to buy U.S. Treasury bonds or notes, receive information directly on new issues? Is there any one office in the U.S. government from which we could receive regular announcements on offerings? — E.B.

A. First of all, the Treasury Department does not always include offerings for cash in its quarterly refunding operations. Instead, maturing debt securities must be exchanged in order to acquire newly offered issues. Notice of these offers appears in the financial pages of newspapers across the country late in January, April, July and October. July 25, 1973, the Treasury offerd for cash three securities including $2 billion 7¾% 4-year notes, $500 million of 7½% 20-year bonds and $2 billion of 35-day September tax-anticipation bills.

According to the Treasury, limited if any further cash offerings are anticipated over the balance of 1973.

Descriptive literature, subscription forms and Treasury circulars on specific new government offerings are available through the 12 Federal Reserve Banks. However, individual requests to be placed on a regular mailing list are not encouraged since most of the mailings are applicable to banks and are thus not pertinent to small investor.

Q. We would appreciate your opinion on the future of Olin Corp. (NYSE). Does the fact that they recently wrote off a large investment in the aluminum industry indicate problems? — V. N.

A. In 1972, Olin's aluminum business produced a loss equal to 28 cents a share. However, this year, with this operation no longer included in income statements, Olin's earnings have staged an impressive rebound.

For the first half — including only continuing operations — profits rose over 50 per cent to $1.15 a share. Management is projecting a 20 per cent gain in net for 1973 despite a slowdown in the economy. In addition to the discontinuance of the aluminum business, Olin's earnings are benefiting from the cancellation of an unprofitable government contract and the write-off of certain losing chemical operations.

1974 GREMLINS

American Motors' sub-compact, the Gremlin, displays a number of refinements in 1974. In front, a new grille incorporates parking lamps and turn signals. At the rear, there is a new lower back panel and restyled quarter panels. Special options offer a wide range of personal choice in appearance and performance, including the X package, a new Rallye-Pac which provides full instrumentation, and the "Levi's" blue jeans upholstery. All 1974 American Motors cars will go on sale in early September. Marin dealer is San Rafael American.

Market Posts Sharp Gains After A Month

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market posted sharp gains today in the most active trading in more than a month of the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the sudden upsurge had been building internally for the last four days, and stemmed largely from the list's extremely oversold condition following a month of steady declines. Issues that had been hit hardest lately were among the day's bigtest gainers.

While most observers were reluctant to pin the rise on outside factors, some said the market may have been helped by falling commodity prices, and a spreading belief interest rates may be nearing a peak.

Philip Morris, under heavy selling pressure ever since a government agency said it was considering a partial or total ban on cigarette sales, attracted some buying during the day.

The company said it is expanding its capital spending plans by $250 million, and increased its quarterly dividend to 35 cents a share from 32.4 cents.

Polaroid, also a loser in recent weeks, rose sharply. The firm said it plans to send its new SX-70 instant picture system to dealers within a month.

Curtiss-Wright was among the losers at one point. The issue has weakened since Ford Motor announced it did not plan to produce a rotary engine car. Curtiss-Wright holds certain North American rights on the Wankel rotary engine.

Mayfair Buys 'Beef On Hoof'

Mayfair Supermarkets is buying herds of cattle "on the hoof" to keep its meat cases full during the current beef shortage.

The chain's meat buyers have contacted ranchers all over California to buy cattle in feedlots (average 50 head per lot). Mayfair then pays packing houses to process the beef to its specifications.

"So far as we know, Mayfair and Alpha Beta are the only major supermarket chains which have had normal beef supplies since the shortage began five weeks ago," said A. J. Crosson, president of Arden-Mayfair, Inc.

Furniture Restoration Of Marin Opens; Many Specialties Offered

Furniture Restoration of Marin, a new company, has opened in San Rafael this week at 26 Medway No. 10, around the corner from Bellach's Furniture. William Hoey Co. arranged for the lease.

Partners in the new venture are Anthony Bilardi and Richard Merwin, both of San Francisco, who will strip, refinish and repair furniture of all kinds ranging from standard chairs to exotic antiques.

Bilardi said his firm uses a water-free chemical solution that does not loosen the glue on furniture joints so that the most delicate antiques can be safely restored. Furniture Resortation of Marin will serve homeowners, antique dealers and furniture stores.

Bilardi marketed roller bearings in Westport, Conn., for six years before deciding to open the business in Marin. His partner, Merwin, was an engineer in Westport who has been restoring furniture for the past two years.

WILLIAM K. KITCHIN of Sacramento, executive director of the California Optometric Association, was elected to the American Optometric Foundation board last month.

Before moving to Sacramento, Kitchin lived in San Rafael from 1960 to 1971 while serving as executive secretary of the Canners League of California.

Kitchin Beiter

JEANE BEITER, owner of Decoupage Ltd. in Pacheco Plaza, Novato, has been named a member of the National Guild of Decoupers, an organization with only 141 members throughout the United States and only four in California.

For the last 12 years, Mrs. Beiter has been practicing the fine art of decoupage, the careful application of patterns and paints to various surfaces to create designs, and has been teaching the techniques for the last eight years.

For almost two years she and her husband, Karl Beiter, have operated Decoupage Ltd. at Pacheco Plaza, 416 Ignacio Boulevard.

BANK OF MARIN'S branch office in Sausalito plans to move about Nov. 1 into new and expanded quarters at 180 Harbor Drive, just east of Big G Super market in the new Bob Greene Building that is under construction.

Richard Russo, manager of the Sausalito branch, said the new location will have better parking for customers, safe deposit boxes, and almost double the space of the existing bank. Bank of Marin's Sausalito branch was opened two and a half years ago at 2656 Bridgeway, between Sailboats Sausalito and John C. Berry Co.

GARY S. MOREY, owner of the Skylight art and custom framing shop in San Rafael, is now doing professional cartooning for local businessmen.

So far, Morey has drawn 50 caricatures in color of businessmen in Marin County. The framed cartoons, 16 by 20 inches, are on display at Cal's Steak House at Third and C Streets, San Rafael.

C. HARVEY MIELENZ of San Rafael will retire a week from today (Sept. 5) after 30 years with the Union Pacific Railroad in San Francisco, where he spent most of his time in the passenger department.

Before World War II, Mielenz was with the American Express Company in both the travel and financial departments.

After retirement from Union Pacific, Mielenz plans to take some advanced courses in domestic and international travel and then go to work for a travel agency, probably the first of next year.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
44 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WED, AUGUST 29, 1973 EDITORIAL PAGE

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Another Big Fair Opens Tomorrow

Much like last year — but better.

That's what we can expect from the Marin County Fair, which opens its five-day run tomorrow at the county fairgrounds and Marin Veterans Memorial building, according to fair manager Marcelle McCoy.

In general, the arrangement will be much like last year's, but there will be a few changes. For the first time, fruits, vegetables and flowers will be displayed in the Veterans Memorial lobby. There, also, will be the art exhibit and an enlarged photography exhibit, along with a model railroad in operation.

THE FAIR'S film competition has proved a big pre-show attraction this year, and films entered will be shown free to those visiting the fair. They came from all over the United States.

The Marin Civic Ballet will give free entertainment on the stage of the Veterans Memorial, as will mimes Robert Shields and his wife, Lorene Yarnell.

Outdoors, there will be more entertainment than ever before.

The Banana Splits will be back with their fun for small fry, as will the puppet theater. There'll be a "high country band," the San Francisco Strutters, and — a new feature — two visiting marching bands, the 75-member Watsonville Community Band on Monday (Labor Day) and the Sacramento Youth Band on Sunday.

Another new feature which Mrs. McCoy expects to be a crowd-pleaser will be a fiddling contest — not violin playing, please, but fiddling, country style.

THERE'LL BE the usual sale and display booths, model gardens, commercial and non-commercial, a circus, boat rides, kiddie train — and a carnival twice as big as in years past.

All in all, it sounds like a great fair — and another tribute to the organizing and arrangement abilities of Mrs. McCoy, who has managed to retain the best features of the former Marin Art and Garden Fair in the new fairgrounds setting.

See y'all there!

Longevity Symbols

In the Far East, butterflies symbolize longevity and it is considered great luck if a butterfly alights on a child. Why this should be makes us wonder. For butterflies are very short lived, even for insects. However, in some Chinese dialects the word for butterfly is supposed to have the same sound as "60 years of age."

Whatever the explanation, most butterflies are dead within a month of emerging from the chrysalis and none lives as long as a year. Consider what perfection goes into the wings of this brief form of life when next you see one flitting over our fences and feeding on our Marin flowers.

State Compensatory Education Program Produces Results

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

Many educational programs turn out to be long on promises and short on results, but State Supt. Wilson C. Riles is able to point to a record of measurable accomplishment last year in California's compensatory education.

This program is designed to benefit pupils who, for one reason or another, either enter school unable to keep abreast of their classmates or else fall behind after entering. To provide special help for these children, the program depends heavily on part-time teachers and on parent conferences.

Funding is chiefly from the federal treasury under Title 1 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. During the 1971-72 school year, "Title 1" programs were offered in 560 California school districts. They reached 314,281 pupils, of whom 96.7 per cent were in the public schools.

IN HIS ANNUAL report to the legislature on this program, submitted this month, Superintendent Riles said that these pupils made an average of one year's growth or better in both reading and mathematics for each year in the program, based on tests at the beginning and end of the year.

This was notable, Riles wrote, because "these children in the past had achieved only four to six months' gain during one school year without compensatory assistance."

Statewide, the program cost $133 million for the year — or approximately $422 per pupil enrolled in it.

It was most successful, noted Riles, in the lower grades.

"This is consistent," he commented, "with what educators have always believed to be true: We must reach disadvantaged children — in fact, all children — at an early age before frustration and failure become a way of life for them. We are talking about the difference between prevention and remediation — between building and repairing."

It also was more successful, he noted, in suburban and medium-sized urban areas than in the big cities.

ANALYSIS of figures in Riles's report makes the success of the program appear a little less impressive than his statement of an average of one year's growth or better might lead one to believe.

In both reading and mathematics, children in the compensatory program were able to keep up to grade level only during the first three grades. From there on, they gradually slipped behind.

In reading, public school children enrolled averaged at a level of 5.8 — just short of sixth grade — on completion of the eighth grade, and only at eighth grade level on completion of high school. Those in non-public schools averaged at 7.3 — almost up to grade level — on completing eighth grade.

In mathematics, the grade level average in public schools was 6.3 on completing eighth grade and 8.5 on completing high school. In the non-public schools it was 7.4 — again almost up to grade level — on completion of the eighth grade.

However, 64 per cent of those in the public schools and 70.2 per cent of those in non-public schools showed gains in reading of better than seven months for each nine months in the program. In mathematics, such gains were shown by 74.1 per cent in public and 79.6 per cent in non-public schools.

This means that two-thirds to three-fourths of these "educationally handicapped" children were able to almost keep up with grade levels because of having the compensatory programs.

THE OVER-ALL result falls a little short of that attained by the compensatory education program in Michigan, as reported for the same school year several months ago by State Supt. John W. Porter. There, 112,000 children in kindergarten through sixth grade enrolled in compensatory education made average gains of 1.4 years for each year of instruction, Superintendent Porter announced.

Nevertheless, Riles's report gives assurance that compensatory education in California is working, and the $133 million outlay did not go for nothing.

New Theories About Nature Of Universe

In the most interesting article printed in last night's (Aug. 24) Independent-Journal, "New Data Hints Collapse of Universe Impossible," the statement was made that the age of the universe was over four billion years. Inasmuch as our sun is believed to be somewhat around five and one-half billion years old, and two Quasars have recently been resolved at distances between 10 and 11 billion light years away by radio telescopes, as well as the fact that the best of optical telescopes can now penetrate deep space to around eight billion light years away, we must drastically revise our belief in the size of the universe.

What does this all mean? At the present time the majority of astronomers believe that the universe is round, that the "Hubble Law" or constant holds true (the further objects are from us in deep space the faster they are receding from us) clear to the "edge" of our universe... Today's fantastically powerful radio telescopes can now "photograph" electronically deep space so far away that what has been resolved to date indicates that matter is rapidly thinning out (approaching the edge of the universe) and which corraborates theoretical mathematical studies, and that the far reaches of our universe are "peopled" with a whole strange new array of celestial objects (Seyfert, N-types, and Zwicky "compact" galaxies, as well as the above mentioned Quasare) which release such fantastic amounts of energy that the source of their energy is unknown and makes the well-known atomic processes that "stoke" the stars, and in many cases blow them to pieces most violently (nova and super-nova) look like the burst of a firecracker compared to the sudden disappearance of a large nitroglycerin factory.

Thank you for your excellent monthly sky charts and accompanying astronomical data.

Nomination For I-J 'Carrier Hall of Fame'

We nominate Bernie Wiegandt for the I-J Carrier Hall of Fame. Subscribers since 1966, Bernie first started delivering the I-J to us two years ago when he was an 11-year-old boy. Today he is an enthusiastic 13-year-old I-J business promoter.

Bernie enters Del Mar School eighth grade in Tiburon this fall with money in his pocket from his own earnings. He is cheerful, friendly and polite. After complimenting him for two years of dependable service a few days ago, Bernie confided in us that he carries two adjoining I-J routes — earning from them $60 each month. He speaks proudly of the seven awards your circulation representative has encouraged him to win.

Learning by earning, Bernie wins our support for the I-J Carrier Hall of Fame. He is living proof the American system works under leadership such as yours. You are helping our youngsters to become fine American men — the hope of the future.

Thank you for constantly improving the quality of the I-J.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Having been informed that U.S. colleges are overcrowded, we're now told they're under-attended.

A college recruiter is part truant officer and part bounty hunter who gets as much as $500 per body.

Due to student shortages, some universities are having trouble getting a quorum for campus riots.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Putting The Union Label On Every Classroom

By RUS WALTON

The public schools of this state are about to slide further down the drain.

They will for sure if Senate Bill 400 becomes law.

That legislation — authored by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco — would force radical changes in employee-employer relations in the entire California public school system, kindergarten through colleges and universities.

It would establish a mandatory collective bargaining procedure between school boards and teachers' unions and could turn the classrooms into closed shops.

The bill has passed the State Senate, 21-17, and has just cleared the Assembly Education Committee, 11-4.

First, it opens the door to teacher strikes.

Senator Moscone denies that. But, the two groups behind the bill — the California Teachers Assn. (CTA) and the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) — both demand the right to strike.

The Moscone-Bagley bill seeks to allay such work stoppages by establishing a collective bargaining procedure that climaxes in binding arbitration. And that brings up a second evil.

Under SB 400, when all else failed, employer-employe disputes would be settled by an arbitration award that "shall be final and binding" upon all parties — including the taxpayer.

The "third party" arbiter would not be an elected official. He would not be accountable to the taxpayers or parents.

SB 400 contains no "management rights" clause — management meaning the taxpayer and his elected or appointed representatives.

This could open a Pandora's Box of teacher union demands in such areas as curricula, class-content and lesson plans and other policy decisions. Those policy decisions belong to the employer — the taxpayer-parent — not to the employee (the teacher).

FINALLY, the bill would lump the educational employer-employee relations structure — elementary, secondary and higher — into a giant labor monolith. It would not be long before we had an education monopoly, controlled by the unions, calling the tune.

You think I exaggerate? Listen: Herrick Roth, former head of the Colorado Labor Council, told AFT delegates that the labor movement would not reach its "ultimate" until union shop signs were posted in every classroom.

He also advised that teachers must place their union obligations first. Already those unions stand guilty of manipulating lesson-plans, of propagandizing on Cesar Chavez and his activities, and of refusing to use qualified but non-union-printed materials in the classroom.

THAT IS NOT free education. That is not even good education. That is coercion.

Schools belong to kids and the quest for knowledge. They are not financed to be recruiting grounds for union memberships or breeding grounds for propaganda.

If SB 400 gets to the Governor's desk — and it probably will — he has not choice but to veto it... and hope his veto is sustained.

Farewell, Pocomoonshine, You're Doomed By The Numbers

MEDDYBEMPS, Me. — The postmistress here is named Effie Gillespie, and she does business in one wing of her house by the side of Route 191. It is green clapboard and shingle with white trim, and has an apple tree and a bird feeder out back, wash hanging on the line and an American Flag dancing in the morning breeze.

Mrs. Gillespie has been postmistress for 20 years come March, long enough to state firmly that Meddybemps means "lake of many islands" in the Indian language, (although the Washington County edition of "Maine Place Names" opts for "plenty of alewives").

When you mail a post card, Mrs. Gillespie takes her rubber stamp and thumps it firmly across the corner, leaving wavy black lines and no doubt where it came from — a village where the main enterprises are Palmeter's Grocery and Gas Station, which sells worms and crawlers and does game inspection duty in the fall; the Meddybemps airport, which has an orange windsock, five very light planes and a barn-style hangar beside the rolling grassy runway, and the United States Post Office.

AS FAR AS Mrs. Gillespie is concerned, she intends to keep postmarking cards and letters by hand until the postal inspector tells her not to. But the United States Postal Service down in Washington has fine and modern plans for the Meddybempses of this world, and they do not include hand-postmarking.

You can tell by the service you have been getting lately that they already have started improving things. There is much more to come.

The trouble with human postal clerks, a Postal Service spokesman said the other day, is that they have limited "scheme knowledge." That means that Mrs. Gillespie, for example, might not know whether Pomona is a suburb of Los Angeles or San Francisco — although I have confidence that she does.

Clerks are fairly efficient, however, at reading numbers. So, the Postal Services hopes, will be some devices now being tested, called Optical Character Reading Machines. That is why the Postal Service is phasing in ZIPcoes (for Zone Improvement Plan, in bureaucratese).

THE "SERVICE," which also is in bureaucratese and though not an acronym does not mean exactly what it says, reports reasonably good customer cooperation with the ZIP system by now. About 80 per cent or 85 per cent of mailings use the ZIP. It has started using the ZIP only, and phasing out town names. So when you get a letter or package you will have to guess where it's from. If it is from Meddybemps, the postmark will say ME 04657. This, the service explains, will expedite handling of mail at big post offices to be called Sectional Center Facilities. Instead of slowing down to stamp each piece with its specific origin, it will be rushed to an SCF and postmarked by number and rushed to its addressee, who lives in another number. Thus, the theory goes, the mail will be miraculously speeded up.

Horray for the SCF, and too bad about Meddybemps. Everybody might not know the etymology of their towns' names, but a lot of people do. Everybody might not look at the postmarks to see where their mail came from, but a lot of people do. I still remember post cards from Cloudcroft and Sydney when I was little, and never fail to check the postmarks on letters now before opening them.

TOO BAD, not only for Meddybemps, but for Atchafalaya, Point Barrow and Chili Gulch. Any postmark (or dateline) fancier would be forced, on first receiving a missive from same, to bolster his scheme knowledge by looking up and finding that the first means "long river" in Indian, the second is for the man who was second secretary of the admiralty when Capt. Frederick William Beechey rounded that northernmost point in Alaska in 1826, and Chili Gulch designated a Mexican mining camp in the California gold fields.

Then there are some I haven't been to yet. I still look forward to Itchepuckesassa, which is in Florida and means either "tobacco field" or "where the moon puts the colors of the rainbow into the earth and the sun draws them out in the flowers," depending on who your Seminole translator is.

Before I get there, though, I plan to swing through Pocomoonshine, which is only about 30 miles from here, up the road the other side of Baring, Woodland and Princeton.

There is a whole mapful of them, and I hope I never get to the last one. I wonder whether I ever would have bothered starting out had it not been for the invitation on the hand-stamped post marks of the cards and stamps I collected back then. And it beats me how anybody who hasn't begun yet is going to be tempted onto the road by the inscriptions left by an Optical Character Reading Machine at a Sectional Center Facility, something like ME 04657.

Efficiency? Humph!

Watergate Questions Won't Vanish At President's Bidding

WASHINGTON — President Nixon is asking a lot of the American people to turn from their questioning and anxiety about Watergate just because he has reaffirmed that he himself had no foreknowledge of the break-ins nor any part in the White House coverup.

I happen to be one who believes that the President did not have such foreknowledge and was not a participant in the coverup. But I still believe that the American people are entitled to get a fuller and more forthright explanation on the following:

WHY DID MEN Mr. Nixon deemed honorable and trustworthy become involved in the Watergate offenses?

What in his relationship to his staff made the offenses possible?

How could most of the circumstances remain concealed from the President when so much was known by nearly everyone else?

Mr. Nixon's San Clemente press conference was a good beginning — so good that even the New York Times praised the President for his "self-confidence and conciliatory good humor."

Mr. Nixon couldn't have been more candid and direct than when he answered the question about how much personal blame he accepted for creating the climate in the White House for the Watergate abuses. His answer: "I accept it all."

But there are further matters which need clarification.

I am not suggesting presidential complicity. There is no evidence, other than John Dean's "impression," that there was any complicity.

MR. NIXON HIMSELF has rightly said that Watergate involves "a whole series of acts that either represent or appear to represent abuse of power." The President's reaffirmation that he was not involved in them does not explain how they came about.

Here are some of the questions to which I believe most Americans would like to get answers directly from the President Why weren't the President's suspicions aroused much earlier than they appear to have been when the first signs that something was going dreadfully wrong began to appear?

With all the powers and resources of the presidency available to him, what explanation can Mr. Nixon give to account for the fact that the press could uncover so much of the Watergate offenses when the government was unable to do so?

Mr. Nixon himself said that immediately after the Watergate break-in one of his foremost considerations was to "get the facts out first." Why was he unable to do so?

WHEN THE PRESIDENT learned that the White House "plumbers" had illegally broken into Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office — thus exceeding his instructions — why didn't Mr. Nixon order these lawbreakers dismissed?

What was the President's reaction and response, if any, when he learned that Atty. Gen. John Mitchell continued to retain the services of G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt after they had three times proposed the burglary and bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters?

What was there in the climate of the White House, and in the relationship between the President and his most trusted associates, that could persuade John Mitchell that he was faithfully serving the President by deciding to withhold from Mr. Nixon everything he knew lest it adversely affect the election?

These offenses are not things which the nation committed. They are acts which the President's own people committed. When, as the Harris poll shows, some 66 per cent of the public has an adverse reaction to Mr. Nixon's Watergate speech, this means that many who wish the President well feel they need and deserve to hear from him more frankly and more forthrightly.

Luxuriant Roadside Plant Growth Could Use Some Pruning

With abundant rain and good growing weather all over Marin and Sonoma counties this year, plant growth has reached the state of being downright luxuriant. In fact in some places it has grown like a jungle.

In driving around the area we have noticed that this plant growth, in many places, has concealed street signs and traffic signs. We came up to a stop sign on Center Road and Diablo Avenue in Novato the other day and stopped. It was a good thing we knew that was a stop, because the sign was completely obscured by a tree in the parking strip.

The public works departments of county and cities ought to send crews out to inspect all signs and cut away the plant growth that hides many of them.

THE STATE DIVISION of Highways is solving the traffic congestion in Novato by constructing a bypass around it. When this is opened next year, it will eliminate the only traffic lights on Highway 101 from the Golden Gate Bridge to Cloverdale.

However, it will not eliminate all of the traffic hazards, and will help create some. For example, what about traffic going in and out of Gnoss Field and the nearby industrial area, including McGraw-Hill Book Co. and the Lodge?

With the lights now stopping traffic, cross traffic has a chance to get on and off the highway during traffic breaks. What will happen when the bypass opens and northbound motorists suddenly find that instead of a freeway, they are on an expressway with cross traffic?

Another seasonal traffic problem will come when and if the Renaissance Pleasure Faire is allowed to build its permanent home in the north county. Add to that a proposed college and other development along San Antonio Creek, and cross traffic will grow into a worsening problem.

SPEAKING OF frontage roads, the developer of the property on the west side of Highway 101 south of Loma Verde should be required to construct a frontage road to connect Marinwood with the frontage road along the highway in Novato.

If that was done, it would be possible to leave Highway 101 at San Marin Drive and take alternate routes as far south as Puerto Suello Hill in San Rafael.

Release Of Mullin Said A Mistake

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan yesterday said the release of convicted murderer Herbert W. Mullin from the state mental institutions before he killed 10 persons was a "psychiatric mistake" and not the fault of the state.

The foreman of the jury which convicted Mullin Aug. 19 said in an "open letter" that Reagan and legislative leaders were "as responsible for the 10 deaths as Mullin.

"Five times prior to young Mr. Mullin's arrest, he was entered into mental hospitals," said foreman Kenneth E. P. Springer. "Yet in January of this year he was free to take the lives of 10 Santa Cruz residents."

Reagan told a news conference, "I think that the jury foreman was uninformed about the workings" of the state's mental institutions.

Asked if the release could have come about because of "economy" reasons, Reagan replied, "No patient has been released for that reason."

Reagan said psychiatry was not an exact science and "these mistakes will happen.

"Obviously he was a threat to others. He should have been held in," the governor said, terming the release a "psychiatric mistake."

Reagan also said Springer, who runs a television and appliance shop in Felton, Mullin's hometown, "was absolutely wrong" when he indicated the state was "dumping out on the street" its mentally ill wards.

Gregory, Other Activists Cleared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Comedian Dick Gregory and seven other peace activists were acquitted yesterday of illegal entry and unlawful assembly charges for praying at the White House before the Cambodian bombing halt.

Superior Court Judge Charles Halleck said the White House was a public place and the assemblage had stopped only briefly to kneel and pray without obstructing traffic.

"We were praying for peace and they arrested us," Gregory said. "You better believe if we had been praying for Richard Nixon's health they wouldn't have touched us."

Five uniformed White House guards who made the arrest were present in the courtroom but they were not called by the government's attorney, Donald Abrams. Halleck has been hearing 185 cases stemming from several arrests made at the White House of pacifists and antiwar demonstrators who staged pray-ins before the Aug. 15 halt.

Halleck ordered David James Flynn of New York released from confinement in the District of Columbia jail on Monday. Flynn had spent two weeks in solitary confinement for refusing to give Judge Paul F. McArdle his last name after he was arrested for praying at the White House.

Administrative Aide Hired For Sausalito

The Sausalito City Council last night approved the hiring of George T. Warman Jr., an administrative assistant for the city of Los Altos Hills, Calif., as finance officer-administrative assistant. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 1.)

The position is a newly-created one recommended by City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie. Margaret Olmsted, current deputy finance officer, has resigned effective Sept. 7. She replaced Hazel Pieracini who resigned Aug. 1.

Warman received a bachelor's degree in public administration from San Francisco State College and a master's degree in public administration from California State University at Hayward.

Before his stint at Los Altos Hills, he was a lieutenant in the Marine Corps. A resident of Millbrae, he is single.

Shopping Center Sets Art Show

The Novato Fair shopping center will have its ninth annual fall art show at the center from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Sept. 15, according to Vicki Nichols, show coordinator.

Artists from the bay area are expected to participate, including Valeris Rivas of Petaluma, whose wood art has won awards in previous shows.

Harness Racing

The Hambletonian Stake harness race, most famous event in trotting, will be run today in Du Quoin, Illinois. Harness racing first appeared in this country in the 1700's. Long a popular sport in rural areas, harness races are still a main attraction at many county fairs. Years ago, farm horses — more accustomed to the plow than the race track — were often harnessed to the family wagon or carriage and raced down the road. As the sport becan[illegible]ore popular, the four-wheel wagon gave way to [illegible] modern two-wheel cart. Harness horses have two different gaits, the pace and the trot.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the two-wheeled carriage used in harness racing called?

Court Rules 'No Knock' Pinned To Emergencies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California Supreme Court yesterday ruled that search warrants allowing police to enter a house without announcing their purpose must comply with emergency situations defined by law.

The 4-3 ruling came in the case of Arthur Parsley of Riverside. Police officers obtained a search warrant specifically providing that they did not have to comply with penal code provisions regarding announcing their purpose.

The court noted that in one year 12 per cent of the search warrants issued in Los Angeles County authorized unannounced entries.

Justice William P. Clark, Jr. wrote a dissent in which he argued that Parsley's reported "habit of answering the door carrying a loaded 12 gauge shotgun" constituted an emergency justifying the "no-knock" warrant.

Stand Against Taco Bell Upheld

The Novato Plan Review Committee acted legally in rejecting Taco Bell's plans for a restaurant on Machin Avenue across from the Novato Community House, according to Novato City Atty. Clark M. Palmer.

The city attorney told the committee and Novato City Council in a joint meeting last night: "In reading the minutes of your two meetings with the developer (Ben Ostlind) I think that you gave sufficient direction to survive any legal attack."

Palmer said that there was "something in the downtown square buildings that makes them all compatible." So it was not unreasonable to expect Taco Bell to conform to the general overall plan of the square.

In answer to a question from Mayor Fred F. Ruegg, Palmer said, however, that if a nationally known architect wanted to argue the matter in court, it would be up to the court to decide on whether the mission design of Taco Bell was compatible with the other buildings in the square.

"It gets to be a case of individual artistic taste," he said.

Ruegg and Councilman F. Wayne Sartain asked for another meeting with the plan review committee to discuss the ideas and goals of the committee.

"It goes beyond Taco Bell," Ruegg said.

The council instructed the city manager to set up such a meeting when all the council and committee would be present.

The Novato City Council Also:

CENTER — Authorized placing the word processing center in the conference room at the city hall and ordered the staff to come back next week with a cost estimate of converting the room to house the noisy equipment.

TRAFFIC — Said it wants a traffic study on Virginia Avenue to be completed by the time school starts on Sept. 11 or it will consider placing a stop sign on Virginia Avenue at Villa Court. It also authorized stop signs on Estrella Way at San Carlos Way and at San Luis Way on Bradley Avenue and on Jackson Drive at Jackson Court.

AUDIT — Set down rules by which A. L. Gieleghem could audit city records. These included not seeing some documents protected under state code such as personnel records and that his audit should not interfer with normal city functions. He must pay for all copies he wants of public records. He originally made the request for the committee for a change in government which wants City Mgr. Charles A. Brown fired.

HEARING — Set 8 p.m., Oct. 16 for a public hearing on annexation of the O'Hair property at Novato Boulevard and Sutro Avenue.

MEETINGS — Adjourned to 4:15 p.m. today to see a demonstration of a street sweeper which the city contemplates buying and to 8 p.m. tomorrow to meet with the Army Corps of Engineers on flood control on Novato Creek. It has a regular meeting at 8 p.m. next Tuesday and will meet at 8 p.m. Sept. 6 to discuss the Cheda Farm's master plan.

Hatched Minnows Adjust To Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) — Minnows born in space are adapted to zero gravity the moment they hatch from their tiny eggs. But their parents, carried aloft by the Skylab 2 crew, still are not accustomed to weightlessness and are swimming in tight, backward flips.

"These newly hatched minnows have never done that," Astronaut Owen K. Garriott said yesterday from the Skylab managerie which now includes five minnows and a pair of web-spinning spiders. "It was as if they had already adapted when they were still in the egg. And once they'd been hatched they have no problems."

Garriott and Skylab partners Alan L. Bean and Jack R. Lousma were to conduct some map making photographs of Paraguay today along with performing some medical tests and conduct a second test flight of a pair of jet shoes inside the workshop.

Spider Anita, dubbed "the monster from outer space," completed spinning an almost geometrically perfect web inside her glass cage in two days and Garriott provided live television coverage of the event to ground scientists.

Garriott has been sharing his filet mignon and prime rib with Anita and her partner Arabella to keep them alive for the return trip to Earth so scientists can see how they readapt to gravity.

"We now have a full screen view of the monster from outer space," capsule communicator Karl Henize said as the yellow and black bug filled the giant television screen.

"When magnified to these proportions, she certainly does resemble a possible monster," Garriott said. "And, of course, she is from outer space. But I can vouch for the fact that she's reasonably friendly."

Bear Is Chased, Treed And Killed

LYNCHBURG, Va. (UPI) — Police killed a bear yesterday after chasing it more than a mile near downtown Lynchburg.

Officials said the bear was sighted noon near the eastern side of the city and was chased by police until they treed it and killed it. Police said they did not know how the animal made its way so far into the city without being spotted.

Italy Aide's Son In Dope Arrest

CALEXICO (AP) — Four persons, including the son of the Italian Consul General in San Francisco, were arrested here early today on various narcotics charges, customs agents said.

Nicola Mauricio DeGiovanni, 26, of San Francisco, was arrested after customs officials discovered one kilo of marijuana under his hat and six more pounds in his car, they said.

He is the son of Consul-General Lugi DeGiovanni.
